Further Controls Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said today there would be a follow-up program to stabilize wages and prices to avoid an inflationary explosion after the current 90-day controls expire.

Dr. Paul W. McCracken told the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee that it was too early so far to spell out what the program will be.

"A freeze by itself cannot be expected to do a long-run job," McCracken said.

"Indeed, by itself a freeze is apt to pile up ammunition for an explosion of wages and prices at the end.

"That, in fact, has tended to be international experience with freeze as such."

The current freeze on wages, prices and rents expires Nov. 13. Meantime, McCracken reported, Nixon has directed the new Cost of Living Council to work with business and labor leaders "to set up a proper mechanism for achieving continued price and wage stability after the 90-day freeze is over."

Although he said the details have not been worked out for the second phase, the objective has been.

"It is to achieve a long enough period of a reasonably stable level of prices and costs per unit output to create a new confidence in the purchasing power of our dollar," McCracken told the committee.

Three of Nixon's cabinet members already have suggested the prospect of something more than voluntary controls on profits, dividends and interest rates —as well as wages and prices —when the current freeze ends.

Another Cabinet member, Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin, came out with his second round of criticism today of "some" labor leaders "who for selfish reasons oppose the freeze."

Hardin, in a prepared speech for an appearance at Columbus, Ohio, aimed his blast at longshore union leaders who "dictate that the west coast dock strike will continue". He said their actions were "examples of a lack of leadership that America can ill afford at this hour."

Negotiators arranged a new bargaining session in San Francisco to try to break the deadlock in the two-month-old strike that Hardin said was "running roughshod over farmers" by canceling farm export sales.

In Japan, at the start of the first full week of trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange since the yen was allowed to float, the dollar held steady at about 5 per cent below its formal official value.

In Europe, the dollar fell below 5.00 Swedish kroner for the first time since World War II; was off by 3.7 in relation to the French franc, it remained at a 7.1 per cent decline from the West German mark; fell slightly in Denmark, and was unchanged in Norway and Finland.

The Nixon administration hopes the dollar will drop in value by more than 10 per cent in relation to the other strong world currencies.

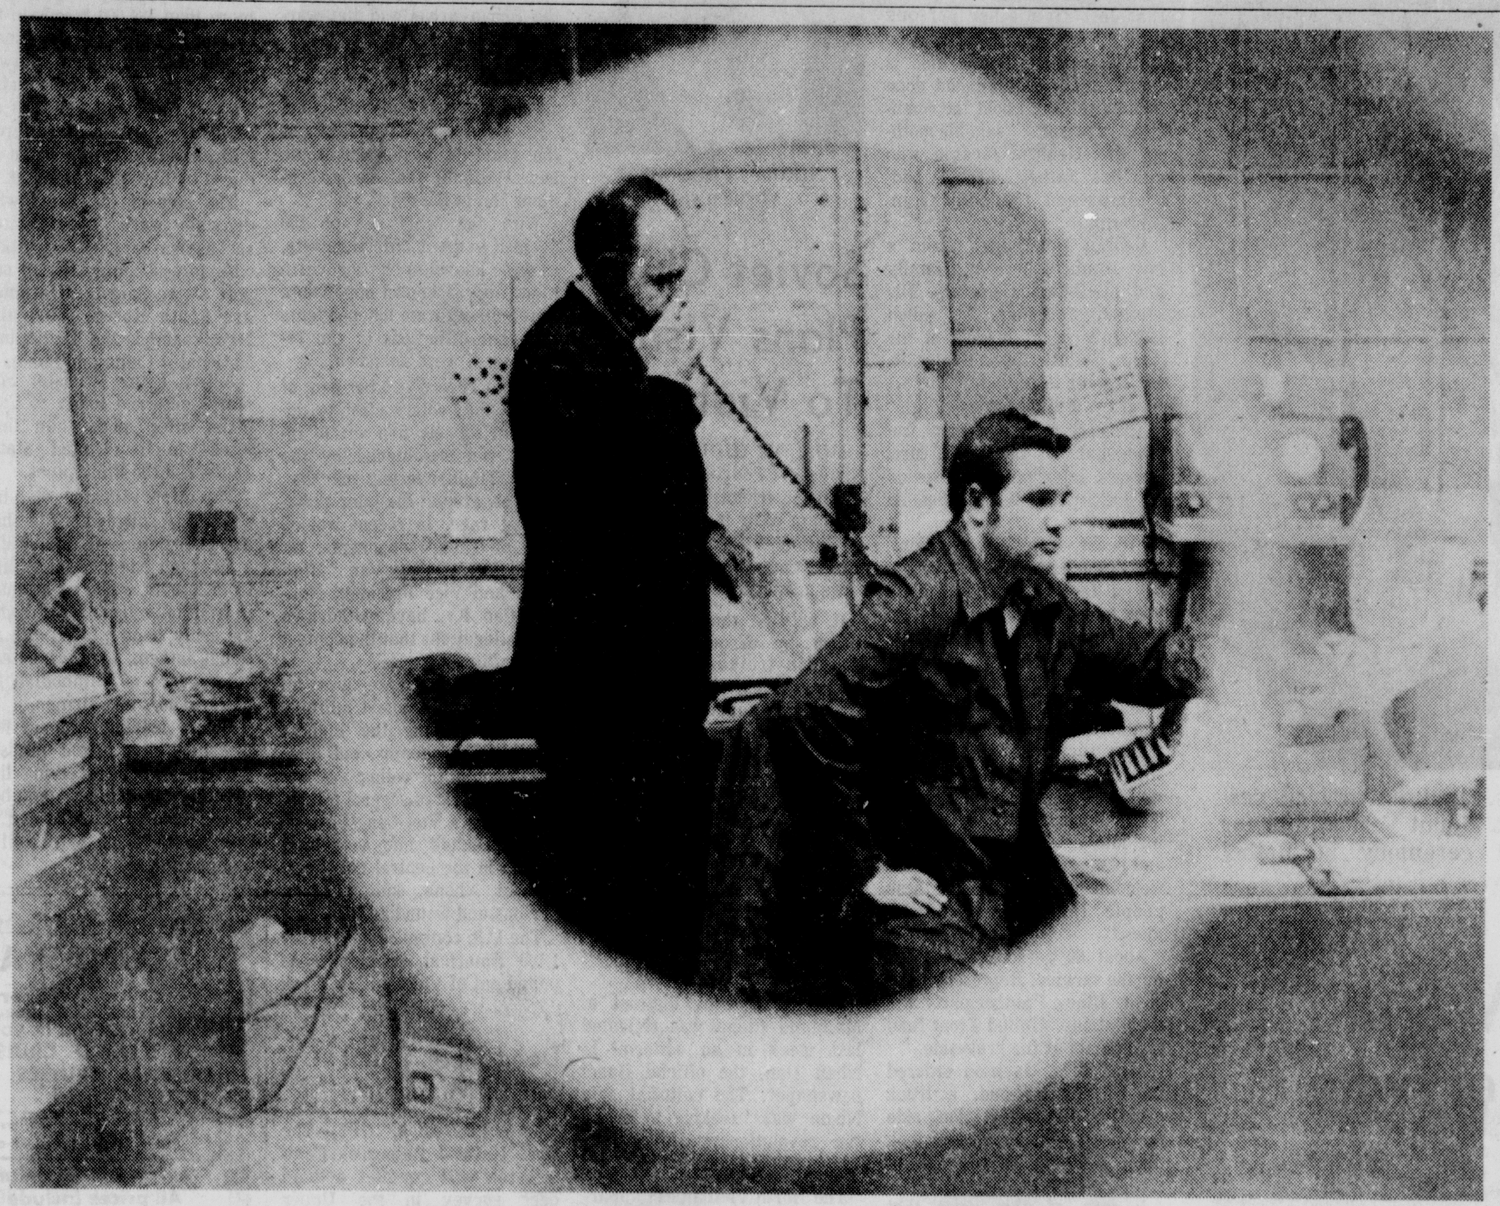

Last week Housing Secretary George Romney advocated restraint on interest rates and corporate profits. Sunday Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans and Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson agreed that such a course of action might be possible once the initial 90-day freeze period is over.

"With respect to profits,"

HOW GUNMEN KILLED OFFICER

There's only one opening in a sheet of bullet-proof glass at the Ingleside District police station in San Francisco, but it was all two gunmen needed last night. The pair, still being sought by police, fired between five and 10 shotgun blasts through the opening plus several rounds from a 9-mm. pistol. A sergeant was killed and a female clerk wounded. Thrill Slayer Leopold Dies At 66

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)— Nathan Leopold, who drove a chisel into the head of a 14-year-old Bobby Franks in Chicago in 1924 for the thrill that murder would give him and his pal Richard Loeb, died Sunday night at the age of 66, still unable to forget his crime.

Dr. Suarez Benitez of Mimiya Hospital said the cause of death was arteriosclerosis of the heart (hardened arteries). Leopold had suffered a series of heart attacks in recent months and was in the Mimiya Hospital when he died at 8:45 p.m. Sunday.

Benitez said Leopold's eyes had been given by previous arrangement to the eye bank and that his body would go to the school of medicine.

Leopold spent 33 1-2 years in an Illinois prison for what was then called the "Crime of the Century" in the days when the century was still young and superlatives were a way of life. He and Loeb had been sentenced to life, plus 99 years. Loeb was stabbed to death in prison in 1936.

Saved from execution by the extrordinary legal talents of Clarence Darrow, Leopold was eventually pardoned and atoned for his crime as best he could through a series of good works. But only last July he told UPI correspondent Margaret Hyman in a rare interview that the crime had and would remain with him as long as he lived.

For years following his parole from the Illinois state prison at Joliet in 1958, Leopold embarked upon a course of humility and service to mankind. "As "Nate" he was welcome in the governor's palace and farmer's hut alike and some of those he helped regarded him as a saint.

Leopold, whose IQ bordered on that of a genius—it was once put at 200-changed in his final months from his placid ways and his temper became explosive. He drove his car fast and sometimes erratically and he became preoccupied with money, hoping his starring role in a documentary film would open a new career.

His associates said he had never really found peace, that he had never made the adjustment to civilian life after 33 1-2 years in prison and that not even a late marriage could make him forget the past.

Leopold arrived in Puerto Rico in 1958 and in 1961 he married Mrs. Trudi Garcia de Quevado, the widow of a San Juan doctor, after a romance in which the rabbi of their synagogue played Cupid. She gave up a lucrative florist business and they made a lengthy trip to Europe, Africa and Asia in 1963, so he could continue his studies of parasites and the misery they inflicted on the human race.

Loeb, 18, and Leopold, 19, were two brilliant upper middle class University of Chicago students when they set out May 21, 1924, to commit the perfect crime in what was to be known as a murder for thrills.

At 5 p.m., when Bobby Franks, son of a Chicago millionaire, emerged from a private school they lured him into their car and drove to the suburbs where they drove the chisel into his head and dumped his nude body in a ditch. They demanded $10,000 ransom though both men came from wealthy families and neither needed the money.

It was not the perfect crime —a pair of spectacles found with the body were traced to Leopold. He and Loeb were indicted and tried. The prosecutor demanded the death penalty, but Darrow, fresh from his defense in the Dayton, Tenn., Scopes Trial, was retained to defend them.

"What blind cruel forces drove these boys to their terrible crimes?" Darrow asked. The jury had no answer, but the question raised the shadow of a doubt and both escaped the electric chair.

While in prison Leopold set up an educational program for other convicts. He volunteered as a human guinea pig for malaria experiments in World War II. He continued his studies of languages and by correspondence obtained a master's degree in social work from the University of Puerto Rico.

He also made powerful friends. Adlai Stevenson, then governor of Illinois, commuted his sentence to make him eligible for parole. Persons appealing for his freedom included poet Carl Sandburg, detective story writer Erle Stanley Gardner and Puerto Rico Gov. Luis Munoz Marin.

He earned $10 a month plus room and board at the Castaner Hospital here until his income was supplemented by royalties from his best seller "Life Plus 99 Years."

Almost all of his jobs in Puerto Rico have been research projects for government departments, ranging from tracing the transmissions of parasites in slum dwellings to studying the island's penal institutions to taking a census of Puerto Rican parrots.

He worked closely with the island's leprosy hospital and was once in charge of making case studies of leprosy victims for the University of Puerto Rico Medical School.

China May Halt Stalled Boundary Negotiations

LONDON (UPI)—Communist China may call a halt to the stalled border negotiations with the Soviet Union because of their deteriorating relations, diplomatic sources said Monday.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Premier Chou En-lai initiated the talks on possible changes in the 4,000-mile Sino-Soviet border 22 months ago at a summit meeting.

The Russians have offered some minor border changes, but no progress has come from the talks to date.

Peking has claimed in the talks that large areas of Siberia and other areas were acquired from China by Tsarist Russia in what Peking calls "unequal treaties." The Russians have rejected the wider Chinese demands and also any declaration in principle that would void the old treaties, sources said.

The agreement in late 1969 to hold the border talks also provided for a truce in the propaganda war between Peking and Moscow.

This truce has been broken lately with mounting attacks from Peking and Moscow on each other's alleged aims and policies.

The Russians are now deeply perturbed by the inroads Peking is making into Communist East Europe, notably Romania and Yugoslavia, and in North Korea in the Far East.

The Kremlin in turn is pushing its influence against China, the latest move being a planned visit by Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny to Hanoi, apparently to exploit a cooling of North Vietnam's relations with China over the latter's forthcoming meeting with President Nixon.

Moscow also has been boosting the posture of Mongolia, which is taking a strongly anti-Peking line. It has also concluded

Germans Eye Details of Plan To Open Berlin Wall To West

BERLIN (UPI)—West Berlin and East German officials held a preliminary meeting Monday on implementation of the part of the Big Four agreement which deals with the opening of the Communist-built Berlin Wall to West Berliners.

American diplomatic sources in Bonn said President Nixon intervened personally several times to break deadlocks in the 17 months of negotiations between the U.S., Soviet, British and French ambassadors.

The meeting of the German officials was the seventh of the kind since last March. But it was the first since the Big Four ambassadors announced agreement on a draft Berlin settlement last Monday.

On his return from the talks in East Berlin, West Berlin delegate Ulrich Mueller told newsmen he had scheduled a further meeting for Monday, Sept. 6. By then, he said, the West Berlin city government hoped the Big Four powers will have approved and signed the draft Berlin accord.

This will be the green light for the rival German authorities in divided Berlin to work out details of the arrangements for permitting the 2.2 million West Berliners to visit East Berlin for the first time since the wall went up more than 10 years ago.

Mueller, head of West Berlin Mayor Klaus Schuetz's chancellery, met for four hours with Gunter Kohrt, state secretary in the East German Foreign Ministry. He announced no details of the talks, apart from the agreement to meet again Sept. 6.

The Big Four agreement opened new prospects of success for West German Chancellor Willy Brandt's 17-month campaign to improve relations and contacts between the rival governments of East and West Germany.

Diplomatic officials said they expected the three Western governments and the Soviet government to approve the draft agreement in time for their ambassadors to sign it Thursday.

The ceremony was expected to take place in the former Allied Control Building in the American sector of West Berlin, scene of much of the 17-month negotiation between the four ambassadors.

Also scheduled for next Monday was a further meeting in

PRISON DESCRIBED AS PEACEFUL NOW

Achuff Denies Report That 13 Resigned; Families, Attorneys Resume Normal Visits

San Quentin Prison today was described as "peaceful as can be" by a spokesman as the normal routine was resumed in the wake of the violence which left six persons dead on Aug. 21.

Acting Associate Warden W. D. Achuff said that normal visits by families and attorneys of inmates were going on and that three families were in apartments outside the main wall for "conjugal" visits.

Achuff denied a report published elsewhere that 13 correctional officers had quit their jobs during the past week. He said the figure stands at eight but added that "I'm sure far more than 13 talked about quitting." (For the story of a guard who quit, see page 5.)

It was announced Friday that 43 more correctional officers will be hired in a move to beef up security at the troubled institution which houses 2,544 inmates. The staff now includes 383 correctional officers, Achuff said.

The bloody escape attempt in which three guards, two inmates and Soledad Brother George Jackson died set off a week of protests, charges and countercharges.

Achuff said today that "it would be beautiful" if the Marin County Grand Jury would make a thorough investigation of the prison. "We would welcome that," he said.

He said no plan for a general visit by the jury has been made but that he understood that the chairman, Milen C. Dempster, had an appointment to meet with Warden Louis S. Nelson.

(Annual visits by the grand jury to San Quentin have usually consisted only of a brief tour and lunch at the institution.)

An organization which represents many guards at San Quentin, the California Correctional Officers Association, today asked for a meeting tomorrow with Warden Nelson and Ray K. Procunier, director of the Department of Corrections.

Two days before the Aug. 21 bloodbath the association had filed suit over what it termed unsafe working conditions at the prison. Among requests for changes the association seeks controls over the number of attorneys allowed to visit inmates in the adjustment center, scene of the escape attempt.

(An attorney, Stephen M. Bingham, was Jackson's last visitor before Jackson pulled a gun on guards and set off a brief reign of terror. Bingham has disappeared since.)

"Revolutionary memorial services" were held for Jackson in Oakland Saturday, just a week after the 29-year-old Jackson died.

St. Augustine's Episcopal Church was jammed as an estimated 1,200 persons filled the little building and spilled out into an intersection to hear the rector, Rev. Earl Neil blast "the system of enslaving blacks" through all-white juries.

Black Panther cofounder Huey Newton was even more outspoken saying, "With love as our guide we'll slit every throat of the people who oppress us. We'll change their minds or else in the people's name we'll have to wipe them out, thoroughly, completely and absolutely."

The crowd responded with muffled cries of, "Right on brother, right on."

Jackson was buried yesterday in a family plot in Mount Vernon, Ill., while Black Panther party members raised clenched fist salutes. His grave is next to that of his younger brother, Jonathan, who died in a shootout last August at the Civic Center, which is believed to have been an attempt to free Jackson and the other Soledad Brothers.

Qualified Seekers Lose Place In Marin Job Crush

So many people are looking for county employment that many applicants, though qualified, are weeded out by a random culling process even before they are considered.

Personnel analyst Jack Atkin explained that the county is now interviewing in one month about as many applicants as were previously interviewed in a whole year.

Here are some recent examples:

During May 24 through 27, the county advertised for unskilled groundsmen, maintenance workers, messengers, mail clerks, and custodians. About 12 such jobs were expected to open up during the 1971-72 fiscal year. A total of 485 applications poured in. The personnel office had to resort to picking names at random, for interviews and setting up a list of eligible applicants.

Between July 13 and 23, the county advertised for the position of group counselor 1, in the probation department. The pay scale is $715 to $869 per month, and minimum qualification is a college degree.

The recruiting period is normally three weeks, but the applications were closed in 10 days because 234 applications poured in. Since all met the minimum requirement of a college degree, the personnel staff had to resort once again to random picking for interviews. Eventually 75 were interviewed, and 51 of these were placed on the eligible list.

The 51 were added to 33 eligibles from a previous examination held in May, when 96 had applied for the temporary job of group counselor 1. The 84 on the eligible list will thus wait for about five jobs available as group counselor 1.

Atkin said he knows of no better practical method of processing applicants for interviews when the office is flooded with 300 to 400 qualified applicants for each opening.

He said many applicants are so desperate that pay is no longer a deciding factor.

Bat Gives Boy Case Of Rabies

NORWALK (UPI) — Brian MacDougall, 7, camped with his family in the Sierras last weekend when a bat suddenly landed on his lip and fell dead at his feet. Days later the boy developed an infection on his cheek.

The family continued their summer vacation thinking the rash was just a skin irritation. It turned out to be the first signs of rabies.

Sunday night Brian entered County-USC Medical Center for the first of the painful Pasteur anti-rabies innoculations after it was discovered that the bat was rabid.

NOT WELCOME — Mrs. Georgia Jackson, mother of slain "Soledad Brother" George L. Jackson, tells reporters they are not welcome at the burial of her son. Mrs. Jackson arrived yesterday at Mount Vernon, Ill., for a burial ceremony at Bethel Cemetery.

(UPI Telephoto)

Jackson Buried In Illinois

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (UPI) —Slain Soledad Brother George Jackson was buried Sunday, eight days after an escape attempt from San Quentin prison that left five other persons dead.

"The reason George died is that one black man had done enough talking about the conditions in prisons," said his mother, Mrs. Georgia Jackson, who with his father, Lester, had accompanied the body from California.

George was buried about a mile south of here in a family plot at Bethel Cemetary. His brother, Jonathan, 17, killed last July in a shootout at the Marin County Civic Center in San Rafael is buried nearby — his grave still unmarked.

The ceremony was short, but emotional. At one point, Mrs. Jackson interrupted one speaker, Joe Swift of Washington and said:

"Please stop. My son didn't like preachers. I asked you to say a few words but I don't want any preaching."

A United Press International photographer, Bruno Torres, was knocked to the ground and roughed up by a group of black panthers who objected to his taking pictures of the burial site.

"These leeches don't belong here," Mrs. Jackson said, forging into a cluster of newsmen and photographers. "You're not welcome here. I consider these people (newsmen) my enemies."

About 60 persons turned out for the service. Representatives of the Black Panther party and the National United Front read statements at the graveside.

After Mrs. Jackson ordered the casket lowered, a truck carrying dirt pulled along side the grave and supporters took turns pitching shovels full of dirt on top of the casket.

It was at this point that Torres, trying to take pictures of the shoveling, was attacked. Two of his cameras were damaged and the Panthers destroyed the film in those cameras.

Fred Sweet, a black photographer for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, came to aid Torres and was threatened but not injured.

Jackson, 30, was a native of Chicago. He was sentenced to one year to life imprisonment in 1960 for a $70 robbery. In 1969, he was accused of murdering a guard at Soledad, Calif., state prison.

NIKOLAI PODGORNY
Vietnam visit

Soviet Chief Plans Visit To Vietnam

MOSCOW (UPI)—President Nikolai V. Podgorny will pay a "visit of friendship" to North Vietnam early in October at the invitation of the Hanoi government, the official Soviet Tass news agency said today.

It will be the first visit to Hanoi by a member of the Kremlin troika since Prime Minister Alexei N. Kosygin attended the funeral of Ho Chi Minh in 1969. Kosygin also visited Hanoi in 1965.

Podgorny likely will carry assurances of continued Soviet support for North Vietnam. His visit also was unlikely to do anything to dispel Hanoi's growing distrust of Peking, which has been intensified by President Nixon's proposed visit to China next year.

Hanoi's growing distrust of Mainland China was reflected last week in an editorial in Nhan Dan, the official Hanoi newspaper. The editorial said Nixon was "seeking to divide the revolutionary forces" by visiting Peking.

The North Vietnamese apparently fear the Chinese are more interested in a rapproachement with the United States than in a unified and Communist--governed Vietnam.

The corollary of such thinking is that Peking may diminish its military and political support of North Vietnam to gain such ends.

Thieu Forces In Election Victory

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu appeared today to have retained his hold on the South Vietnamese National Assembly in nationwide elections Sunday, but opposition candidates scored heavily in the urban areas and the war-torn northern provinces.

Officials predicted that Thieu, who is the sole candidate for reelection in presidential elections Oct. 3, would have about the same 2-1 advantage in the new Assembly that his government had in the old.

With 140 seats out of 159 decided in the unofficial results, 58 were known to be progovernment and 32 known opposition. Three others were independents and the affiliations of the remaining 47 were unknown.

A near record 78.5 per cent of the eligible voters went to the polls in the election whose interest was heightened by the furious maneuvering that has gone on around the later presidential race. In recent weeks, both of Thieu's opponents, retired Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, have withdrawn with allegations that the contest was unfair.

In the war, there was an upsurge of Communist military attacks reaching the highest level in four months, but little disruption of the voting.

In the worst of several terrorist attacks a Viet Cong threw a hand grenade into a polling station in the central coast city of Qui Nhong, killing seven persons and wounding 32.

The U.S. command said today 1,100 American soldiers were pulled out of Vietnam last week in the smallest cutback in the force in almost seven months.

Although the pace of withdrawals has been noticeably slowing in recent weeks, spokesmen said the command would make President Nixon's target of no-more than 184,000 troops in the theater by the Dec. 1 deadline.

Command figures showed that for the first time withdrawals of American GIs was exceeded by those of other forces with the allied commitment reduced by 1,900 men to 61,300.

The bulk of the allied withdrawals were Thai forces spokesmen said. Other nations with forces committed to support of the Saigon government are South Korea, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Nationalist China and Spain.

Acting Prime Minister Sirik Matak returned today to Cambodia after more than three weeks in the United States, Japan and the Philippines.

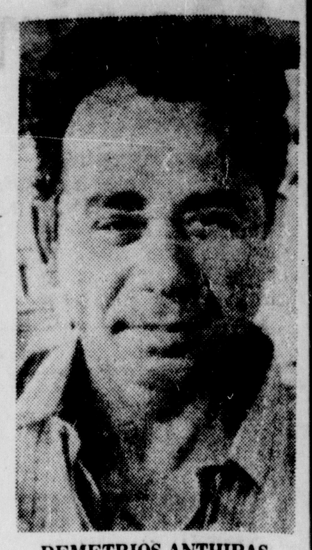

The prime minister, clad in a dark gray suit and white shirt, descended from his plane after a five and one-half hour flight from Manila, stood at attention in front of an honor guard while an army band played the national anthem, then inspected a color guard of Cambodian soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Before leaving to meet with newsmen, the prime minister passed down a receiving line, greeting his cabinet, members of the diplomatic corps and top commanders of Cambodia's armed forces.

Dead Deer Count Set In Michigan

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—The State Natural Resources Commission will conduct a dead deer survey in the Upper Peninsula in an attempt to determine hunting regulations for next season.

The department said its study will be used in part to determine whether a moratorium on antlerless deer hunting in the peninsula should be ended for the next hunting season.

DEMETRIOS ANTHIPAS
Arrested in Italy

Sea Deaths Captain Held

BRINDISI, Italy (UPI)— Italian police charged the captain of a Greek ferry that burned at sea with multiple homicide Sunday night. They arrested him just as he was preparing to leave Italy aboard another Greek ferry.

Authorities had ordered the captain, Demetrios Anthipas, to stay in Italy while the disaster of his ship, Heleanna, was investigated. The ferry, with at least 1,125 persons aboard, burned at sea Saturday. Twenty-four persons were known dead.

Anthipas had boarded the ferry Egnatia as it was preparing to leave on its 19-hour journey to Patras, Greece.

Final Rules Issued In Car Devices

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government today issued final regulations which require automobile makers to tell car buyers about —and how to maintain —the anti-pollution devices installed on their cars.

The more detailed aspects of maintenance will not be included in the owners' manuals because they are highly technical and require special testing equipment to utilize. But the owners will receive data on how to maintain their exhaust, crankcase and evaporative-emission control systems, and be told ways to identify and correct malfunctions.

The regulations also define the "useful life" of a vehicle during which period it must be in compliance with emission standards. For light-duty vehicles the useful life is five years, or 50,000 miles. For heavy-duty vehicles there are two categories —five years or 50,000 miles for those with gasoline engines, and five years or 100,000 miles for those with diesel engines.

Some of the regulations will begin to take effect during the '72 model year —covering the new cars now going on sale.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Peace Plea

CASTELGANDOLFO, Italy (UPI)—Pope Paul VI has broken a two year silence on the violence in Northern Ireland with an appeal to "all Christians" to work together to stop the bloodshed there.

"The situation has recently become embittered and then was greatly aggravated following the adoption of the exceptional security measures (internment without trial) which were deeply resented by at least some citizens," the pontiff told tourists and pilgrims at his summer residence Sunday.

Japan Visit

TOKYO (UPI)—Japanese officials expect President Nixon to visit Japan early next year, Foreign Ministry sources said today. The object would be to ease the growing friction due to trade and economic disputes.

It would be the first trip by an American president to Japan. Rioting Japanese students forced the Japanese government to cancel an invitation to the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1960.

Government sources said the formal invitation would be issued by Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda, when he goes to Washington Sept. 9-10 for the U.S.-Japan joint economic conference. In diplomatic practice such invitations are not issued until a government has formal assurance of acceptance.

Typhoon Strikes

MIYAZAKI, Japan (UPI)—Typhoon Trix, one of the strongest to hit Japan, battered the southern island of Kyushu with 111-mile-an-hour winds and heavy rains today and threatened to hit the island of Shikoku.

Police said 13 persons were killed, 34 injured and five missing on Kyushu.

Six patients were killed when a landslide triggered by the typhoon sent tons of mud crashing down on a hospital in Gokase, a town in southeastern Kyushu.

An early morning fire, fanned by the typhoon's winds, destroyed 38 houses and left more than 120 persons homeless.

Slick Ship

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—The navy has launched a crane-operated "bucket--throwing" ship Sunday to join the "floating vacuum cleaner" already sucking oil in a giant slick which has polluted at 60-mile stretch of Southern California shore.

The latest experiment in oil skimming machinery works "like a fisherman's casting rod," a navy spokesman said. "The first ship (the vacuum cleaner) we sent out couldn't handle the thick sediment, just the thinner oil patches."

The vacuum cleaner began work Saturday funneling the scum between V-shaped 75-foot booms into a tank where vacuum hoses sucked up the oil.

"We're just experimenting," the spokesman said, "but at the present rate, it should be all cleaned up this week."

Irish Bombings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Northern Ireland went through its worst weekend of bombings since the introduction of internment without trial Aug. 9. One British soldier was killed and more than 20 explosions were reported.

The worst weekend incident took place near Crossmaglen, when a British army patrol accidently crossed into the Irish Republic on an unmarked road. One soldier, Cpl. Ian Armstrong, was killed and another was wounded in the incident, apparently by the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Agreement Reached On Family Planning

MANILA (UPI) — The Philippines and the United States have signed a new agreement providing more than $4.5 million in assistance through the U.S. Agency for International Development AID to this country's family planning program.

The money will go to the continued support of more than 800 family planning clinics and for the opening of another 400 clinics.

Berlin Crossing To Be Easier

BERLIN (UPI)—The Soviet Union has promised to open more crossing points through the wall in the Four-Power Berlin agreement announced last week, Western diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said details of the agreement and the number of new crossing points will have to be worked out in East-West German talks.

There are seven crossing points in the wall. But West Berliners have not been able to pass through to the other side since Spring, 1966.

North Hijacks S. Korean Boat

SEOUL (UPI) — A South Korean fishing boat with 30 fishermen aboard was hijacked today by a North Korean patrol boat off east coast of the Korean peninsula, national police headquarters said.

The 19.6-ton Taksung-Ho was drifting toward the military demarcation line in the Japan Sea while fishing in stormy seas off Sokcho 100 miles east of Seoul, police said.

South Korean navy vessels rushed to the scene but failed to block the hijacking.

Brief Encounter

San Rafael policeman James Jackson examines the accordion pleated front fender of an Opel sports car that has just collided with a Northwest Pacific train. The accident, last night, at Mission and Tamalpais avenues, sent Michael Warren Siciliano, 21, of 199 Devon Drive, San Rafael, to Marin General Hospital with cuts and bruises. A second vehicle, driven by Wesley Ray McDowell, 48, of 7809 Burton Avenue, Rohnert Park, was reportedly traveling south on the railroad tracks and was involved in the accident. McDowell was not injured, police said. Police had no further information about the collision.

Talk Hole Gun Blasts Kill Police Sergeant

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A shotgun fired through the "talk" hole in bulletproof glass at a police station Sunday night killed a sergeant and wounded a woman dispatcher.

A total of 18 shots were fired in the lobby of Ingleside Station, causing detectives to surmise that at least two men made the attack, although they had a description of only one.

In an area-wide radio broadcast, police said the man they are hunting is a Negro, about 20 years old, and wearing a white Tee-Shirt.

Most of the bullets from a shotgun and a 9-mm automatic pistol were fired in an unsuccessful attempt to blast down a steel door leading to inner police quarters. A fireman said later the wall around the door "looked like Swiss cheese."

The victim of the fatal shots was Sgt. John Young, 45, the third San Francisco policeman this year to be shot in the line of duty, and the sixth in the past 18 months.

Wounded in the shoulder and taken to Mission Emergency Hospital was the dispatcher, Mrs. Ellen Lipney, 30.

There was only one other policeman in the building at the time of the attack and by the time he reached Young the sergeant was dead.

No explanation was given for the sneak attack on the station which is surrounded on three sides by Balboa Park and on the other by a freeway.

Led by Chief Alfred J. Nelder, police swarmed to the scene as soon as a radio call went out saying: "A sergeant's been shot. A sergeant's been shot. Get an ambulance over here."

Aided by floodlights from Fire Department trucks and police dogs, patrolmen searched the park without finding anyone.

A five-foot hole was cut in the fence separating the station's back from the freeway, leading detectives to believe the escape was made in that direction, probably to a waiting car.

Nelder called it "the senseless killing of a wonderful man and one of the finest police officers in the department."

Shortly after the fusillade of shots in the station, there was a mysterious explosion at a Bank of America branch a mile away, but it could not be determined if there was any connection.

Since February 1970, there have been 64 sabotage attempts at the bank's branches.

Nor was there any indication whether the violence was connected to explosions that caused $150,000 worth of damages Saturday

Syria Could Be Target Of Tanks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Sunday Jordan has been receiving large quantities of American weapons, including heavy tanks. He hinted they were for use against Syria.

The semiofficial Al Ahram newspaper said today Sadat made the remarks before the central committee of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only political party.

"Jordan has been receiving during the recent period large quantities of American weapons, including tanks," it quoted the president as saying. He said the weapons were "bigger than can be used against the (Palestinian) guerrillas and it is impossible to use them against Israel, in accordance with the American security terms."

He said "it is clear that the shipment of those weapons has a connection with the Jordanian attack on Syria."

Syria broke off diplomatic relations with Jordan Aug. 14. after charging Jordanian troops attacked its border villages. The two sides fought several land battles.

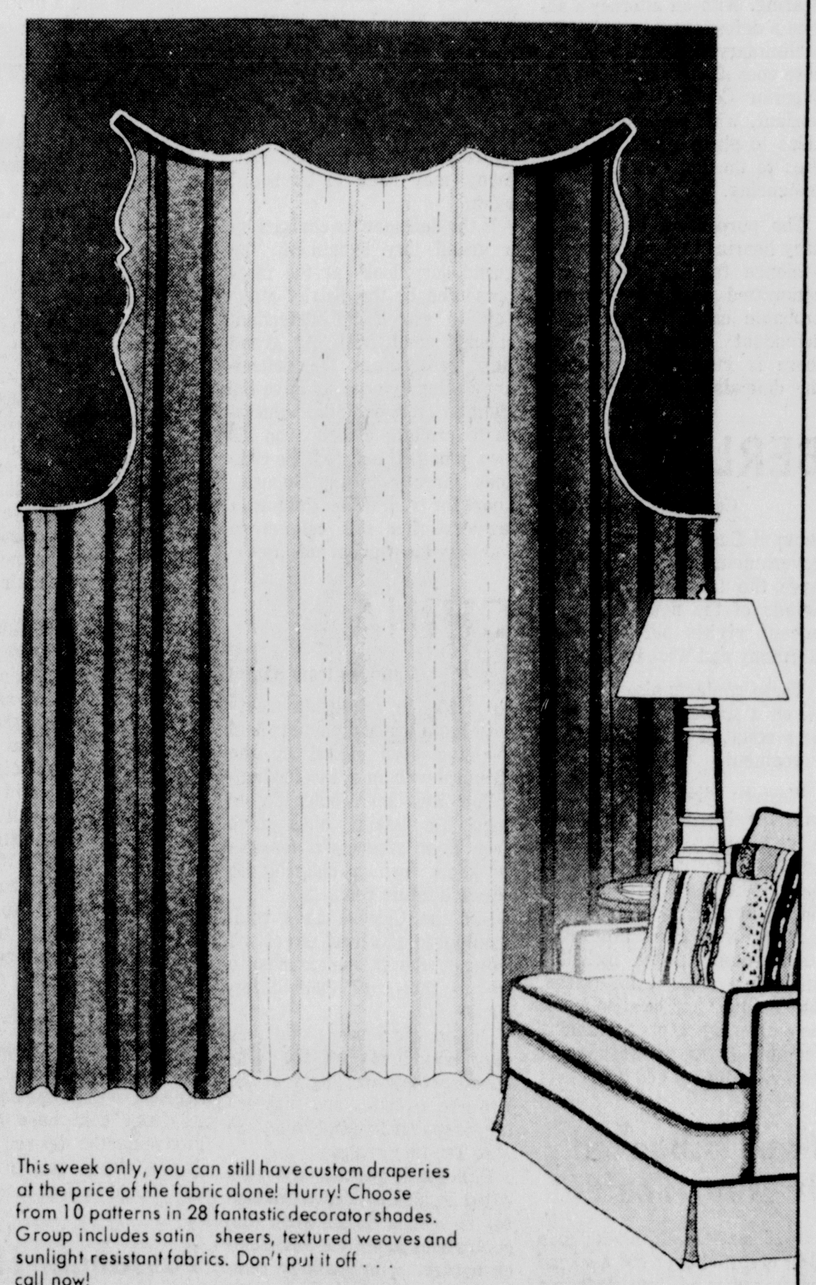

In another development, Egyptian, Syrian and Libyan leaders explained to their people today what effect the federation of the three nations will have on them.

The Sullivan Reading And Math Programs Can Make This School Year Your Child's Best!

• Is your child capable of doing better in school?
Perhaps poor reading or math skills are keeping him from realizing his full potential. Sullivan Reading Centers offer programs in both Reading and Math. Both programs feature individualized instruction and are designed to supplement a child's regular school work. Groups are limited to five students, each child progresses at his own rate of learning.

• How the Reading Program works:
At the Sullivan Reading Center your child will learn to read or improve his present reading level through linguistic progression. He will find that the organized, sequential, involving aspects of the Sullivan Reading Program offer him an opportunity for success that he may not have previously enjoyed. He'll sense for the first time the accomplishment of reading.

• How the Math Program works:
Our Math Program is self-motivating, self-instructional, self-scoring. Once a student is placed in the program, problems gradually increase in complexity, leading him step-by-step to a thorough grasp of concepts and procedures. Retention is improved since the student remembers more accurately things he has learned for himself. Ask your child's teacher about our proven Sullivan materials. Call your local center director and schedule an appointment for a free reading or math evaluation test.

BENEFITS:
• FREE Evaluation test
• Individual Instruction

Health Department Closes Restaurant

Pat and Joe's Restaurant in Mill Valley has been closed down by the county health department for more than 20 violations of the state health and safety code.

The restaurant at 71 Throckmorton Avenue was forced to close at midnight Wednesday after a routine inspection by the department.

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, said the violations were "pretty extensive" and "partially because the building is more than 50 years old."

She said the health department had issued warnings to the restaurant in the past, but insufficient correction work was done.

The violations, which she declined to list, are against the California Restaurant Act which is part of the state health and safety code.

The district sanitarian for the county, Theodore Keller, said the violations included problems with walls, ceiling, floor and equipment.

Anthony Scalise and Patrick O. Trujillo, owners of the 8-year-old restaurant, said today they have received approval for financing a new building, estimated to cost $250,000, but are trying to meet regulations in order to reopen temporarily.

"The health violations within the building have been corrected and if the city will approve the fire and safety hazards temporarily, we can reopen on a limited basis for a few weeks," Scalise said.

He said the restaurant which employs 32 full-time and nine part-time workers needs additional income to pay for plans for the new building.

Scalise estimated razing the present building would take place in about six weeks.

Pat and Joe's operates 24 hours a day and has a seating capacity for 65 persons. It does not have a liquor license.

Scal ise said some of the health violations cited by the county were accumulated grease on the walls, use of iron rather than stainless steel tables, need for a heat booster on the dishwasher and an obsolete fountain.

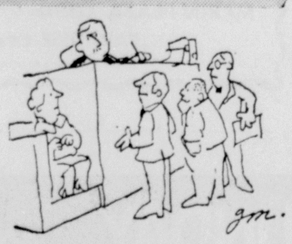

City planning director Tom W. Newton today said any decision on the city's possibility condemning the building as a safety hazard would be delayed until building inspector, Henry E. Anderson, returns from vacation.

"He inspected the building and found it to be in poor shape. It may be a hazard to the public safety," Newton said. He added that Anderson plans to investigate the matter further before making a decision to condemn.

LAW IN ACTION

Reform Fight On Hearing

Persons charged with a felony (a serious crime punishable by state imprisonment) are allowed a preliminary hearing. Because these hearings take a lot of time and duplicate testimony, many lawmakers seek to reform them. Among suggested reforms are the elimination of the preliminary hearing, consolidation of the municipal and superior courts, more grand jury indictments.

After a defendant has been informed of his charges and has the help of an attorney, a preliminary hearing is set. This is not a trial; it is more of a screening process to determine if in fact a crime has been committed and that the accused committed it.

The hearing is held before a justice or municipal court judge. A defendant without an attorney may not waive the hearing. With an attorney's advice a defendant may waive the preliminary hearing and the case goes directly to trial in the Superior Court. Or if the defendant, with his attorney, decides to plead guilty, the case goes to the Superior Court for sentencing.

The purpose of the preliminary hearing is to see if there is evidence that the crime was committed and that there is probable cause to believe the defendant committed it. If there is insufficient evidence, the defendant is "discharged" from the charges and does not have to stand trial.

At the preliminary hearing, the district attorney has the victim, police officer or other witnesses testify as to facts that are likely to hold the defendant to stand trial. The defense counsel is entitled to cross-examine the witnesses produced by the district attorney, but need not put on testimony of the accused.

The defendant's attorney in a robbery case may be able to show that the alleged victim consented to the use of the stolen property. Or he may raise defenses that show that no crime was actually committed. Also, at the preliminary hearing, the victim may want to drop the charges, or the defendant may decide to plead guilty to a lesser offense.

If the defendant is "held to answer," he is then tried in the Superior Court and all the testimony may have to be heard again.

If the defendant is charged by a grand jury indictment, the grand jury looks at the facts presented by the district attorney to see if the defendant should stand trial. At grand jury proceedings the defendant's attorney does not have the right to cross-examine witnesses to produce evidence on his own behalf. If indicted, the case goes directly to the Superior Court for trial. (Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.)

These contacts also have taken on a sudden new dimension as a result of the ambassadors' agreement.

Western diplomatic sources said the Russians have promised to open more crossing points in the concrete wall to handle the traffic of West Berliners entering East Berlin.

At present there are seven such crossing points, including one reserved for non-Germans. The number and location of the new crossing points are among the details to be worked out between Mueller and Kohrt.

Man Is Booked In Auto Theft

A 28-year-old Mill Valley man was arrested over the weekend on suspicion of auto theft and concealing stolen property.

Albert Edward Robertson, of 342 Sycamore Avenue, was arrested at about 10:15 a.m. Saturday on Tamalpais Drive at the bottom of Corte Madera grade, police said.

He was booked into Marin County jail on Marin County warrants for auto theft and concealing stolen property and held in lieu of $3,125 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

ed a 20-year friendship treaty with India which diplomats hold to have been signed by the Kremlin with an eye to Peking.

The Russians would like to keep the Peking talks alive even if no progress is feasible to keep open a channel for possible future contacts.

But the Chinese have cold-shouldered all recent direct and indirect Soviet approaches to try to talk over their differences.

Diplomatic sources said they may now break off the talks because they are angry at the Kremlin's tactics and sharpening propaganda attacks on the Mao Tse-tung regime.

Diplomatic reports also indicated Peking is deeply troubled by the strong Soviet troop concentrations along the Sino-Soviet border, being steadily reinforced and equipped with missiles and other up-to-date weapons.

Woman Treated

Sharon Brooks, 28, of 172 Cobblestone Drive, San Rafael, was treated yesterday for a strained neck and back at Marin General Hospital, suffered according to hospital officials, in an auto accident. Details of the accident were not available.

OBITUARIES

Leslie R. Hamilton, 60, Dies

Leslie Ronald Hamilton, 60, an employee of Ortho Division of Chevron Chemical Co. died yesterday at his Fairfax home.

He was stricken at 2:45 a.m. at his home at 456 Oak Manor Drive, and was pronounced dead at Marin General Hospital. Death was due apparently to natural causes, said Dale Thomas, deputy coroner.

He was born in Kansas and moved to California 40 years ago. He had been employed at Ortho for the past 26 years. At the time of his death, he was manager of fertilizer supplies and national accounts for the company. He had lived in Fairfax for the past 16 years.

He was a member of the Lindsay Lodge No. 416 Free and Accepted Masons at Lindsay, Tulare County and First Presbyterian Church of San Anselmo.

He is survived by his wife, Kathryn M. Hamilton; a daughter, Carol E. Swope of Sacramento; a son, Dean Ronald Hamilton of Fairfax; a brother, Weslie D. Hamilton of Denver, Colo.; and two sisters, Grace Phelps of Los Alamos, N.M. and Hazel Clarine of Maxwell, Colusa County.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo. Private inurnment will follow.

Memorial contributions to the Marin County Heart Association, San Rafael, would be preferred by the family.

Letha Malott Hines, 84, died yesterday at her home in Terra Linda after a long illness.

She had made her home with her daughter Mazie Stewart at 1710 Las Gallinas Avenue for the past 18 years.

A native of Kansas, she had lived there most of her life. Her husband, the late William Hines, was a retired farmer.

She was a member of the Christian Church.

She is also survived by another daughter, Helen McCoy Parce of Berkeley; a son, Carl Malott of Augusta, Kans.; two sisters, Maye Stracke of Puyallup, Wash., and Della Cohee of Neodesha, Kans.; six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at Burris-Wall Funeral Home in Parsons, Kans. Burial will be in the Oakwood Cemetery, Parsons.

ANN DUKE

Funeral for Ann Tasker Duke, wife of the late Robert Duke, San Rafael attorney and resident of San Anselmo for many years, has been held in San Jose.

She died Aug. 21, in San Jose where she lived with her son Dr. R. Douglas Duke of San Jose.

She is also survived by a sister, Alice McKnight of Vista, San Diego county.

Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael.

RUPERT FREY

Funeral for Rupert L. Frey of Santa Rosa, father of Thelma Dowes of Petaluma, will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Sorenson Funeral Home in Petaluma.

Frey, 79, died Friday in a Petaluma hospital after a long illness.

He was born and reared in Missouri. He was a self-employed truck driver until he retired in 1957 and moved to California. He has lived for the past 10 years in Santa Rosa.

He is survived by his wife, Verna Frey; three sons, Dallas T. Frey of Santa Rosa; Doyle E. Frey of Turner, Ore. and Jerald L. Frey of Portland, Ore.; four other daughters, Mae Brown of Santa Rosa; Mabel Lingre of Red Oak, Iowa; Edith Wolfe of Patilion, Neb.; Jeanettee Burnett of Fort Worth, Tex. and Carol Barnett of Calispell, Mont.; many grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Burial will be in Cypress Hill Memorial Park in Petaluma.

MORRIS HOFFORD

Funeral for Morris L. Hofford of Fairfax, former typewriter mechanic, will be tomorrow at 11 a.m. at Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

Hofford died yesterday at his home, 21 Manzanita Avenue, after a long illness. He was 81.

He was born in Philadelphia, Pa. He came to San Francisco in 1909 and then in 1929 he moved to Fairfax.

He was a typewriter mechanic for Underwood, Elliott and Fisher Co. of San Francisco. He was also an Army veteran of World War I.

He is survived by his wife, Lillian Hofford; and a daughter, Helen Hofford of Fairfax.

JAMES COLLINS

Funeral for James R. Collins of Napa, a former resident of Mill Valley, has been held in Napa. Burial was in Claremore, Okla.

Collins, 82, died last Monday in a Napa hospital after a long illness. He was a retired stationary engineer.

A native of Birmingham, Ala., he lived in Mill Valley from 1943 until about seven years ago. He lived briefly in Massachusetts before returning to California to live in Napa.

He worked for 18 years at the now defunct American Distillery in Sausalito.

During World War I, Collins saw Army service in Germany.

He is survived by a daughter, Sue Rader of Riverside; a brother, John Cleveland Collins of Napa; four sisters, Martha Ann Cleary and Theo Woodward, both of Napa, Anna Elizabeth Thoney of Mill Valley and Emma Luseale Abbott of Merced, and three grandchildren. His wife, Gladys, died several years ago.

ECONOMY

Stans said, "I think the matter here depends upon how long the process takes to eliminate the inflationary characteristics of the economy.

"If it's a short period, I don't think it makes any sense to apply excess profits rates on profits. Over a long period of time, certainly it might be necessary in order to provide equity," he said.

He prefaced his remarks, however, by saying that it was entirely too soon to say whether controls would eventually be needed on profits or interest rates.

Hodgson said a profits ceiling "certainly has to be one of the things we consider during phase II" —the period following the 90-day freeze.

But both cabinet members were unspecific about what phase II would consist of, particularly what forms of wage-price-rent control, if any, would remain. Stans said some still-undecided restraints would continue, but hopefully for less than one year.

Stans made the comments on CBS TV's "Face the Nation" while Hodgson appeared on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

The legislation which gave Nixon standby authority to freeze wages, rents and prices did not cover profits, and the President would have to go to Congress to request such power if he wants it when the lawmakers return from their summer recess Sept. 8.

The profits question continued to be at the heart of organized labor's criticism of the new economic plan. Jerry Wurf, president of the 525,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, AFL-CIO, said his union had backed an overall freeze.

"Instead of handing down that sort of plan," Wurf said, "the administration has given a tremendous tax sop to big business, while freezing the wages of working men and women."

In Tokyo, Assistant Secretary of State Philip H. Trezise arrived on his mission to explain U.S. monetary policies to the Japanese government. Nixon's decision to untie the dollar from its fixed gold base has been producing the desired effect in Japan, where the government was forced to float the yen.

Passenger Hurt In Car Crash

A 21-year-old South San Francisco woman suffered scrapes of her left elbow when the car in which she was riding failed to negotiate a curve on Novato Boulevard at Sierra Vista and overturned at 2:50 a.m. yesterday, Novato police reported.

The passenger, Belinda Rita Anstey, was treated at Novato General Hospital. The car was driven by Edward John Anstey, 23, of the same address.

Be our guest in the White House

You will know as much as anyone about what goes on in the White House and in the Presidency by the simple act of reading the I-J. (Only the President and intimates will know more).

For the I-J, through its United Press International reporters, is virtually "in residence" as much as the President. Which makes you our welcome guest to the White House.

Our reporters are constantly alert to staff and cabinet meetings, to affairs of international import, to the diplomatic front, to the comings and goings which make the White House a world center of significant news. The job is sensitive. It requires a sixth sense to know when news of major concern is about to break. And concern in how to "break" it accurately and without bias.

Be our guest and stay as long as you like. Our columns lead right to the White House.

BITTER, DISGUSTED

Veteran Guard Quits, Gives Up His Pension

By C. P. McCARTHY

"My insides are torn out. I've seen all the useless, needless bloodshed I can see and still live with myself."

So said a 20-year veteran San Quentin guard who quit his job Friday — giving up a $235 a month pension that would have been his in less than six months. (More on San Quentin, page 1.)

John Arms Sr. was a scared, bitter and disgusted man Saturday when he discussed his reasons for quitting the prison.

He was scared, he said, for his life, and the lives of his wife and son.

His wife, Lucy, had worked for the department of corrections for 12 years. She quit her job as a records clerk at San Quentin Friday.

Their son, John Jr., a San Quentin guard for four years, remained at his job.

Arms, 50, was bitter at and disgusted with a prison administration that, he said, will do nothing about dangerous conditions at San Quentin.

"Warden (Louis S.) Nelson has lost control of San Quentin," Arms charged. He said the administration of the prison is "too permissive. Everything is in favor of the inmates. Personnel at San Quentin are afraid to speak out for fear of repercussions from the Department of Corrections."

Arms spent 16 of his 20 years with the department at San Quentin. He worked at a minimum security institution at Susanville for four years and was a correctional sergeant when he resigned Friday.

Most of his specific complaints have been made by other guards: outdated and worn equipment; a poor armory where there is not enough ammunition for weapons and equipment can't be found in an emergency' too many inmates out of their cells at certain periods with not enough guards to supervise them, and a too lenient policy of admitting outsiders into the prison.

Until the escape attempt Aug. 21, Arms said, almost anyone could get through the outer gates by saying they were going to the ballfield for a little league game or some such thing and that they had no camera, weapon or alcohol with them. Admittance inside the prison walls was more difficult, but not difficult enough, Arms said.

He said outsiders are admitted into the prison to work with education programs, church groups, Alcoholics Anonymous and other groups. "It is my belief they don't even check these people," he said.

As many as 1,500 inmates are released from their cells in the evening for school classes, religion classes, athletics, showers, movies and television. There are 58 men on duty at night, he said, but only 33 to 35 are actually guarding the inmates.

All these things have been brought to the attention of the prison administration, Arms said, "but the administration won't do anything about them."

Morale among guards is low, he said, saying that 15 guards have quit since the killings last week and he predicted more will quit in the weeks ahead.

Guards are receiving threatening telephone calls at home, he said, and some demonstrators outside the prison last week were taking down license plate numbers of prison personnel leaving the prison.

Although he has an unlisted phone number, he was told by a telephone caller last Wednesday, "We'll kill you and your family."

How his phone number could have got into the hands of persons who would threaten him, he wasn't sure, although he said he believes persons on the outside have received assistance from within the prison.

He moved his wife twice during the weekend — after threatening phone calls, he said.

"They said to me, "Arms, we're going to get you where it hurts the worst. We're going to kill your wife.' "

He said, however, that he is quitting not primarily from fear, but because the prison administration does nothing to correct the faults he sees in the prison system.

"I can't stand to see any more friends of mine carried out of there bloody and beaten," he said, fighting back tears as he mentioned his friendship with the three guards killed in last week's escape attempt.

Arms, who remained with the prison even after having an eye pulled from its socket when attacked by an inmate three years ago, said he will have to give up his house on the prison grounds now that he has quit.

He has no pension, no job prospects. "I have nothing," he said. "I intend to disappear."

Four Hurt In Two Accidents

Four persons received minor injuries in two separate accidents Saturday, the California Highway Patrol has reported.

Judith I. Goldstein, 39, of 2 Neane Street, San Rafael, and her two sons, Daniel, 10, and Wayne 11, were all treated at Marin General Hospital for minor injuries, according to hospital officials.

Mrs. Goldstein was northbound on Highway 101 south of the Coleman overpass at 4 p.m. when her car and a car driven by John David Datsun, 28, of 600 King Street, Petaluma, collided. The Goldstein car then went into the outside railing, patrolmen reported.

Lilian Y. Ambrosini of 714 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield, was to see her own doctor for a minor facial cut suffered when her car hit the center divider of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at 11:25 a.m., patrolmen reported.

Tax-Free Stores

Hearings Asked On Master Plan

The City-County Planning Council has asked each Marin supervisor to chair a series of public hearings on the proposed countywide master plan.

Anne Ellinwood, council chairman, asked the board to review the proposed timetable at its weekly meeting tomorrow. At least one hearing would be held in each supervisorial district.

In a letter to the board, she asked that Supervisor Michael Wornum chair a meeting at 8 p.m. Sept. 2 in Tamalpais High School for Southern Marin residents.

She proposed that Supervisor John F. McInnis conduct the meeting for San Rafael, Larkspur and Corte Madera residents at 8 p.m. Sept. 30 in the auditorium of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. building in San Rafael.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste would chair the North Marin session at 8 p.m. Oct. 6 in the Novato Community House.

Board chairman Louis H. Baar would lead the discussion for West Marin residents at 8 p.m. Oct. 14 in West Marin School at Point Reyes Station.

The hearing for Ross Valley residents would be conducted by Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. at 8 p.m. Oct. 21 at Sir Francis Drake High School.

The council also proposed a countywide symposium on the plan at Dominican College from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 30.

The plan, a 144-page volume entitled "Can the Last Place Last?", is available from the county planning department at $5 a copy. A large map prepared with the document is free.

In a report prepared last week, the council pinpointed three suggestions in the proposed plan as probably being the most controversial.

These included the suggestion for a national parkway to link the Golden Gate Bridge with Point Reyes National Seashore, proposals to limit population growth to 60,000 persons per decade through 1990 — 33 per cent less than the so-called unrestrained free market growth — and greater economic self-sufficiency through more industry to provide hometown jobs, more tourism and other changes.

Charter Asks To Help Youths

NEW YORK (UPI)—A charter airline has requested permission from the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) to ferry hundreds of stranded young Americans from England to the United States without cost.

A spokesman for Overseas National Airways (ONA) the charter line, said the company wanted to do its part to bring home as many of the youths as possible, as seating space permits, in order to protect the industry from a bad reputation.

The young people, most of them students, were stranded in England when they learned the return portions of their round-trip tickets were no good. They had purchased the tickets from the University Students Association or American Union of Students in New York. Both agencies are under investigation by the State Department.

Explosion Rips B Of A Branch

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UPI) —Edinburgh castle closed some of its royal apartments to the public today because of Saturday night's double explosion three floors below where the Scottish crown jewels are kept.

Police at first said the explosion appeared to have been caused by a faulty boiler. They said there was no attempt made to steal the crown jewels.

But Sunday, a spokesman for the Scottish services of the department of the environment said it appeared the bombs had been planted in public rest rooms under the tea room.

The rest rooms were demolished and the tea room was heavily damaged. There also was considerable damage to exhibits in regimental museum rooms, the spokesman said.

Blast Evidence Sent To Federal Labs

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Evidence has been sent to federal laboratories in Washington in an effort to identify the explosive used in a blast which shattered the Department of Corrections headquarters.

William Bertolani of the U.S. Treasury Department said Sunday that about 700 miscellaneous items had been turned up in the investigation and forwarded to the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division Laboratory.

"This should pinpoint what type of explosive was used but it appears to have been dynamite," Bertolani said.

Damage was estimated at near $150,000 in three explosions early Saturday at Department of Corrections offices in Sacramento and San Francisco and a state Department of Rehabilitation office in San Mateo.

Anonymous letters and telephone calls linked the Sacramento and San Francisco blasts to the underground Weatherman organization and said they were "in defense of George Jackson," a San Quentin inmate who was killed a week ago during an escape attempt.

Authorities now plan to interview employes in the 17-floor state office building in Sacramento where the corrections department offices are housed in hopes of obtaining additional information about the blasts. The department is on the sixth floor.

San Francisco police said a device planted in a three-foot high crawlway above a false accoustical tile ceiling wrecked a psychiatric clinic in the Ferry Building operated by the Corrections Department for parolees.

At San Mateo, the main front door of the office was blown off and most interior walls of the one-story structure were flattened. The Department of Rehabilitation provides vocational training for the handicapped and is not related to the prison system.

No 'Black Box' Carried In Crash That Killed 31

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — A Hungarian Ilyushin 18 turboprop airliner which crashed into the sea Saturday night while approaching Copenhagen airport did not carry a flight recorder, the head of a Hungarian investigation team said today.

Thirty-one of 34 persons aboard were killed when the weekly Oslo-Budapest Malev Airlines flight plunged into the water off Kastrup airport. The survivors, a Norwegian woman, her East German mother-in-law and an East German man, were said by a hospital spokesman to be out of danger.

Alexander Huevos, head of a 10-member Hungarian investigation team which arrived Sunday, said the Soviet-built plane, contrary to what Danish aviation authorities at first believed, did not carry a "black box" flight recorder.

Huevos said Sunday after a brief inspection of the wreck submerged in 42 feet of water eight miles from the airport: "We have no clue as to what happened. There could be hundreds of reasons for the crash."

The three survivors were all seated in the rear of the airplane. They were Mrs. Gerda Meisner, 24, of Norway, her mother-in-law, Mrs. Martha Schneider, 61, of East Germany, and Juergen Herman 31, East Germany.

Herman told police he recalls a violent bump and saw water coming into the plane.

"I called for a friend who was sitting next to me but then decided to get out quick through a hole where the tail had been damaged," he said. "I guess it was my good luck I was sitting in the rear after all the front seats had been taken before I boarded in Oslo."

Herman said he heard Mrs. Meisner calling for help in the water.

"I got over and helped her and the other woman (Mrs. Schneider) to the wreck and shortly after we were picked up by a rubber dinghy from a hydrofoil boat."

Supervisors Face Heavy Agenda

Staff members will advise the Marin County Board of Supervisors tomorrow that it should hire more employees and make a complicated series of budget adjustments as a result of recently enacted state changes in welfare and Medi-Cal laws.

The report by Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella and others will be a major item on what Campanella called one of the heaviest agendas ever faced by the board of supervisors. The board will meet at 9 a.m. in the Civic Center.

Other items facing the board tomorrow include a decision on recruiting a new county administrator, choosing a new public works director, setting the countywide tax rate and final 1971-72 budget, a hearing on the controversial Strawberry Cove apartment plans of developer Paul J. Broman, and discussion of human rights commission requests for investigation of county housing authority and redevelopment agency closed meetings.

Campanella will report to the supervisors that changes in the welfare, Medi-Cal and county employees' retirement budgets will permit net reductions of $340,000 from the preliminary budget approved in June, thus trimming more than 5 cents from the property tax rate, despite the additional hirings required.

The reductions were possible because the supervisors and department heads left ample contingencies in the accounts during budget discussions, bracing themselves for steep increases in welfare and medical care costs.

In his nine-page report, Campanella recommended hiring five eligibility workers in the department of public social services, and one more deputy in the district attorney's office to handle the increased workload imposed by state law changes.

Medi-Cal changes will permit reduction of one eligibility worker in the department of health services, but require two additional eligibility workers in social services, Campanella found.

All the changes would take effect Oct. 1.

Campanella also will pass along a report from County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell that actuarial surveyswill make it possible for the county to reduce from 10.95 per cent to 9.14 per cent its contributions to the retirement fund — a savings of $214,331.

The supervisors' agenda lists a total of 49 items for action or discussion.

Agreement On Cemetery Pact

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Tentative agreement has been reached in a 12-week cemetery strike which has postponed the burial of 1,100 bodies.

The 235 greenskeepers and gravediggers are to vote Tuesday on ratification of a proposed contract. Terms were being kept secret until the union votes on ratification.

"Our executive board will recommend acceptance at a general membership meeting Tuesday night," said Maurice Fitzgerald, secretary of Cemetery Workers Local 265, which represents workers at 10 cemeteries in nearby Colma and one in Palo Alto.

Julie, Pat At White House

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif (UPI)—Julie Nixon Eisenhower and first lady Pat Nixon arrived at the White House in Washington Sunday where Julie will recuperate from her broken toe.

Connie Stuart, Mrs. Nixon's staff director, said the two went to Washington after the first lady spent a few days with Julie at her home in Atlantic Beach, Fla., following the mishap.

Mrs. Stuart said Mrs. Nixon thought it would be better to take care of Julie at the White House, rather than her apartment which is upstairs over a garage.

NAVE PATROLA CLOWNS AT PARADE

A crowd of about 2,000 watched with delight Saturday at the San Anselmo Country Fair Days Parade as the Nave Patrola went through a comedy drill routine. An order of "to the rear march" caused a mass tumble in front of the city hall.

(Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

SERIOUS BUSINESS — There were no smiles as the Petaluma Police Assistance League Color Guard marched down San Anselmo Avenue in Saturday's Country Fair Days Parade. The color guard was followed by a drill team also composed of girls from Petaluma.

BICYCLISTS — The San Anselmo Homeowners Association was represented by cyclists dressed in turn-of-the-century costumes appropriate for the Country Fair Days theme of Saturday's celebration in San Anselmo.

OLD TIMER — Joe Bruster and his horse were reminiscent of the Old West in the Country Fair Days Parade as fancy steps were executed for the crowd.

Big Blaze At School Held Set

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (UPI)—Fire believed intentionally set heavily damaged a private Baptist school near here today, only a few hours after Gov. Bob Scott ordered National Guardsmen to help protect Henderson County's 14 public schools against arsonists.

Authorities said fire, similar to two other recent school burnings, destroyed the main classroom buildings at the Fruitland Baptist Bible Institute, about seven miles east of Hendersonville. No guards were posted at the school.

A military police company of the National Guard was activated Sunday to put down the rash of apparent arsons which destroyed about half a million dollars in property at two schools. There also was another attempted arson, thwarted by private guards.

Maj. Gen. Ferd Davis, state adjutant general, said members of the Guard's 220th MP Company will post a 24-hour guard on the schools for an indefinite period of time.

Freeze Answers At Farm Office

Residents of Marin County may obtain answers to questions on operation and interpretation of the federal wage-price freeze from the Marin County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The Marin County ASCS Office is located at 2403 Professional Drive, Santa Rosa.

County officials said the office will not handle complaints or appeals and will only answer questions about which it has been given specific information.

Normal function of ASCS County offices is to administer farm action programs of the Department of Agriculture on the local level.

Sardinian Resort A Royal Success

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

PORTO CERVO, Sardinia (UPI) — Europe's most ambitious international resort, Sardinia's Costa Smeralda (Emerald Coast) serves as a Bermuda-size principality for Aga Khan IV, spiritual leader of the Ismaili Moslem sect who was a prince without a realm 10 years ago.

Although Karim Aga Khan is not a constitutional ruler in the sense of Rainier III of Monaco or Franz Josef II of Liechtenstein, he holds controlling interest in a consortium which owns 35 miles of coastline where phosphorescent green waters lap pinkish beaches set against a backdrop of serrated purple mountain ranges.

John Duncan Miller, former head of the World Bank, was the first visitor to realize the potential of this almost uninhabited, unfarmed coast as a sportsman's paradise in the late 1950s. Karim's half-brother, the late Patrick Guiness, visited the area independently in 1961 and transmitted his enthusiasm to the young Aga Khan.

These three men and five others bought the land from descendants of Sard shepherds and founded the consortium in which builders of villas and owners of apartments have since been given voting shares. The Aga Khan, who owns about 40 per cent of the shares, has overseen every major detail of the coast' subsequent development.

By 1963, the first hotel had been built and a village center with necessary shops and services established at Porto Cervo, one of the supreme yachting harbors of the Mediterranean. Eight years and $80 million later, four other hotels and 400 villas and apartments have been constructed, making Costa Smeralda a goldmine for such European architects as Jacques Coulle and his son Savin, Luigi Vietti, Michele Busiri Visi, and Raymond Martin. The consortium controls the sale of lands to prevent overcrowding and limits the size of all structures and their elevations to assure unobstructed sea views for all residents.

Of late, American development planning firms have played a larger role in Costa Smeralda's growth. Interplan Inc., Economic Research Associates, Sasaki, Dawson and DeMay of Waterbury, Mass., and urbanist Robert O'Donnell of Denver are among the contributors to a master plan which will see the consortium through 1985 and perhaps the end of the century.

"We are greatly indebted to America for expert advice in planning our project," says the Aga Khan. "Americans have the technical knowledge we needed. They confirmed our original planning as sound, but they put it into perspective as far as future projects are concerned. Costa Smeralda is the last place in the Mediterranean that is not crowded and we plan to keep it that way."

Costa Smeralda got off to a slow start but expansion has mushroomed since 1968 with Italians, French, British, Americans, Swiss, Belgians and Swedes arriving in large numbers with capital to invest in real estate. Another 200-bed hotel is scheduled to be built at spectacular Pevero Beach at the edge of the new 18-hole golf course —a masterpiece by American designer Robert Trent Jones.

"Our original expectations did not seem to be realized for the first few years, but we at the top could see the roots whose growth was not visible to others," observes the 33-year-old Aga Khan, who has agreed to the development of only 10 per cent of the Costa Smeralda land area to date. "So we do not see this year's phenomenal growth as an explosion —we knew it was developing."

British Princess Alexandra and her husband, Angus Ogilvy, are the ranking villa owners, and Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon have been summer visitors for six straight years. Among the 1,000 yachts which berth in Cervo annually are those of Fiat tycoon Gianni Agnelli, Count Giovanni Volpi, and mineral water millionaire Bruno Mentasti. Tony Curtis and Kirk Douglas are renting villas and Frank Sinatra, singer Charles Aznavour, and Elizabeth and Richard Burton are frequent visitors.

The resort has an eight-month season but the Hotel Cervo is open year-round. At no time are there the crowds and hectic pace that characterize the seething resorts of Marbella, St. Tropez, Cannes, Monte Carlo and Capri. Vacationers who have wearied of these Mediterranean meccas have found Costa Smeralda a welcome antidote — "the last paradise in Europe".

After initial fears concerning land speculation on the Costa Smeralda proved unfounded, the governments of Italy and Sardinia —which is a semiautonomous Italian island — have provided roads and other improvements, low interest on construction money, and generous tax concessions. In return the consortium has improved the lot of Sardinians.

Thousands of Sards have been given employment and training in hotel services. Several new industries have been established including an airline to mainland Europe.

The community laughs at published reports of danger from Sardinian bandits who have kidnapped a number of well-to-do Sards for ransom in the past year. Ample police protection is evident on the highways around Cervo and outlying hotels. Residents and visitors to the Aga Khan's realm have no more serious concerns than whether to yacht, swim, snorkel, scuba dive, water ski, ride, tennis or golf away the sunblessed days.

Man Jailed In Hub Robbery

A 21-year-old San Rafael man was arrested during the weekend in connection with a San Anselmo robbery.

Jerry Rae Wade, 12 Ross Street, was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $9,375 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

The robbery was said to have occurred Saturday at 3:50 a.m. at the residence of Charles V. Dunn, 22, of 254 Redwood Road. Dunn told police that Wade and David Dennison, 21, of no known address, came to a sliding door and asked for dope or money.

When Dunn said he had neither, the two men forced their way in, according to the police report. Dunn said Wade put his hand in his pocket and simulated a gun. Dunn told police the two men took a $40 stereo and left.

Wade was arrested by Sgt. J. Souza at 11:50 p.m. Saturday at the Mayfair Market on Fourth Street in San Rafael. Police said they are still looking for Dennison.

Birth Is Called Dangerous Time

CHICAGO (UPI)—Birth is one of the most dangerous moments in life, according to a Harvard University Medical School physician.

All of us have a "touch of mental retardation or other blight," as a result of slight brain damage at birth, Dr. Abraham Towbin reports in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Birth," said Towbin, "is the most endangering experience to which most individuals are ever exposed. For the fetus, hypoxic and mechanical injury to the central nervous system, in some measure, is inescapable. Severe birth injury is a particularly imminent threat to the premature."

Fractured Skull In Auto Crash

A 17-year-old San Rafael youth was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital after the car he was riding in today struck the curbing on Highway 101 in Terra Linda and flipped upside down.

Hospital officials said Donald C. Machado of 309 North San Pedro Road suffered a fractured skull, cuts, scrapes and bruises in the accident.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Machado was a passenger in a car driven by Gary A. Reinhardt, 17, of 2 Leona Drive, San Rafael.

Reinhardt was northbound on Highway 101 at 12:10 a.m. and struck the west curbing when he was unable to negotiate the turn at the Freitas Parkway exit, highway patrol officers said.

He was treated for a scraped hip at the hospital.

Only 376 Appeals By Property Owners

Only 376 Marin County property owners are appealing their property assessments this year, the smallest number of protests since the assessment appeals board was established in 1967.

The record number of protests, 1,424, came in 1967. Thereafter, appeals totaled 624 in 1968, 446 in 1969, and 846 in 1970.

Last Thursday was the deadline for property owners to file protests with the assessment board of appeals at the Civic Center.

The appeals board, headed by Chairman Julius H. Selinger, will begin hearing the appeals on Sept. 24 in the board of supervisors chambers at the Civic Center. The hearing will continue each Friday thereafter until all appeals have been heard.

Of the 376 protests filed this year, the Marin County assessor has already agreed to reduce assessments in 101 cases, leaving 275 contested cases that will come before the appeals board.

Brisk Ocean Wind Causes Blackout

TORRANCE (UPI) — A snappy ocean breeze caused a 30-minute power blackout here and in Gardena Sunday evening when a high-voltage line was sheared by an airborne tree branch.

Nearly 1,200 residences and businesses were without power until crews from the Southern California Edison Co. patched the electrical cable at 6 p.m. Onshore winds reached 20 miles per hour in the south bay area.

FIREMEN QUELL BLAZE

Firemen fight a stubborn brush and grass fire on a Greenbrae hillside. The fire was started yesterday in two places behind La Cresta in the Kentfield Fire District and burned into the Larkspur Fire District, consuming 1.5 acres before 37 firemen and 10 trucks from the two districts brought it under control, along with the help from neighbors. One Larkspur fire truck, going around a parked car at Bon Air and Magnolia Avenue hit a sign post doing minor damage to the fire truck.

Brinks Bandits, Eight Others Said Given Reduced Sentences

BOSTON (UPI)—Eleven persons convicted of serious crimes, including three men found guilty of a $542,000 Brink's robbery, were given suspended sentences by a Superior Court judge here, the Boston Globe reported today.

A convicted stock swindler, Michael J. Raymond, told a Senate subcommittee on investigations in Washington under the assumed name of George White that Superior Court Judge Vincent R. Brogna gave him a suspended sentence in 1962 in return for a $60,000 bribe, the newspaper said in a copyrighted story.

Raymond said Brogna was friends with Judge Edward J. DeSaulnier Jr. and two bail bondsmen, Nathan and Charles Baker, all of whom were involved in the bribe. DeSaulnier and Brogna denied the charges.

Chief Justice G. Joseph Tauro scheduled a closed-door hearing in state Supreme Court Tuesday on the charges.

However, officials in the Middlesex County District Attorney's Office reported the request for suspended sentence had come from them. Raymond's case, therefore, was not included in the Globe's figures. The 11 men cited as having been given suspended sentences by Brogna received them against recommendations made by the prosecution.

Among them were five Massachusetts men who pleaded guilty to the attempted robbery of the Kay jewelry store in Lynn, Mass. They were Edward J. McAleney, 54, of Hingham; Michael D. Reddy Jr., 29, and Rocco F. Novello, 32, both of Boston; Philip J. Cresta Jr., 39, of Lynn; and Charles A. Dominico, 35, of Braintree.

Cresta, Novello and Dominoco later were accused of the Dec. 28, 1968, robbery of a Brink's armored truck

San Francisco Man Is Booked

A 20-year-old man was arrested in San Anselmo yesterday on a robbery warrant issued in San Francisco.

David Roger Esola of San Francisco was booked into Marin County Jail on a warrant carrying $1,500 bail and was scheduled to appear in San Francisco Municipal Court, Sept. 9.

Police said he was involved in a dispute at the residence of Leslie Shortall, 663 Oak Avenue, and the outstanding warrant was discovered when they ran a routine check on him.

Thousands Homeless In Storm

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Hundreds of families in two New Jersey towns hard hit by flood waters from tropical storm Doria were homeless today while officials mopped up the mess left by the storm from the South to Canada. In New England power was restored to thousands of customers hit by the storm

Some 300 families in Bound Brook and Manville, located where the Raritan River hit a record crest Saturday, were being housed and fed in local high schools while waiting for flood waters to recede.

Officials in both towns said portions of the towns remained barricaded.

At the same time, an official of the Elizabethtown Water Co., which serves Elizabeth, Edison, Franklin and other Union County towns, said the Bound Brook plant was being repaired and that normal service was "hoped for" today.

Some 10,000 customers were totally without water, and the official, Walter Money a vice-president, said the company was still recommending that the 100,000 customers served by the plant boil their drinking water.

Downed tree limbs and power lines were the only indication Doria had visited New England as fair skies and warm temperatures returned to the six-state region Saturday and Sundav.

Across New England all main power transmission lines were back in service Sunday, according to power company spokesman. Only a few scattered power outages were reported, most of them caused by breaks in individual customer lines.

Two New Haven, Conn., buildings, Wilbur Cross High School and the 23-story headquarters building of the Knights of Columbus, sustained extensive damage in the storm.

At the height of the storm, as Doria moved up through western and central Massachusetts and up into New Hampshire and Maine, power company linemen throughout the region were out in force, repairing lines downed by tree limbs succumbing to Doria's gale force winds that occasionally gusted to almost 75 miles an hour.

The only known fatality from the storm was that of Dana Johnson, 18, of Saugus, Mass., who drowned in Marblehead after rescuing two boys who had been swept off a rock at Preston Beach.

MUSIC REVIEW

Baroque Concert By Chamber Group

By ROBERT NESS

The Bach-to-Mozart chamber group presented a predominantly Baroque concert yesterday afternoon to a near capacity crowd attending the 11th annual Mozart Festival at Stolte Grove near Mill Valley.

Von Weber's Quintet for Clarinet and Strings, featuring Frealon Bibbins, was the program's only non-Baroque work. Similar to Von Weber's other pieces for solo clarinet, the quintet is technically demanding and beautifully illustrates the instrument's wide range of expressive qualities.

Bibbins regarded the technical demands as mere child's play — tossing them off with uncanny ease. Utilizing every variety of tone color, dynamic shading and textural contrast, he focused his attentions on the expressive aspects of the work.

Whether in the driving allegro, in the sublime adagio, in the jesting scherzo or in the whimsical rondo, Bibbins's performance was a showcase of sensitive musical interpretation coupled with supernatural clarinet virtuosity.

William Pynchon and Donna Salarpi, violins, Asbjorn Finess, viola, and Teressa Adams, cello, complemented Bibbins with the most careful and sensitive ensemble playing of the afternoon.

The Baroque works, while not reaching the quality of ensemble playing found in the quintet, were well done and evoked enthusiastic response from the audience.

Raymond Duste, whose artistry on the oboe is well known to Bay Area audiences, performed a concerto for oboe and strings by Tomaso Albinoni. Duste's playing displayed the sensitivity that has become synonymous with his name. The recitative-like slow movement was an exquisite example of a truly beautiful oboe sound.

Edward Haug and Ralph Lacanna performed two double trumpet concertos by Manfredini and Vivaldi providing a brilliance representative of the Italian Baroque.

Fire Guts Ward Room At Hospital

A fire of undetermined origin gutted a two-bed ward room in Marin General Hospital's mental health wing Saturday.

The fire — which broke out at about 12:55 p.m. — did approximately $5,000 damage to the room, according to Ray K. Bolinger, hospital administrator.

The 18 patients in the unit were evacuated to unit B of the wing, but were returned to their rooms yesterday, Bolinger said.

Staff Members fought the fire with hospital fire-fighting equipment until the arrival of the Kentfield fire department. The entire unit was filled with smoke.

We've Had Too Much Of The Hate-Spouters

The throng that repeatedly disrupted the California State Fair in Sacramento last week — denying fairgoers the right to enjoy themselves in peace — was made up largely of our "new voters." At least, nearly all of those arrested were in the 18-to-21 age group.

The throng that marched around the Marin Civic Center last week, bearing banners reading "AFT Means Angela's Freedom Today," was made up of teachers who have been instructing these new voters.

The throng outside San Quentin Prison was inflamed by charges of "racist plots" and of wholesale beating and shooting of prisoners by guards — irresponsible charges made by attorneys who are within the same age group as most of those AFT marchers.

But there is a common tie.

THE MARCHING TEACHERS, the hate-spouting lawyers, and the leaders of the Sacramento youth who are their immature followers, had several things in common:

They had no respect for the rights of others, however much they might pretend to be espousing human rights.

They had no regard for justice, however much they might declaim about it.

They cared nothing for fairness or for truth.

And they displayed their appalling lack of intelligence by offering nothing except incitement to violence.

WE HAVE HAD TOO MUCH of this sort of rot. Far too much!

Self-proclaimed intellectuals have been warning us that a period of repression threatens the United States.

If it does, those who don't know the difference between dissent and anarchy are responsible.

No intelligent American wants anyone's rights suppressed. But any intelligent American knows that his rights do not include doing whatever he damn well pleases, regardless of its effect on others.

ONLY FOOLS imagine freedom is a license to disrupt, to destroy, to kill.

Only fools howl about protection of human rights, pollution of the environment, about class and racial discrimination while they do the very things of which they accuse others.

These hate-spouters deny society the right to orderly process. They deny everyone except themselves the right to free speech.

They discriminate in countless ways against those who differ from them.

They lack the wit to recognize that they are not the intellectual leaders as they imagine, but are in fact mere stupid misfits, who show by their urging of violence how bereft they are of intelligence.

IF REPRESSION comes for all of us, it will be because we failed to control those few who are unable or unwilling to participate in an orderly but free society.

That must not happen.

"Ice! Just lousy ice! You're trying to starve me to death!"

Too Many Of Nader's 'Facts' Don't Hold Up If Checked

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Excitement bubbled for months as California awaited release of a report on the state by a team of Ralph Nader's "raiders."

Anyone armed with 23 researchers and 14 months to study the state was bound to come up with hot stuff, we thought. With Nader behind the work, we assumed, it was going to be a lulu when dropped on the state last week.

IT WAS A LULU — of sloppy research larded over with thick layers of preconceived notions of how the Establishment works.

If an egg-packing plant handled its eggs as carelessly as the "raiders" handled their facts, you would have the biggest omelette in the world.

Their report detailed hundreds of cases of what were purported to be instances of public officials conniving with developers to rape this fair state, and most of the cases cited appeared convincing.

But whenever we checked the facts, or the report wandered into a field we knew, we found it so riddled with errors that we ended up doubting its entire credibility.

CALIFORNIA IS a highly imperfect state, but somehow we were not convinced that the "raiders" had found out why, or had come up with any realistic solutions.

Typical was a claim that Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, shared a Sacramento apartment with a lobbyist for a utility while Bagley was chairman of the revenue and taxation committee. But Bagley noted that this was in 1967 — a year before he chaired the committee and a year after the lobbyist had left the utility.

Another was the scathing attack on this area's Regional Water Quality Control Board. The attack, claiming the board had taken "no sanctions" against polluters, was wholly unwarranted, and clearly without benefit of any objective examination of the performance by the board and its overworked staff.

In numerous other places, the report repeatedly fouled up names and dates. Details generally were handled indifferently.

WE ALSO WERE disappointed that Nader's team turned up so little that had not appeared before in the press. Most of it was presented as new, however.

New to us, for that matter, was the claim that the Golden Gate Bridge District (called "authority" in the report) was subject to "severe criticism four years ago for padded expense accounts and inattention to duty." We recall many valid criticisms of the district, but not this one.

The report noted that the Boeing Corp. proposed a $3 million hydrofoil for sale to the district, while "a similar model" cost $700,000 in Copenhagen. The researchers ignored the difference — the Boeing model would carry 300 passengers, many times more than the European version.

THE REPORT, almost 1,000 pages long, could have been far briefer if its real purpose was as a showcase for the "raiders" prejudices. In any event, it would have benefited from an editor's pencil. Every shred of information the team dug up apparently landed in the report, with no evident attempt to leave out trivia.

Californians are stirred up temporarily by press accounts of the report, but this will pass. Continued public interest, however, will depend largely on getting the public to read the report.

But only the most dedicated masochist would wade through it.

Its only place may be as a textbook — but it would need several hundred more pages to list the errata.

San Rafael Needs Downtown Open Space

In reply to article in yesterday's (Aug. 25) paper: "County Puts Off Selling Square Site."

As I passed the noisy, busy wrecking apparatus yesterday, I paused with my son in the heat of the warm August afternoon and thought "I hope the powers to be will withhold action on our little downtown San Rafael park until the people who buy, eat, snack, and meet their children have a chance to give voice."

I am a newcomer to San Rafael. Our young family decided to make our home in San Rafael seven Christmases ago. As a prospective resident of this community, I naturally first wanted to see and drive through San Rafael — what kind of a town would we have? One of the first things I remember was the pace or feeling of the Fourth and Fifth Street areas. Fourth Street had retained some of the warmth and peace of a small town with the lovely park area, big trees and coolness in the heat of the day, and something lovely to look at when it was winter and raining — the greeness of the lawns and the spreading, shading trees. But along with this, San Rafael gives us chic clothing shops, high quality furniture and decorating stores, imported merchandise, bakery facilities, salon shops, and a representative cosmopolitan boutique. Fifth Street has developed into something to really be proud. Our large bank buildings and offices, our Old Mission and further west our new municipal structures and lovely churches and library. Intermingled within walking distance we have our dentists, doctors and professional services. Let's give it some thought before we take away our open space in downtown San Rafael! Can we compromise — retain beauty and good taste and then locate an acceptable buyer for a portion of the property?

Mrs. RICHARD GRIFFRA
San Rafael.

Our Society Divided Into Two Camps

Are we a community of equal law, or a "dog eat dog" society?

This is the question that came to mind, after reading the article (I-J, Aug. 12) of the East Bay publishing concern that advertised one open position and had 200 applicants, many with qualifications much higher than the job called for — salary meant little to most of them, all they wanted was a job. This happened at a time when other people, in organized groups, walked off their jobs demanding more for themselves.

No economy can survive in a rigged market, and no "Protective association" representing only one class of people can long endure.

Yet, politics and legislative permissiveness have blinded the people to see the division of their rights, legally, fall into two camps — the "organized groups" and the other people.

Let's hope, following the freeze period, we can have legislation that will bring about the needed corrections, so the benefits to one group are not charged against and fed off the others.

WASHINGTON REPORT

Officials Defied Public Records Law, Nader's Raiders Assert

By BENJAMIN SHORE

WASHINGTON — In 1964, California's attorney general launched an investigation of a Kern County land development known as California City, a Mojave Desert subdivision which boasted, among other things, of sitting on top of a secret underground lake of fresh water.

In 1969, a Fresno newspaper reporter asked the attorney general's office for a copy of the report of the investigation. The reporter was told the investigation was still incomplete, and he got nothing.

Key portions of the still-secret report appear in Ralph Nader's massive study of land use in California. The study was released last week.

Nader's Raiders were shocked to learn that although California's elected attorney general had decided California City was a fraud, the public, which was getting fleeced, was denied a look at the report. Suppression of an official report which could have saved many citizens from being defrauded is a recurring theme in the Nader study.

HOW DID NADER'S task force get the attorney general's report? Robert Fellmeth, Nader's project director, isn't talking.

Fellmeth said that the 25-member task force, which spent 15 months on the project, could not have completed its study if it had been forced to rely only on the California Public Records Act of 1969 to gain access to records.

City clerks told them certain records simply didn't exist; Fellmeth's crew got them anyway. County officials falsely said certain public records could be released only on a court order. Key state records, which under the 1969 law should have been made available, were "missing" or "presently out of file" or "incomplete".

Fellmeth said that despite the bureaucrats' instinct to keep things secret, the task force actually had a fairly easy time openly plucking facts from official files.

"Agencies would open up files to us not knowing a key document was in the file, or not knowing that a fairly routine document actually was the link we were looking for to prove our case," Fellmeth said.

"We were pulling out so many files and asking so many questions — there were 25 of us all over the state — that they really couldn't keep track of us."

WHY WERE STATE officials so "sloppy" in their attempts to thwart Nader's Raiders? "Because no one really had ever gone looking for this information before," Fellmeth answered.

"In the state archives in Sacramento, there can't be more than two or three reporters a year who bother to shift through the files of campaign contributions and lobbyist reports. It's empty down in those halls."

The California Public Records Act, which was patterned after the federal Freedom of Information Act of 1967, is supposed to make public all records that aren't covered by certain exemptions. Fellmeth's investigators, when told by officials that certain information wasn't public, would ask which exemption was being claimed.

"Most of them (the officials) didn't know what we were talking out," Fellmeth said. "They didn't know anything about the law. They just withheld information out of instinct."

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Long Night Of Confrontation Ending In Promising Dawn

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's forecast that after the long night of confrontation we would soon be "entering the era of negotiation" is being realized more rapidly and more widely that most believed possible.

The agreement on West Berlin, climaxing 17 months of painstaking talks between the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and France, shows how much the climate for negotiation has improved.

One successful negotiation helps lead to another.

The settlement on the Berlin issue makes possible the completion of the new Bonn-Moscow treaty resolving most of the unfinished business of World War II.

It also leads to another goal of the Soviet Union and the United States — a European security conference designed to bring about a reduction of both NATO and Warsaw Pact forces confronting each other across a divided Europe.

COMPARED TO the state of affairs just before the President made his prediction in January, 1969, the agenda of important negotiation has been widening.

At that time there were no SALT talks. Now a beginning Soviet-U.S. agreement to control the nuclear arms race is in the making.

Then there were no negotialions to avert a renewal of the Arab-Israeli war. Now, largely at the initiative of Sec. of State Rogers, a persistent effort to reopen the Suez is being made.

Then there were no Vietnam negotiations. Now the war is winding down and the machinery for serious talks is available.

Then the United States and Red China were not speaking. Now negotiations are on to normalize diplomatic relations, one of the most significant events in 20 years.

Britain has successfully completed its negotiations to join the Common Market and help create a stronger and more united Western Europe.

I AM NOT suggesting that a tranquil world is just around the corner. But it is evident that the building blocks of a more stable peace than has prevailed at any time since the upheaval of World War II are being put into place.

All of the leaders of the principal powers — Nixon, Mao Tse-tung, Brezhnev and Kosygin, Chancellor Brandt, Prime Minister Heath and President Pompidou — have contributed to the spirit and substance of negotiation which is now beginning to produce dividends.

In part they have each shaped events and to a very large degree events have shaped them.

MAO AND NIXON have both been responding to the realties of today's world.

So have Brezhnev and Kosygin in agreeing to guarantee unimpeded western access toWest Berlin.

Moscow's acceptance of this commitment is a remarkably significant step. It means that the Russians are giving up the ready means which they have used over and over again since 1945 to lacerate the western powers and to cause tension and uncertainty throughout Western Europe. They went so far in 1948 as to blockade Berlin to try to starve its inhabitants into submission. The U.S. airlift broke the blockade.

To give up this instrument of threat can only mean that the Kremlin decided it cannot afford cold-war tension in Europe while China and the United States reduce cold-war tension in Asia.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Peace With Mao, Maybe; But With Labor, No

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — A year ago, Mr. Nixon was here by the sea, giving many hours of his working vacation to the forthcoming congressional elections. The sun shone faithfully every afternoon, and the prospects for November also looked bright — especially since organized labor, long allied with the Democrats, was sounding more footloose, more available to Republican candidates who said the right things about law-and-order and left-wing radicals as the fall campaign began.

The California sun was predictable this week, too, and the President was absorbed once more in studying and courting a political force classified as his enemy in the past. But he could be forgiven for thinking that lasting good relations with Mao Tse-tung seemed more likely than with George Meany.

WHEN HE LEFT San Clemente last year, the President flew back to Washington to give top leaders of American unions the fanciest Labor Day reception in White House history. Meany was the guest of honor, and a couple of weeks later Mr. Nixon shot a round of golf with him at Burning Tree. It all promised great things, like for example a new Republican majority which included workingmen who did not vote on crass issues like paychecks, but on high-minded social questions like knocking heads with the radical hell-raisers.

As we all know now, most union men voted their economic interests. The Democrats held their congressional majorities. Nevertheless, the President can be thankful for small favors. He can be glad he is not trying to hold hands with George Meany and recruit labor votes in this particular fall.

The economy, doggedly ignored as a political issue by the Republicans last year in hopes that it would go away, is officially a matter of concern because the President finally said it was so. George Meany, in his current mood, would no more play golf with Mr. Nixon than he would with Mao himself. Ron Ziegler says repeatedly that the President has plans to have the union officials to another chummy Labor Day reception back at the White House.

Meany, if invited, would have to send regrets, explaining that he was down with apoplexy. Never since the early days of the Eisenhower administration, when Engine Charlie Wilson and other appointees unskilled in Washington's nice-talk were not only settling in for a pleasant big business holiday but were offending labor by admitting it, have relations between the unions and the Republicans been so hostile.

FOR GOOD REASON. The Nixon "New Economic Policy" does indeed give first priority to helping the businessman and the coupon-clipper, rather than the consumer and the workingman. The theory that in the long run, industrial expansion will mean more jobs and better pay is indeed the very "trickle-down" economics decried during Herbert Hoover's day. The stock market reacted favorably to the Nixon package, and that is the more galling to labor, for it directly reflects the fact that dividends remain uncontrolled while a ceiling is placed on wages.

What is most disappointing to the public at large, however, is the way both organized labor and the administration have gone about stating or defending their cases in the crisis. Meany properly called the Nixon move "patently discriminatory," which is merely the truth. But across the country, individual unions prepare for outright defiance of the controls, which is not merely words.

For its part, the administration creates further ill will be asserting that it is only labor leaders who are offended — that "we think there is widespread support among the union membership." That tactic did not work in last year's elections, and won't work now.

What is needed is for labor to observe the law and give the program a chance to take effect. And the administration, which admittedly conceived the emergency program in haste, should quit its efforts at division and respond to this cooperation by making adjustments to even out its controls.

If it does not, then Meany and his comrades have a year to thumb their dictionaries for comments to use when Mr. Nixon comes courting again another year hence, as he surely will, at the start of his re-election campaign.

Aqueduct Project To Bring New Recreation Area To Sonoma

The Sonoma-Marin Acqueduct now means little to residents other than haggling and worry about financing the $88 million project, but thoughts of the recreational aspects of the project to become known as Lake Sonoma should brighten the picture.

The lake, where the Army Corps of Engineers is building roads, will be six miles south of Cloverdale and six miles west of Highway 101 for easy driving distance and access from anywhere in Marin or southern Sonoma.

While the completion date is set for 1979 or 1980, a marvelous new recreational facility is definitely in the future. The lake is expected to attract 1.5 million visitors per year.

MUCH OF THE 17,000 acres in the project will be open to the public for hiking and camping and other activities. In the planning stages are view areas, picnic sties, camp grounds, boat-launching ramps, swimming beaches along with the necessary parking and sanitary facilities. Sections of the reservoir will be zoned for boating, swimming, water skiing and fishing.

Below the dam will be a fish hatchery operated by the state, and the fish and game commission has said it expects to release 3.6 million steelhead trout, silver and king salmon eggs and fingerlings per year. That should make for good fishing.

The dam itself will be 3,000 feet long and made of earth covered with stone on the water side. It will be 319 feet above the present bed of Dry Creek and will have a spillway 100 feet wide, capable of letting 30,000 cubic feet of water pass every second during an emergency.

LAKE SONOMA will have 50 miles of shoreline and normal depths of up to 200 feet. When storing flood water, it could spread to 73 miles of shoreline.

It is expected that 3,200 acres of the east side of the lake will be left in its natural state with the game commission operating it as a wildlife refuge.

Residents of the Russian River area of Sonoma County will be especially looking forward to the dam being put into operation so that the flooding river will no longer be a threat.

Conservationists hope the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors will stick to its guns and prevent land speculation in the area that could result in endless rows of unsightly and ecologically damaging "second home" developments.

While the water districts will continue to wrangle about money, maybe in eight or nine years we'll be relaxing by the lake and trying to remember why.

Six Drivers Sentenced

Six persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Sentenced Thursday by Judge David Menary Jr. were:

Reva Louise Frink, 39, of Alameda, arrested Aug. 21 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $302.

Robert Alex Johnson, 56, of 22 Madrone Court, Fairfax, arrested July 25 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $240.

John William McColgan, 46, of 324 East Strawberry Drive, Mill Valley, arrested Aug. 8 on Tiburon Boulevard, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $360.

Harold Morse Deeming, 63, of 16 Clyde Avenue, San Rafael, arrested Aug. 21 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $200.

Sentenced Aug. 19 by Judge Robert A. Smallman were:

Walter Osman Stortroen, 47, of 2280 Mar East Street, Tiburon, arrested May 20 in Sausalito, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $302.

Clarence Chester Pyper, 74, of Oakland, arrested Aug. 17 on Highway 101, who was ordered to pay a $200 fine or serve five days in Marin County Jail.

Death Penalty Hot Issue In Courts And Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Although most western nations have abandoned the death penalty, moral and legal conflicts surrounding it are still very much alive in the U. S. Congress and the Supreme Court.

The administration recently asked the lawmakers to restore the death sentence to the federal kidnap law if the victim dies as a result of the kidnaping. The death penalty provision was struck down by the high court in 1968.

The court acted in several ways on capital punishment in its 1970-71 term. But in the term starting in October it faces the most basic constitutional question of all: Is the death sentence the kind of "cruel and unusual punishment" forbidden by the 8th Amendment? Four appeals contain this issue.

The 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals made legal history on Dec. 11, 1970, by saying death is cruel and unusual punishment if the crime is rape and the victim's life is not endangered.

Opponents of capital punishment contend it is carried out in a biased manner, and is a relic of barbarism.

"Most who die are black; virtually all are poor and powerless, personally ugly and socially unacceptable," says the American Civil Liberties Union.

Proponents argue that the threat of death deters crime. But no study has shown that states with capital punishment have fewer offenders.

Abolition bills continue to be introduced in state legislatures and Congress now has before it a proposal to stay all executions for two years.

According to Citizens Against Legalized Murder, Inc. (CALM), there are 650 persons on death row in the 36 states whose laws still allow killing by electrocution, gas or hanging for various crimes. Five other states retain the practice in special circumstances.

Of the 650, according to the statistics, 284 are white and 341, non-white. The race of the remaining 25 is not shown.

California has by far the most — (103), of whom 66 are white, 26 black and 2 of unknown race. Florida is next with 77 —25 white, 52 black. The figures for other deep-south states:

Alabama 29 —9 white and 20 black; Georgia 31 —5 white and 22 black; Louisiana 47 —8 white, 38 black, 1 unknown; Mississippi 6 —4 black, 2 unknown.

While murder and rape are the principal capital offenses in the states, Georgia and Alabama each have on death row a man convicted of robbery; and Texas, one convicted of armed robbery. California has condemned a man for kidnaping and three former life termers for assault.

Federal laws impose the death sentence for aircraft hijacking, espionage, treason and several other crimes. Terrorist bombings in which fatalities occur was added by Congress in 1970.

No execution has taken place since June 2, 1967, because of stays granted by lower courts based on test cases in the Supreme Court. The high court set aside 39 death sentences on June 28, 1971, but about 120 capital cases remain on the docket.

State courts were instructed to reassess the sentences in light of several Supreme Court decisions, notably the Witherspoon and Jackson rulings of 1968.

Witherspoon held that individuals with scruples against the death sentence cannot automatically be kept off juries but must be questioned to determine whether in spite of their views they can return an unbiased verdict.

In the Jackson decision the court invalidated the provision in the Lindbergh anti-kidnap law that only a jury could impose the death penalty. The opinion found the law impinged on a defendant's right (1) to a jury trial and (2) not to incriminate himself by pleading guilty. The natural tendency would be to plead guilty or waive a jury trial in order to be sure of staying alive, the court said.

Justice Potter Stewart, who could well swing the vote in the new test cases, spoke for the majority in both instances.

On the other hand, the court at the end of the 1970-71 term tended to shore up the death penalty by ruling:

—That juries have unfettered discretion to pronounce life or death sentences, without guidelines of any kind, such as a condemned person's susceptibility to rehabilitation or his family situation.

—Guilt and punishment can be determined at a single jury sitting. Several states stage trials with a separate proceeding to impose punishment after guilt has been determined. But the court said this procedure is not mandatory.

San Rafael Board To Eye Policies

The San Rafael Board of Education will adopt revisions to its policies concerning school-community relations and set guidelines for its citizens advisory committee at its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the school district office of D Street.

The board also will act on the appointments, leaves and resignations of 36 teachers and approve new courses for the adult education program.

$441,000 Paid

The Independent-Journal reported incorrectly Friday that California Development Co. paid $41,000 to the Marin County Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency for 167 acres of ridgelands above Marin City. The correct amount was $441,000.

Visiting Home In Mill Valley

By MOLLY MARIN

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Foster in Mill Valley has been Mrs. John Campbell of Beaver Dam, Wis., Mrs. Foster's cousin. She came to see the Fosters at this time because she was unable to come for their golden wedding celebration on June 25.

The Fosters were married on June 25, 1921, in Healdsburg and have lived in Mill Valley since 1923 and in the same home on Hillside Avenue for 41 years.

MAKING THEIR home in Mill Valley are newlyweds Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Hames. The bride is the former Mrs. Barbara Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Dupuis. They were married Aug. 13 at a small family ceremony at St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere followed by a buffet reception for 100 guests at the Dupuis' Belvedere home.

MRS. JOHN R. MOORE of Belvedere and her daughters Nancy and Robin have been traveling in Hawaii. They spent a few days in Honolulu before going on to Maui. In the fall Nancy will return to the University of Nevada and Robin will enter the University of California.

Charles Hueg Weds Stephanie Decker

The Presbyterian Church of Novato was the setting Saturday for the wedding of Stephanie Decker and Charles Donald Hueg.

Stephanie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Decker of Novato. She chose as her only attendant, Mrs. Mary Bradshaw of Rohnert Park as matron of honor.

Philip Ziedman of Berkeley served as best man, and ushers were the bride's brother, William John Decker Jr. of Novato, and Rhys Williams of Mill Valley.

A reception was held at the bride's parents home. The couple will live in Chino where the bridegroom is employed at the California Institue for Men.

The bride was graduated from San Marin High School and is employed at Novato Manor Convalescent Hospital She is also the sister of Ronald Scott Decker of Sausalito and Peter and Edward Decker of Novato. Mrs. Walter Peterson of Sausalito is her local grandmother.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hueg of San Anselmo are the bridegroom's parents, and he is the brother of Sharon Laidlaw of Hong Kong. He was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and attended College of Marin.

Popularity For Skirts Returns

Skirts are popular again. After a season of wearing pants, women are buying skirts for the fall, according to Women's Wear Daily.

All lengths are being shown, but the preferred length is just at the knee for mature women, pleated skirts for the misses, and mid-thigh in the junior department. A-line skirts are first choice, with pleated skirts running a close second. The look of the pleated skirt with a blazer is a favorite.

To Keep Cheese, Wrap Properly

Hard cheeses, like cheddar, Swiss and parmesian, may be kept for several weeks if wrapped properly, but cream, cottage and neufchatel, all soft cheeses, are highly perishable and should be used within a few days after purchase, according to the Dairy Council of California.

Cheese can be wrapped in the original wrapper for refrigeration, but cut surfaces should be covered tightly with foil or plastic wrap to prevent the cheese from drying out.

Food Hints On How To Gain Weight

Want to gain weight? For some people it is more difficult to add than subtract pounds, according to the Dairy Council of California.

Dairy council nutrition consultants recommend eating foods that build active body tissue and agile muscles as well as add fat. They should also eat more often and drink milk for added nutrients instead of water for a thirst quencher.

'SUNSHINE COMMITTEE'

Volunteer Helps Injured Boy, 5, Enjoy His Summer

By BETTY FROST

The prospect of an active, carefree summer ended abruptly for Christopher Conway, 5, when he was the victim of a hit-and-run accident on June 28.

Chris was returning from his first day at YMCA day camp, and was crossing North San Pedro Road, near his home in Santa Venetia, when the accident occurred.

His mother, Joyce Conway, was notified that the little boy had been taken to Marin General Hospital. He suffered a bruised jaw and his right leg was broken in five places. Because doctors feared too much mobility could injure the child's pelvis, they put casts on both his legs, held in position with a bar across the inside upper legs. He cannot sit up.

FOR THREE weeks Chris was a patient at the hospital. When he returned to the family residence in Santa Venetia, where he lives with his mother and a sister, Holly, 7, it was hard for Chris to remain quiet.

With the heavy cast, Chris weighs about 100 pounds and has to be lifted carefully from one place to another, always in the lying position.

"Chris is such an active child, and he is too young to read yet. He had terrible nightmares and nothing to look forward to," said Mrs. Conway.

Joyce Barnett, also a Santa Venetia resident, learned about Chris through the Volunteer Bureau of the Department of Public Social Service at the Civic Center, where she is registered. The volunteer decided she could spend a little time with Chris once or twice a week. Once she and the bright youngster met, "It was love at first sight," Mrs. Barnett says.

NOW THE volunteer comes to the Conway home for two hours every day. With her guidance Chris had learned to do art and craft work. A bulletin board at his bedside displays the objects of yard, stuffed toys and drawings the boy has made. They play games, and Mrs. Barnett reads stories to Chris by the hour. After reading a story about a marvelous octopus, the two made a stuffed octopus.

Mrs. Barnett's background for working with children includes a major in child psychology at the University of California at Los Angeles. She taught for one year in the primary grades, then decided fashion was really her field. She studies at the Otis Art Institute in Los Angeles and opened her own boutique in Beverly Hills. Widowed, she has lived in Marin County for three years, having moved here from Southern California.

Mrs. Barnett has also done volunteer work at Ross General Hospital. She is an enthusiastic participant in the Creative Living Center program held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael each Monday and assists with art and craft projects. Mrs. Barnett calls her volunteer work, "soul satisfying."

Chris and his grown-up friend are making invitations for the boy's sixth birthday. They are also making favors for the party on Sept. 14, when 12 small friends will share the towhead's birthday cake.

MORE THAN the birthday celebration will make that an eventful week. On Sept. 13, the casts imprisoning Chris' legs are to be removed. However, his mother cautions, it will be at least two weeks before he will be able to walk. In a program of physical therapy the injured child will learn to walk all over again. His entry into the first grade at Oliver Hartzell School may be delayed.

The accident has affected the entire family. Mrs. Conway gave up her job as eligibility worker for the Social Security Administration to stay home and take care of her son. Young Holly, too, helps her brother by running errands and assisting with household responsibilities.

"I will always be grateful to Joyce Barnett, because she has given Chris something to look forward to each day," said Mrs. Conway.

"I'm the sunshine committee," quipped Mrs. Barnett good naturedly.

Sausalitan Engaged; April Wedding Set

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Staudt of King's Park, Long Island, N.Y., announce the engagement of their daughter Lt. (Jg) Mary Anne Staudt, to Capt. Patrick Dumas.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David B.G. Dumas of Sausalito.

The bride-elect, a graduate of D'Youville College in Buffalo, N.Y., with a bachelor of science degree in nursing, is in the Naval Nursing Corps stationed at Camp Lejeune, N.C. She is the sister of Richard, Regina, Thomas, Loretta, James and Theresa Staudt of King's Park.

The future bridegroom is a graduate of Portland State College in Oregon and is with the Marine Corps, flying helicopters in Okinawa. He is the brother of Brian and Rosemary Dumas of Sausalito.

The couple will be married next April 8 in Long Island.

To Countless Arthritis Is Major Enemy

For wives, mothers and working women, especially those in the prime of life, arthritis is public enemy No. 1, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

The heartbreak of arthritis comes to one of five American homes. For the homemaker — whose child or husband is disabled or, more likely, becomes handicapped herself, the toll is staggering in terms of health, happiness and productivity.

Crippling arthritis now claims 12 million women as victims, about 70 per cent of the 17 million people who suffer from the nation's most widespread chronic, crippling disease.

Three times as many women as men are affected by rheumatoid arthritis, the most serious form of nearly 100 different arthritic conditions. It strikes most frequently in the family-rearing and economically productive years.

Most women who are 40 and over have some degree of osteoarthritis, the milder and most common of the major arthritic conditions. As with rheumatoid arthritis, women definitely are more vulnerable to the disease than men.

Book Out On Making Lingerie

For home sewers interested in making their own lingerie a new book, called "Girdle and Bra Sewing Techniques for the Home Sewer" by Laverne Devereaux, has just been published in New York City.

Miss Devereaux, who created the Sew Easy Lingerie Patterns, has written the new book, which is illustrated, for the novice as well as the experienced home seamstress.

A "Helpful Hints" section gives instructions for taking care of garments after they are made, and a glossary of girdle and bra fabric terms, which help identify the materials best suited for girdle and bra making at home.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Worrying About Future Makes One Aware Of Possible Situation

DEAR HELEN:

My trouble is that I'm too happy, and I'm afraid the bubble will burst.

My friends tell me to run now before it's too late. My husband agrees.

He has been a popular principal of our high school for seven years. Our sons will be entering there, one this September, one next. They aren't troublemakers. In fact, one is an honor student.

But people insist it will never work. Should I search for a house in another district, taking the boys away from their friends and making it difficult for my husband to commute? I don't want to ruin a so-far wonderful family relationship. — AFRAID

DEAR AFRAID:

When you worry about a future "what if," it seldom happens — because you're aware that it might and you work to prevent it. A well-adjusted family will cope with this situation. Others have. — H.

P.S. You've got troubles? See tomorrow's newspaper, when our daughter Sue and I launch "GENERATION RAP" — an argument- discussion column which thrives on friendly gaposis. If WE can manage collaboration without head-on collision, then surely your husband and sons can co-habit the same school!

DEAR HELEN:

Someone wondered why "I" is capitalized when other pronouns such as "we, you," etc. aren't. The English langauge is made up of both Romance and Germanic languages. In German, ALL pronouns and nouns are capitalized, and have been from centuries back. Our language must have borrowed that custom long ago and now retains just the capital "I" probably because the small "i" looks sort of lost, having only one letter. — AMANDA

DEAR AMANDA:

Judging from the number of young people who have de-capitalized "i," this tradition (like the "Dear" in a letter salutation) may be on the way out. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I love my wife — I think. But if she doesn't stop criticizing me and poking fun at me in public, I may change my mind.

Her idea of good dinner conversation is to expose me as some kind of fool. Not a "nut", but a fool. There's a difference.

I have asked her not to discuss personal things in public, as I don't. She shrugs. Says I'm "too sensitive." Alone together, we're as happy as most.

Is it necessary for a partner to make fun of a mate's blunders, habits (and yes — failings) just to get a laugh? I'm a success in business, but she can put me down. — LOWER THAN A WORM

DEAR LTAW:

I'd guess your wife is either:

1. Jealous of you, therefore looking for ways to put you down while building herself up.

2. Resentful. "As happy as most" doesn't describe the greatest private relationship. Perhaps the only time she can get even is in public where you won't slash back.

3. Mismatched and hoping for freedom. (If she makes you look the fool, friends won't blame her for the split.)

4. Outspoken, tactless, and maybe a little crude.

You'll never know which unless you stop cutting and start talking. This column might be the first step, if you read it together at an alone-time. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Agriculture Department Aids 'Right' To Deceive Consumers

By Arthur E. Rowse

WASHINGTON — Food producers who want to avoid disclosing the full truth about what lies inside the pretty packages have a firm friend in the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Its latest move is something like a fullback plunge, carrying the ball for the meat industry, by appealing a court ruling that declared "all-meat" and "all-beef" labels on hot dogs as misleading because the products contain several non-meat materials.

As the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia said in its April decision, "The application of the "All-Meat" label to frankfurters that are 15 per cent non-meat is a contradiction in terms and is misleading . . . and the defendants should be enjoined from permitting any frankfurter product to be so labeled."

USDA REGULATIONS allow "All-Meat" frankfurters to contain up to 10 per cent added water, 2 per cent corn syrup solids and approximately 2 per cent salt spices and curing additives. They also allow up to 30 per cent fat. some of which may be added to natural fat.

Actually, there may be more protein in frankfurters containing dry milk than in "All-Meat" products. According to USDA analysis reported in Ralph Nader's recent book. "Sowing the Wind," franks made with 3.3 per cent dry milk had less fat and more protein than "All-Meat franks.

Two years ago, the Agriculture Department relaxed the rules to allow up to 15 per cent chicken in hot dogs without having to call them "chicken dogs," as the former rules would have required. Now, the chicken needs only to be listed in small print along with other ingredients.

Once the chicken farmers were taken care of, the goat producers moved in. A group of Texas meat packers asked the USDA for permission to label goat meat as "Chevon." Apparently, they felt that they could sell more meat if its identity was not clear. Once again, the USDA turned chicken.

Among comments on the proposal sent to the USDA were some from consumer groups objecting to the use of the term because it was not generally known. The word "Chevon" is not listed in standard English dictionaries, and the Mexican embassy could not find it listed in Spanish dictionaries.

BUT THE USDA, at the same time it was deciding to appeal the ruling against "All-Meat" hot dogs last week, decided to allow goat producers to use the word "chevon" instead of "goat meat" if they wished.

The next day the department took another step to please meat packers by proposing to allow swine blood to be used in edible meat products.

As the department explained in a press release, "there are no special conditions in swine blood that would cause it to be less wholesome than blood from other species" already allowed in human food. These include the blood of cattle, calf and sheep.

The USDA sought to reassure consumers by saying, "There is a limited demand for blood as an ingredient in certain types of processed meat products."

BUT THERE seems to be no limit on what the USDA will do to change labels to meet industry demands.

The department's crowning achievement in deceptive labeling is its set of terms for canned olives. Sizes include not only "small," "medium" and "large" but also "colossal," "super colossal" and "special super colossal." Now, with chevon, it looks as if the USDA is running out of words.

State Commission On Status Of Women Enlarging Its Role

By LIZ LAGUE
Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO — In a society that can no longer guarantee a woman a place as wife and mother, helping women find alternate places is part of the job of the state's Commission on the Status of Women.

The then-advisory commission was formed in 1965 "simply to study the problems and opportunities of women in the fields of employment and education," according to soft-spoken Mrs. Carolyn C. Heine, executive director of the commission.

An additional consideration was "to study the civil and political rights of women, and the social and economic pressures particularly affecting them"

DURING ITS first four years, the commission was limited to making studies and recommendations. Implementation of these recommendations had to be done by other organizations.

That changed earlier this year with passage of AB 1006 and its signature by the governor. The measure dropped the "advisory" from the commission's name, dropped a provision terminating it every two years, and appropriated a $45,000 annual budget for it.

Now the commission is authorized to develop and prepare programs relating to women's changing roles and responsibilities to society.

"After my salary and my secretary's, are paid along with other office expenses, $15,000 is all that is left to work with, including traveling expenses and printing of reports," says Mrs. Heine.

"There are many problems which require non-legislative solutions, and some need to be cured by women themselves getting the trainng to qualify for better jobs."

THE COMMISSION has been working with women's groups and colleges to get the message of educational and employment opportunities to California women.

The governor appoints seven and the legislative appoints eight commissioners to the commission. An additional 15 advisory counsels are appointed by the commissioners, giving a working force of 32.

Mrs. Heine praises these people for "the hundreds of hours of time they have donated to the commission's work."

As executive director, Mrs. Heine keeps the various committees informed on what the others are doing and provides guidance and direction. The main areas these committees cover are child care, education, employment and public awareness. The committees hold public hearings, consultations with experts, conduct surveys and hold meetings with women to establish what problems exist and the direction the commission should take.

Many Jobs Help Make Life Easier

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — There is an enormous selection of jobs that have a direct effect on the relationship between people and their environment, according to Nancy Comer, career editor for Mademoiselle magazine.

Some of the jobs are establishment type, working for the government, she says, but also in the category of jobs whose main purpose is to make the living easier are some that are grant or foundation-supported with million-dollar budgets. Others are on a near-volunteer basis with ramshackle offices and seldom-seen paychecks as common working hazards.

Many of the do-gooder jobs offer problems like immeasurability of success, long hours, slowness, bureaucracy and even assault and battery in the case of some ghetto jobs.

Karin Bacon, director of cultural affairs for New York's Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs Administration, finds that her greatest frustration is not the lack of money but the crowded working conditions and the inadequate number of staff.

Vicky Smalley, director of the new Pilot City Health Service in Cincinnati, Ohio, finds that red tape — filling out forms, contacting people — is her major frustration.

Despite the drawbacks the jobs offer, their rewards transcend the shortage of prestige, says Miss Comer.

A noise abatement researcher in Texas says, "We haven't found any great panacea or universal way of getting things done. We just pretend we are climbing Mount Everest. We don't think of the mountain, don't look up or down, just keep going, step by step."

THE ALUMNAE

"Yes. I used to chase blindly after the buck until I reordered my priorities, dropped out of graduate school and did my own thing."

Advice To Parents In Teen-Age Arrests

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — As teen-age arrests increase, the generation gap widens because most parents don't know what to do, according to Joseph S. Lobenthal Jr., attorney and consultant to the New York State Division of Youth.

"Just a few years ago the arrest of a minor was something one occasionally read about in the newspapers. Today it happens to the family down the street and, like it or not, your family may be next," he says.

Lobenthal has outlined the parents' role from arrest to sentence:

One of the most important services a parent can perform is being physically present as soon as possible after the arrest. A prompt appearance at the police station reduces the possibility that a youngster will make statements detrimental to his legal rights.

Parents should make written notes on the time of their arrival at the station, the amount of time spent waiting to see the child and any conversations with police officials. These facts are useful to lawyers, especially if the accused becomes involved in proceedings to revoke a confession.

Differences between parents and child can erupt over the selection of legal counsel, especially when several youths are arrested on the same charge. A minor often wants a young lawyer involved in current causes while parents may insist on seasoned counsel.

"Paying the bill doesn't entitle you to call the tune," warns the attorney.

Some parents believe a child should submit to the penalty of the law.

Certainly, this parent is entitled to his opinion," Lobenthal says, "but if he is going to express it before trial, he can write off being any help to his child during the case."

The parents' appearnace in court is a must.

"Sentencing judges are inclined to give defendants a break when a family representative has been visible," Lobenthal says.

Vows Said At Church In Petaluma

Richard Martinez of Sunnyvale wed Marion Weber of Petaluma Aug. 21 in a ceremony attended by family members at the United Methodist Church in Petaluma. A reception at Sonoma Joe's restaurant followed.

Matron of honor was Barbara Glesener of San Francisco, and Tom Zenahlik of San Jose was best man.

Marion, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Thompson of Santa Rosa, is a graduate of Petaluma High School. She attended Mills College in Oakland and is employed by State Farm Insurance Company in Petaluma. Clay Thompson of Petaluma is her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Martinez of Sunnyvale are the bridegroom's parents, and Edward Martinez is his brother. A graduate of Sunnyvale High School and San Jose State College, Richard is in the Army.

The couple are living in Petaluma.

Vows Said In West Marin Church

St. Mary Magdalene Catholic Church in Bolinas was the scene of the marriage of Irene Silveira and Louis A. Langlamet Jr., at 10 a.m. on Aug. 21.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Silveira Jr., of Bolinas, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Mary T. Azevedo of San Rafael.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Langlamet of San Rafael are the parents of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Joseph A. Silveira III, was the matron of honor for her sister-in-law. The bridal attendants were Kim Christenson of San Rafael, Mary Grace and Gina Silveira, of San Rafael, the bride's nieces.

Best man for his brother was Joseph B. Langlamet of San Rafael. Joseph A. Silveira III, the bride's brother, was the usher.

The reception was given at the Bolinas Beach Improvement Club.

The bride is a graduate of Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley and is employed by the Tamalpais Union High School District in Larkspur.

Louis is a graduate of San Rafael High School and attended the College of Marin. He is employed at the Lafayette French Pastry Bakery in San Rafael. Mrs. Gay Langlamet is his step grandmother.

FABRIC SECRETS

Joan Crossley

The problem with many amateur seamstresses is that they do not know how to make a pattern fit properly. And, of course, one of the charms of making your own clothing is to have it fit properly. Always shorten or lengthen a pattern at the proper place, the place specified on the pattern. To shorten a pattern, pin a pleat half the amount to be shortened. Pin this pleat at the specified line. To lengthen, cut the pattern on this line; place a piece of paper underneath; lengthen the necessary amount and then pin.

Patterns — Materials — Notions — Complete Drapery Department — Everything needed for sewing is available at FABRIC LAND, 836 4th St. We have a large selection of all types of drapery and upholstering material with a shop at home decorating service. Open: 9:30 A.M. - 5:30 P.M. Mon-Tues-Thurs-Sat, 9:30 A.M. - 9 P.M. Wed-Fri, Noon - 5 P.M.

HELPFUL HINT:
Always leave ample room in your fabric to allow for shrinkage or possible patching later.

Cottage Cheese Ideal For Dieters

Cottage cheese is protein rich and calorie poor, according to the California Dairy Council nutrition consultants.

A one-half-cup-serving of creamed cottage cheese adds only 120 calories but contains nearly the same amount of protein as medium servings of fish and meat, three eggs and three slices of cheddar cheese.

Marinite Married In Minnesota Rite

Jean Margaret Annett of Minneapolis, Minn., became the bride of Ed Osborn of Tiburon on Saturday at Church of the Annunciation in Minneapolis.

Ed is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John Jay Osborn of Tiburon. A graduate of Redwood High School and Amherst College, he is a writer.

His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Annett of Minneapolis. A graduate of Washburn High School and Smith College, she is a doctor of philosophy candidate in sociology at University of California at San Diego.

Joan's maid of honor was Susan Annett, her sister. Her bridesmaids were Carol Renner of Springfield, Va., another sister of the bride; and Maria, Ann Mary and Cynthia Osborn, all of Tiburon and sisters of the bridegroom.

The best man was Lowell McKegney of Tiburon. Ushers were John Jay Osborn Jr. of Cambridge, Mass.; Joseph Osborn of Tiburon; Lawrence Sidman of Boston, Mass.; Steven Ramey of Eugene, Ore.; Paul Farrell of Oceanside, N.Y.; Philip Chanin and Eric Patterson of Amherst, Mass.

A reception was held at the Lafayette Club and the couple left on a wedding trip to the Colorado Mountains. They will live in San Diego.

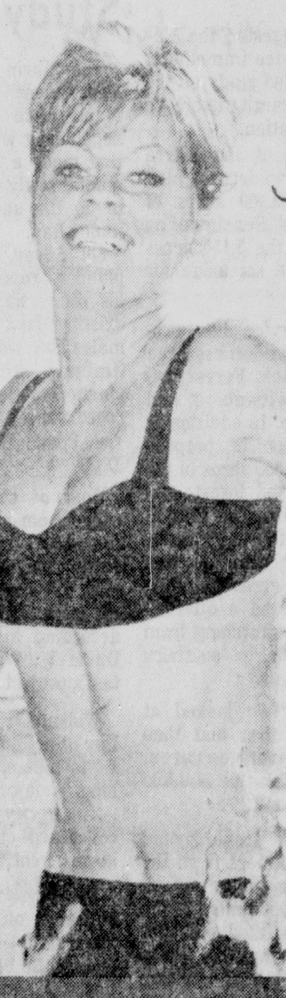

Five Marinites To Begin Mills College

Five Marin women are beginning the freshman year at Mills College in Oakland in September.

New students who will begin classes on the Oakland campus Sept. 13 are Linda Ginsberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Ginsberg of San Anselmo; Sarah Sykes, daughter of Mrs. Leila E. Sykes, also of San Anselmo; Ann Roth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel D. Roth of Marin City; Carol McClure, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. McClure of Ross; and Margaret Cross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David T. Cross of Mill Valley.

Conservationists Seeking Wide Area In Preserve

By STEVE SWENSON

Conservationists want to preserve much more of the primitive nature of Point Reyes National Seashore than is even hinted at in the master plan and wilderness proposal for the Seashore.

Among proposals aired Saturday by conservationists in a symposium on the Seashore at San Domenico School were:

1. To ban the auto within the park and as much as possible outside the park by providing a public transportation system aimed at preserving the Seashore and eliminating obtrusive highways.

2. To set aside six times the area the National Park Service designated for wilderness including three beaches now open to the public.

3. To guarantee citizen participation in the future development of the Seashore.

4. To form a marine sanctuary and to reverse a present state law permitting fishing and marine life removal in the Seashore.

Thus, in the calm setting of the Sleepy Hollow school, conservationists quietly set the stage for a clash of opinions on the fate of the Seashore due for a public hearing Sept. 22 and 23.

The symposium, sponsored by the Environmental Action Committee of West Marin, the Sierra Club, Mill Valley Resources and Ecology Projects, Marin Conservation League, Tomales Bay and Inverness Improvement associations, was attended by about 100 people, friendly to conservationists ideals.

When William Duddleson of the Conservation Foundation in Washington D.C. asked anyone excited about seeing a parking lot to stand, many laughed but no one stood.

John F. West of the Marin County Planning Commission said private cars should be eliminated within the park and public transportation be set up to haul people to the park and within it. West, a resident of Inverness and San Anselmo, said he was presenting his own views, not necessarily those of the planning commission.

West said those who propose faster and wider freeways are proposing "the worst possible thing for West Marin," as he cautioned against wall-to-wall asphault.

Duddleson suggested the National Park Service immediately make a detailed study on the traffic and commit itself to public transportation.

James Eaton of the Sierra Club outlined a wilderness plan encompassing 32,900 acres of the 64,546-acre Seashore as compared with the 5,150 acres the park service set aside for wilderness.

The park service has proposed a single wilderness area around the Black Forest between Mount Wittenberg and Bear Valley Gap. In addition to this, conservationists propose wilderness for 5,850 acres in the southern cliffs and forest; 13,000 acres including the Limantour and most of Drake's esteros and valleys draining into them and 8,500 acres including Tomales Point and a quarter-mile wide strip stretching from McClures Beach to southern end of Point Reyes.

Eaton said, "We looked at wildlife values first and then looked for recreation area. Some people think this is backwards, but we don't."

Duddleson said people should secure a commitment from the park service for public participation on all development of the Seashore. He pointed out that after public hearings, the public is usually left out of decision making.

Dr. Gordon Chan, marine biologist at the College of Marin, said unless a state law permitting fishing and marine life removal is repealed, all marine life is threatened with elimination at the seashore.

John Smail, director of the Point Reyes bird observatory, extended the elimination effects to include rare birds such as pelicans, herons, black brants and cormorants.

Duddleson suggested a marine sanctuary to be established both along and off the coast of the Seashore.

Edward Williams, professional planner from San Francisco, warned the master plan can be subverted unless there is "eternal vigilance" by the public. He and the other speakers urged people to testify at the September hearings or to send their views in writing, so when Congress makes the final decisions, the public will have been heard.

Tomales Bay Ecology Study Asked

The Marin County Planning Department and several Wst Marin civic organizations are negotiating with the foundation that made a sweeping environmental study of Bolinas Lagoon to do the same thing for Tomales Bay.

Sol Silver, principal county planner, reported Friday that his office has begun mapping existing land uses in the Tomales Bay watershed as a preliminary step. The work is planned to tie in with the proposed survey by the Conservation Foundation of Washington, D.C.

Cost of the survey would range from a minimum $25,000 to $50,000, depending on grant funds available to the foundation. The county would contribute some staff time for liaison, according to a prospectus by David W. Walker, the foundation's project director.

Walker wrote that "Tomales Bay offers an unusual opportunity to take environmental planning a major step forward and . . . directly serve a cadre of concerned citizens and county government."

The bay, "the second largest estuary on the California coast," still is unpolluted enough to have "a productive natural ecosystem," Walker noted, but its shorelines are "on the verge of development" that could drastically change the environment.

The survey has been endorsed by the Tomales Bay Association, the University of Pacific Marine Station at Dillon Beach, the state Department of Navigation and Ocean Development, Tomales rancher William Strauss and others.

DANCE REVIEW

Company Fills In, Does A Good Job

By MARIE RAMEAU

A highly entertaining evening of ballet was the outcome of Marin Civic Ballet's impromptu concert Saturday night. The company filled in on a week's notice for the ailing Lamplighters' production at the Marin Shakespeare Festival at Dominican College.

Although the program's opener, the Guidi-Satie "Gymnopedies," is hardly a novelty I never get tired of watching it, being a Satie afficionado myself. It was expertly danced by soloists Cynthia Harvey and Martha Fietz, partnered by Charles Perrier and joined by the entire company. I wish, however, that the white leotards and tights might eventually be replaced by something more sensual. For even though the music's dinstinctiveness lies in its austerity, its earthy undertones would be better complemented by some color and design.

Somehow "Americana" just doesn't make for first-rate ballet, as Norbert Vesak's "I Will Bow" decisively confirmed. Bearing a close stylistic resemblance in certain parts to the Martha Graham classic "Appalachian Spring," this solo based on American Shaker themes was pretty but too simplistic. Jane Thelan, however, has recently developed a very expressive style in more modern movements, and her performance was thoroughly engaging.

Laurie Klein and David White performed the "Peasant Pas de Deux" from "Giselle" with a slight lack of spirit. Although both have progressed technically, Miss Klein particularly was not quite up to her usual spicy vitality and joie de vivre. Probably more rehearsal time would have brought everything up to par, as White's leaps were executed with assurance and verve.

Traditional Renaissance court dances, performed by Angene Feves and Charles Perrier, were a delightfully different interlude, acquainting us also with the actual roots of the present art of ballet. The pseudo-Shakespearean dialogue, however, soon became unwelcome as a punctuation which degenerated into a series of gags. These brought the level of humor down to that of the Johnny Carson Show or worse.

Miss Feves appeared very regal, and Monsieur Perrier looked like Sir Walter Raleigh himself. More line, however, would have added to the interest of these dances, including the pavane, gaillarde and saltorello. In my own extensive research on the subject, numerous primary sources indicate that the epaulement, or "shouldering," was the hallmark of their accurate performance, as body and often feet were obscured by the voluminous apparel of the day.

But why couldn't advanced dancers break in their pointe shoes before rendering the exquisitely light morsel, "Le Pas de Quatre" (1845), of which pointe work was the essence. Otherwise nicely done, the lovely mood and style conveyed by Debbie Farb (Taglioni), Laura Przetak (Cerrito), Doreen Singer (Grahn) and Jody Marvin (Grisi) were interrupted by the percussion of rock-hard shoes. Who needs them? In 1845 they didn't exist, and ballerinas landed without a sound. That's how it should be, even though advances in technique necessitate the development of a lightly blocked and stiffened shoe.

Vesak's "Turangalila" pas de deux is surely done too often, an essay in masochism for performers and public alike, but strikingly rendered by Miss Thelan and White.

And finally, the Petipa classic, "Paquita," as staged by Grace Doty, this version's most outstanding exponent. Miss Klein was ravishing in an all-black tutu, with Perrier partnering her like the aristocrat he is. Although I'd like the troup to try more experimental works, this really appears to be its forte, with never a static moment and clean, classical lines. The pas de trois went without a falter, as did the difficult grand pas de deux — both principals are real "naturals" for this. Hopefully the ballet will not be retired, as it is a perennial delight.

CIRCUS REVIEW

Lots Of Dazzling Color —A Show For All Ages

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

OAKLAND — A spectacle of dazzling color and daring feats. That's the story of the 101st edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus which is in its annual Bay Area visit.

From the ringmaster's opening top hat salute to the patriotic finale, it's a show for all generations, and an ideal place to forget troubles, crack peanuts, laugh with the clowns and become a little awed by the artistry of the performers.

Each edition of the Big Top has a special drawing card and this year it is Gunther Gebel-Williams, a trainer of Bengal tigers and elephants. His feats with the giants of the animal kingdom are breathtaking to watch.

However, not to be outclassed is the trapeze work — a highlight of any circus. The performance of the "Flying Gaonas of Mexico" has to be seen to be appreciated. Their work is precision-plus.

Not to be underrated is the work of three teeterboard troupes, climaxed with a backward somersault —with a twist —four-man high. This acrobatic thrill is performed simultaneously in two rings.

The big special has always been a trademark of Ringling Bros. These edition features three extravaganzas — "A Circus Is Born," "Do-Si-Do" saluting country western music and "The Peerless Potentate of Pachydermia," full of prancing elephants with beautiful girls atop under direction of Williams.

Adding to the overall enjoyment of the three-hour show is the work of Bob Welz as ringmaster. He has a pleasing personality and a nice baritone voice which he uses very well in the big specials.

With something going on continually in three rings it's hard to watch everything, but to soak in a third of the action is enough to leave one drained, but happy.

The circus will be in the Oakland Coliseum through Wednesday with two performances daily, 2:30 and 8 p.m., before moving to the Daly City Cow Palace on Thursday with a single show that night at 8 o'clock and shows Friday and Saturday at 2:30 and 8 p.m. and Sunday and Monday at 2 and 8 p.m.

More Land Added To Seashore

The National Park Service has acquired title to another 1,868 acres for Point Reyes National Seashore.

Filings in the office of County Recorder Noel T. Giacomini revealed that the federal government purchased the land, in two parcels known as Laird's Landing and the Laguna Ranch, from owner Robert D. Marshall Jr. for a total of $2,149,750.

Marshall bought the Laird's Landing parcel of 319 acres in 1958 and the Laguna Ranch eight years later. The property lies near Inverness, on the west shore of Tomales Bay and extends to the ocean side of the Point Reyes Peninsula near the Radio Corporation of America facility.

Marshall, a San Rafael attorney and president of the firm that founded the Sears Point International Raceway, revealed plans in 1969 to subdivide his Laird's Landing holdings.

After the county supervisor made a special trip to Washington, D.C., to hasten funding funding for the national seashore, Laird filed a $1 million suit against the county in September 1970.

Two Books Maintain Coast Needs Saving

California's coast needs saving by a strong regional agency or agencies, two writers declared in a book published today by the University of California's Institute of Governmental Studies.

Gilbert E. Bailey, Long Beach newspaperman, and Paul S. Thayer, U.C. public information writer, declared that conservationists' efforts to save the coastline are enmeshed in a network of power struggles among the state Division of Highways, oil firms, public utility firms and developers, and counties and local governments that want to maintain home rule — with the consequent tax benefits of any development of the coastline.

The authors point out the Bay Area Conservation and Development Commission as an example of an effective regional agency. In BCDC, Bailey and Thayer noted, commissioners often have put aside purely hometown interests to consider regional benefits.

The writers maintained that saving the coastline is much more important to the people of California and the nation than the Bay Area effort.

The authors evaluated proposals in the 1970 Legislature that were defeated, and reviewed 1971 legislation still pending. Among other things, the current bills would create a statewide commission to oversee coastline development.

Only rarely has a direct initiative effort by the voters succeeded, the book claimed. It cited the defeat of Proposition 18, which would have made available gasoline tax funds for mass transit use. On the other hand, the book reported that Malibu citizens — facing a sewage plant plan much like that for Bolinas and Stinson Beach — managed to defeat it and retain their individual septic tanks, to stave off urbanization of the area.

The coastal study, called "California's Disappearing Coast: A Legislative Challenge," is available from the Institute of Governmental Studies in Berkeley.

BUT WHERE TO GO? — Roy Van Kleist and his wife, Mickie, supervise as their eight children pack family belongings. The family has to move from its rented Novato home this week, but has no place to go. Von Kleist, now drawing a welfare check, had to quit a teaching job and can't find work, either.

FAMILY MUST MOVE

Tough Time For Jobless Teacher

By FRANK FARRARA

It's tough to be an unemployed teacher with eight children, but it's even tougher when you have to get out of your home and have nowhere to go.

Roy Von Kleist, 38-year-old former San Rafael High School District teacher, is in that spot, trying to work his way out.

Jobless since April and a welfare recipient since July? Von Kleist described his plight as "no job, no house and no income."

The family has to move out of its rented four-and-a-half bedroom house in Novato by Thursday because the landlord is moving back in, he said.

Von Kleist presented a buoyant manner in the face of adversity, but anxiety broke through the other day when he pondered the fast approaching housing deadline.

"We have no place to go," he said. "The weather is such, I'm not sure about camping out. There's no leased housing available in Marin."

As the children scampered in, around and about the yard his wife, Mickie, commented: "The kids have been pretty good, but they worry about where they're going to live."

Besides Von Kleist said, "The kids worry about where they're going to school."

The children are Nancy Jane, 15; Roy (Chip), 14; Michael, 12; Barbara, 11; Theresa, 8; Daniel, 7; Tony, 4; and Carol, 1. The lone wage-earner in the family is Michael, an Independent-Journal newspaperboy.

Seated in his yard, with unsold garage sale items in the driveway nearby, Von Kleist told how he reached his dead end.

He graduated from the University of Southern California in 1957, cum laude, with a bachelor's degree in public administration, spent six years with the U. S. Public Health Service as a venereal disease inspector, and eventually decided to become a teacher.

After getting his teaching credential at San Francisco State College, he was hired by the San Rafael High School District for the 1968-69 school year.

"The first year was rough, but by the third year (1970-71) I was an excellent teacher," Von Kleist said. He taught driver training, history and a class of educationally handicapped, working at both San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools, he said.

Then, last fall, he became ill and was out two months without notifying the district, he said. After teaching the educationally handicapped class, he began getting headaches and became ill, Von Kleist said.

After he returned to Terra Linda High School, he was told his contract wouldn't be renewed for 1971-72, he said. "I resigned April 2."

(The school office reported it was felt he would be unable to handle classes because of his illness.)

Since then Von Kleist said he has tried his hand at selling cars and Bibles, both unsuccessfully, and in July, the family went on the welfare rolls.

They receive $458 a month in aid and the rent of their house at 764 Tamalpais Avenue is $235, he said.

Von Kleist said he has been seeking an industry job without success, but wanted people to know that "People on welfare are looking for work."

"Teaching has top priority," but I have exhausted all possibilities," he said. "Even in private schools, there's no hope."

Unfortunately Von Kleist is seeking a teaching job at a time when the teaching field is overcrowded, and even those who land a job in Australia — where teachers are in demand —are considered lucky.

"I wrote to school districts all over the state, Brawley to Siskiyou County, and to Australia, and the result was nothing," Von Kleist said.

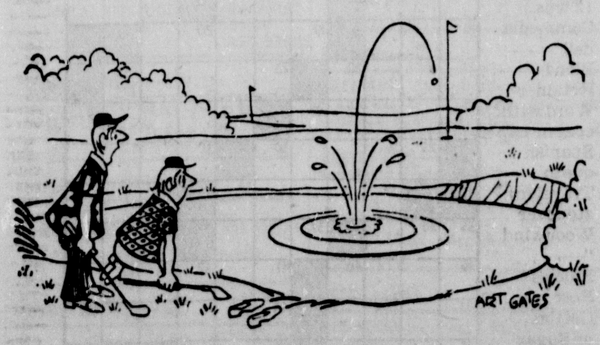

He said he is willing to try other fields, except "mechanics, where I'm not good," and would take retraining.

"Nobody seems to come up with anything," said Mrs. Von Kleist.

Even chances for a return to a federal job are dim since there's been a 5 per cent cutback in government jobs, Von Kleist said.

In recent weeks, Von Kleist has been holding a garage sale trying to sell old clothes, books, furniture, etc., in hopes of getting enough money to pay for moving, but returns have been slim.

In its attempt to raise cash, the family can't even sell the small, middleaged foreign car it has, Von Kleist said. "I paid cash, but the guy didn't bring me the pink slip on it yet."

"It's hard to compete with a guy like Phil MacAdams!"

Girl, 20, Victim Of Bridge Leap

A 20-year-old girl leaped to her death yesterday from the walkway of Golden Gate Bridge.

The California Highway Patrol said the body of the girl, Darcy Jill Van De Riet, was picked up by a fishing boat at 3:10 p.m. after she jumped from the east side of the bridge at about midspan.

A note found in her pocket identified her and said she had sent letters to her parents, highway patrol officers said.

Miss Van De Riet's address was not known.

'Pedal-Hopper' Bus Is Axed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— "Pedal Hopper" service for bicyclists from the East Bay area to San Francisco will be discontinued after Labor Day, with the exception of Saturday service, the AC Transit company said today.

The bicycle bus accommodates 24 riders and their bikes for the ride into the city. From the bus stop commuters go their various ways on their cycles.

Operation began July 8. Company officials said that in the first 21 days, however, it averaged slightly more than three cyclists per trip. one-way fare is $1.25.

Smoking Blamed For Fatal Fire

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fire officials believe "careless smoking" may have caused a blaze which killed four children trapped in their Bronx tenement.

Curtis, 8, Angella, 7, Russell, 6, and Erica, 3, the children of Geraldine Scott, died Sunday in the flames. A fifth child, 5-year-old Stacey, was rescued by his mother's common-law husband, Emmett Henson.

Henson crawled along a narrow window ledge to a fire escape and handed Stacey down to firemen. He then went back into the blazing apartment for the other children but was driven back by intense heat and heavy smoke.

Traffic Troubles Tiburon More Than Drugs, Crime

Tiburon Peninsula has little crime, drug problems are diminishing and its residents are happy with the police. Of greater concern is the traffic hazard on Tiburon Boulevard.

This was the consensus of a panel discussion Saturday sponsored by the Marin County Police-Community Relations Committee. And the impression that there were few police problems was reinforced by the small attendance, about 10 persons.

The 15-member panel, which included policemen, city councilmen, professors, clergymen and residents, met for three hours at the Community Congregational Church in Tiburon.

Angelo J. Mecchi, head of Tiburon sheriff's substation, said the peninsula is "basically not a crime area."

Belvedere Patrolman Duffy Midyett and Sgt. Richard Keaton of the Tiburon police agreed with Mecchi and added that drug problems are decreasing.

"It's been going down during the last six or eight months. Drug use is no longer an open, flagrant problem," Midyett said.

Residents attending the seminar offered some praise, but no complaints to the Belvedere police and the sheriff's deputies that cover Tiburon.

Heavy traffic on Tiburon Boulevard, however, drew criticism from all sides.

"Frankly, it scares the hell out of me," declared Dr. Michael Cavanagh, assistant professor and director of clinical training at the University of San Francisco.

Mecchi called the winding road "an engineering problem" and said he thought it should be a four-lane road.

"Then we'd have a problem patroling it," he said.

Mecchi told the gathering no improvement or widening could be done locally on Tiburon Boulevard because it falls within state jurisdiction as Route 131.

Some of the problems cited on Tiburon Boulevard were speeding motorists, persons leaving bars in Tiburon early in the morning causing a hazard, heavy traffic making access from side roads difficult, pedestrians and children crossing the road and bicyclists on the narrow highway.

Another traffic problem was raised by Belvedere resident, Karl Hoppe, who complained about people driving through the narrow streets of Belvedere to look at the houses.

"I don't drive through Oakland looking at their houses. I'm tired of being a curiosity. I wouldn't mind their looking, but they tie up traffic," Hoppe said.

Tiburon City Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood brought up the foremost police problem in the city: creation of its own police department by July 1. The city now is protected by the county sheriff's department. It has been informed, however, that the contract will not be renewed July 1.

She said she envisions the department as part of the community, "involved intimately with the schools," covering the city on foot patrols, "trying doors at night," professionally trained and sensitively skilled.

Belvedere City Councilman Edwin J. Drechsel supported Miss Ellinwood's suggestions, noting, "Everything we do is through Tiburon: we shop there and go to church there.

"We're two cities, but one community. We want our kids to get the same kind of consideration from the Tiburon police as they would from the Belvedere policemen," Drechsel said.

Miss Ellinwood said she deplored the lack of direction the council has given its police.

"I think our City Council owes its community a basic policy for the department," she said. Miss Ellinwood said that one-third of the city's total budget is spent on police protection "but we have never once discussed basic police policy, such as whether to emphasize traffic control, business protection, youth or whatever."

Her remarks were contradicted by Tiburon Councilman Branwell D.Fanning who said he disagreed with "about 98 per cent" of what she said.

"We have a very close relationship with the police through the city manager," he said. "We have total control through set policies established by the City of Tiburon."

Parolee Is Held In Car Thefts

Timothy Guy Tuttle, 18, of no known address, was arrested today by San Rafael police on suspicion of car theft.

According to police, Tuttle, a parolee of the California Youth Authority, was arrested at 1:50 a.m. after being observed in possession of two cars reported stolen. Police said Tuttle might have used one of several master keys found on his possession to open the car doors.

He was held in lieu of $1,250 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Under Control

SANTA BARBARA (UPI)— Some 750 firefighters brought a stubborn 2,500-acre brush fire under control Sunday after battling it for three days.

Pedestrian Hurt In Hub Accident

A 22-year-old Bolinas man suffered a broken leg when hit by a car in San Anselmo.

David Bird, 258 Elm Street, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital.

Bird — police reported — walked out into the westbound lane of Red Hill Avenue, 250 feet west of Ross Valley Drive, at about 10 p.m. Saturday and was hit by a car driven by James Lee Kilpatrick, 30, of 30-A Mariposa Avenue, San Anselmo, according to police.

According to police, Kilpatrick said he swerved to miss Bird who was wearing dark clothing but hit him with the car mirror and left front door. No citation was issued.

Car Veers Off Road, Injuring Driver

Clinton Johnson, 45, of 147 Ellison Avenue, Rohnert Park, suffered facial cuts when his car veered off Commerce Avenue near Old Redwood Highway, Cotati, at 4:50 p.m., police reported.

He was treated at Community Hospital in Santa Rosa.

Body Of Novatan Is Found

William Hector Guthrie, 51-year-old Shell Oil Co. employee, died last night at his Novato home of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, according to Coroner's investigator Keith C. Carig.

Guthrie apparently shot himslef in the head with a .45-caliber pistol at 6:56 p.m. at his home, 59 Santa Maria Drive.

Novato police said his wife, Maxine Lorraine, discovered his body in the master bedroom. He left no note, police said.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Keaton's Chapel of Marin.

Mother Earns Waitress Title

DETROIT (UPI)—The title of "fastest and finest" waitress in the Detroit area now belongs to Diane Contino.

Mrs. Contino, who is four months pregnant, outdistanced all waitresses Sunday in the 10th annual waiters and waitresses foot race on Belle Isle.

The race, sponsored by Local 705 of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes Union, attracted contestants from throughout the Detroit metropolitan area.

On receiving the $500 check for first place, Mrs. Contino said: "It's for the baby."

Contestants walked over a quarter-mile course on the island between Detroit and Canada, carrying a tray with four 5 1-2 ounce glasses filled with champagne. They had to retain at least 16 ounces at the finish line.

Two Skydivers Drown In Lake

ANTIOCH (UPI) —Two skydivers drowned Sunday when they landed in the Antioch Reservoir and were dragged under by their chutes and cameras.

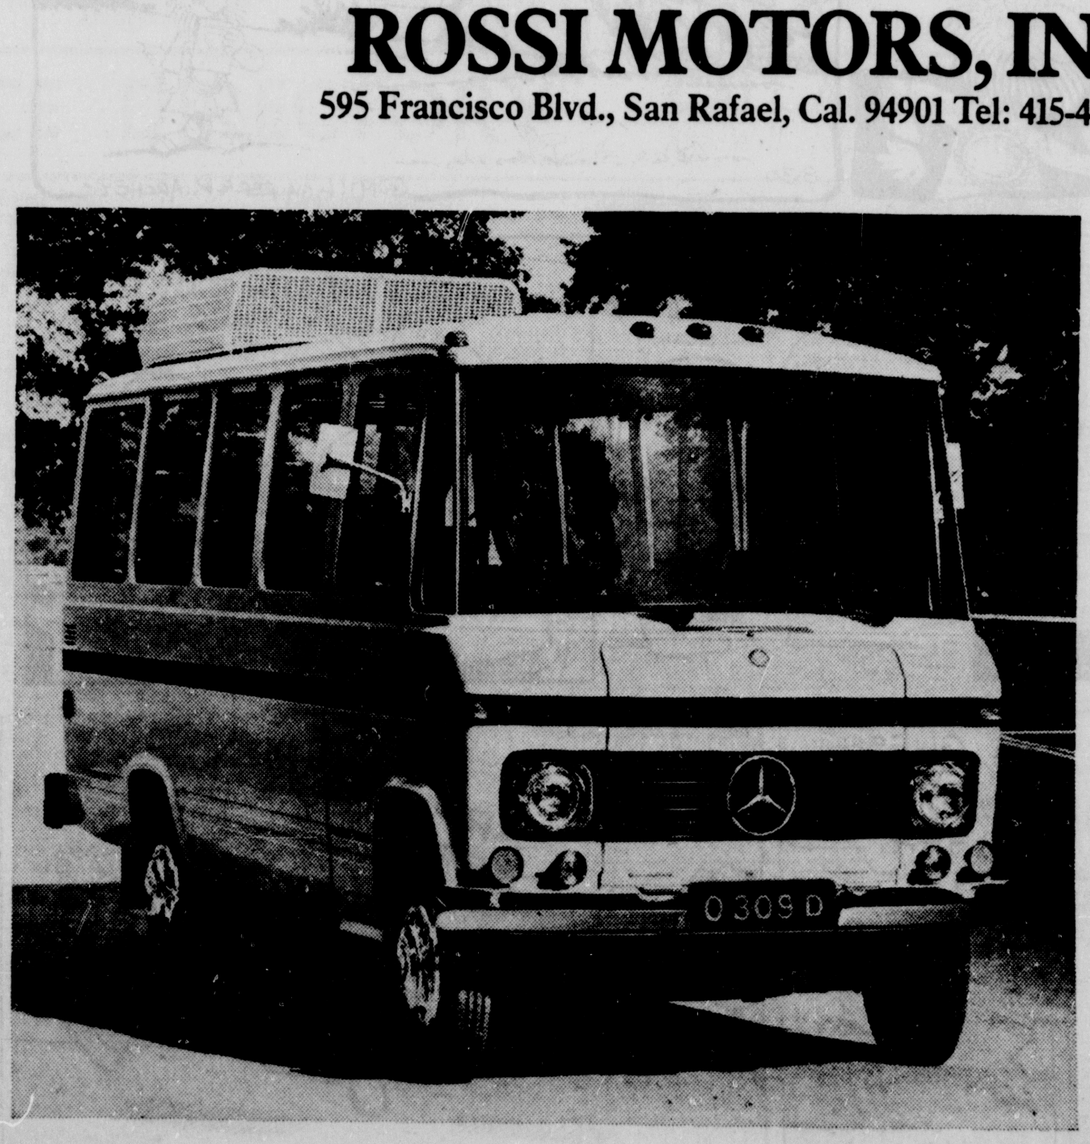

The victims were identified as Philip O'Neil Montie, 22, of Berkeley, Calif., and Port Arthur, Tex.; and Sean Liam O'Reilly, 23, of San Francisco.

Investigating officers said the two men were part of a four-member parachute film team. The other two men landed safely but were unable to get to Montie and O'Reilly in time to save them.

Now your Mercedes-Benz passenger car dealer is also a sales and service dealer for the Mercedes-Benz 0309D Bus.

ROSSI MOTORS, INC.

595 Francisco Blvd., San Rafael, Cal. 94901 Tel: 415-454-0582

The 0309D isn't a stretched-out car. It isn't a compressed highway cruiser. And it isn't a converted van.

It's a bus. Designed and built to carry 13 to 19 people comfortably and economically.

It's just two feet longer than a six-passenger luxury car. Fuel economy is better. The turning diameter is sixteen feet less than an 11-passenger stretch-out.

And it provides passenger convenience like spacious aisles and seats, generous headroom, air conditioning and lockable inside luggage storage.

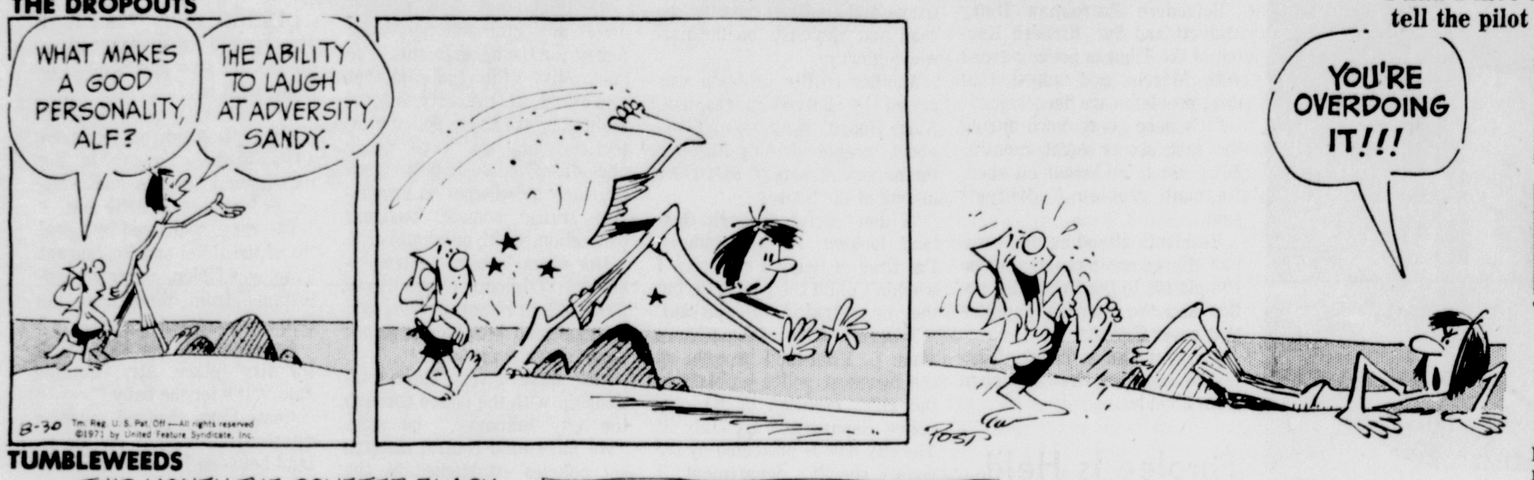

We now have a demonstrator model on hand for you to see and test drive.

So come in and inspect the Mercedes-Benz 0309D bus at our showroom. Or just call us and we'll arrange a thorough demonstration at your company's location.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Case In Point Where Impartiality Undesirable

If you're an impartial bridge player, you may hate all opponents equally. But this is one case in which impartiality is undesirable. In many a bridge hand, one of the opponents is a jolly good fellow, and you can afford to let him win a trick. The other fellow is the rascal, and you have to keep him out of the lead at any cost.

South Dealer
Neither side vulnerable

	NORTH ♠ Q 6 ♡ A 10 6 5 ◇ K 9 8 ♣ K 8 7 3
WEST ♠ J 9 7 3 2 ♡ 7 4 ◇ Q 7 6 2 ♣ Q 4		EAST ♠ A 10 4 ♡ Q J 9 8 2 ◇ 4 ♣ J 10 9 5
	SOUTH ♠ K 8 5 ♡ K 3 ◇ A J 10 5 3 ♣ A 6 2

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	All Pass

Opening lead — ♠ 3

LOW SPADE

West opens the three of spades, and you don't know which opponent is the rascal and which is the jolly good fellow. You play the queen of spades from dummy and discover who is who when East wins with the ace of spades.

East returns the ten of spades, and you know that West has led from a long spade suit. You want to cut communication between the opponents, so you make the somewhat routine play of refusing to take the king of spades.

Spades are continued, and you must take your king. Now your problem is to develop and win nine tricks without allowing West to gain the lead. (If West could get in, he would defeat the contract with the rest of the spades.)

TWO-WAY FINESSE

The key play occurs in diamonds, in which you have a two-way finesse. That is, you can finesse for the queen in either direction. Should you finesse through West or through East?

Since West is the dangerous opponent, you must finesse through him. If your guess is incorrect, you will lose the trick to East — the safe opponent.

FINESSE SUCCEEDS

After taking the third trick with the king of spades, lead the jack of diamonds for a finesse. When West plays low, play a low diamond from the dummy. As it happens, the finesse succeeds, and you next lead a low diamond to win a finesse with dummy's nine. You continue with the rest of the diamonds, winning 10 tricks very easily.

Even if East had the queen of diamonds, you would make your contract since East would be unable to lead a spade after winning a trick with the queen of diamonds.

DAILY QUESTION

The first two players pass, and you are next, holding:

♠ - A 10 4
♥ - Q J 9 8 2
♦ - 4
♣ - J 10 9 5.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Many experts believe in bidding a trifle lighter in third position than in any other position at the table. Still, there must be a limit to this principle. This hand is a bit too weak even for a third-hand bid.

Six Enrolled At Riverside School

Six former College of Marin students enrolled at the University of California at Riverside have been named to the dean's honor list.

The six are: Marsha Silverthorn, Mill Valley; Lareen Tucker, Stinson Beach; Naydra Shore, San Rafael; Patricia Sempell, San Rafael and David Gilbert, Tiburon.

ALMANAC

Today is Monday, Aug. 30, the 242nd day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Virgo.

American songwriter George Root was born Aug. 30, 1820.

On this day in history:

In 30 B.C. Cleopatra committed suicide by permitting a snake to bite her.

In 1780 traitor Benedict Arnold promised the British he would surrender the American fort at West Point.

In 1932 Herman N. Goering, often referred to as the "No. 2 Nazi," was elected president of the German Reichstag.

In 1965 Casey Stengel stepped out of baseball after a major league career of more than four decades as he retired as manager of the New York Mets.

A thought for today: American writer Max Eastman said, "I don't know why it is we are in such a hurry to get up when we fall down. You might think we would lie there and rest a while."

Canadian AAA Asks Driving Program

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI)—The British Columbia Automobile Association has asked the provincial government to set up a rehabilitation program to replace fines and sentences for drunken drivers.

BCAA President R.J. Hastings said only 6 per cent of drivers who have taken a rehabilitation course appear before the courts on a second charge of impaired driving.

An Estate With A Gate

Leads into this country setting on 7.70 acres, located on Bennet Valley Road. This large California ranch home has a heavy shake roof and large over-sized garage and is in a magnificent setting amongst numerous oak trees and natural rock out croppings. It was built in 1970 by one of Marin county's finest builders. Double hand-carved doors lead into an imported Mexican tile entry. The living room has beamed ceilings and beautiful carpeting. The kitchen is a gourmet's dream. The family room has a wall to wall fireplace of Sonoma stone with a wet bar & refrigerator plus a Franciscan Forge Barbecue, which is smokeless and odorless. There are 4 bedrooms. The master bedroom suite has a sumptuous, sunken bath and "his & her" walk-in closets in the dressing room. There is also another large bath with twin dressing tables and a separate powder room. A large patio is enhanced with olympic-size pool which is heated and filtered. For horse-minded people, there is a new barn with loft and tack room. Other amenities too numerous to mention. May we show you, by appointment. Asking $125,000. Exclusive. Evenings 897-1574.

Martha Says She Would Visit War

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —Martha Mitchell wants to go to Vietnam.

"I want to go over and see what it's really like ... the drug problem," the wife of the attorney general said.

"They won't let me. I think they're afraid I'll get killed."

Only two weeks ago, Mrs. Mitchell declared "the Vietnam War is over" and she said in an interview the remark has resulted in a backlash of caustic letters.

Some of the letters said, "What do you know about Vietnam?" and "Why don't you shut your mouth?"

Her correspondents, she is certain, do not know that she has a son in Vietnam, Lt. Jay Jennings, 21, who is living and fighting "in the most primitive conditions."

She defended her remark on grounds of the dwindling number of American casualties in the Southeast Asia country. "Do you know there is not one Marine in Vietnam," she said.

Another recent remark by Mrs. Mitchell also brought wide attention. She said, "We're thinking of running (Secretary of Treasury John B.) Connally for Pope."

"I just think that would be a good place for him," she said when asked about rumors that Connally was becoming the "strong man" in the Nixon administration.

The only time she hedged in the interview was when she was asked whether her husband would leave the Justice Department to become Nixon's campaign manager in the next presidential election, as he was in 1968.

"The President and I haven't decided what to do with John yet," she quipped.

Speaking of the attorney general, Mrs. Mitchell said, "He was an ultra-liberal a few years ago and I had to convert him. He was pretty much on the side of the poor man."

Mrs. Mitchell calls herself a "new breed in Washington."

"Washington is so staid," she said. "Protocol is so outdated. It's just ridiculous ... because I'm the wife of the attorney general, I have no right to express my opinion. The only thing I can compare it with is the way the Negroes are treated."

She admitted she has many critics but as for President Nixon's view of her hip-shooting remarks, she says, "The President just loves it. He likes someone with intestinal fortitude."

Pacific Rowers Progressing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Adventurer John Fairfax and companion Sylvia Cook were reported Sunday to be a third of the way across the Pacific in their orange 35-foot rowboat.

The couple left San Francisco April 26 for a nine-month trip across the ocean to Sydney, Australia. Fairfax radioed San Francisco late last week that he was 480 miles southeast of Hawaii and making good progress with favorable winds.

Miss Cook and Fairfax take turns rowing in 15-hour shifts, and they estimated the boat was averaging 44 miles each day.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Most Practical, Prudent Diet Considers Weight, Cholesterol

A good diet satisfies the appetite, meets the energy requirements of the body and supplies the more than 50 essential nutrients we need to remain well. Among these nutrients are the vitamins, minerals and amino acids that come from proteins. The balanced diet also meets the needs for growth in children and for women who are pregnant or nursing their infants.

IN THE United States, calories do count because so many of us are overweight and sedentary. The healthy average adult needs approximately 2,400 kilocalories per day. Nutritionists use the term kilocalories because it is more accurate. Some people can do with 1,000 less but laborers may need 3,000 more. These are basic requirements and the weight will be stabilized so long as the individual does not consume more or less calories than he needs.

Each pound of fat stored by an overweight person represents 3,500 excess kilocalories. A pound a week could be shed if the person ate 500 fewer kilocalories a day. It is much easier to eat less than to work off the kilocalories via exercise.

WEIGHT AND diet also enter the cholesterol/coronary heart disease controversy. Obesity and a high cholesterol level are both extremely high risk factors for heart attacks. Many overweight individuals also have too much cholesterol in the blood and the level tends to go down as they lose weight. In addition, the stout person often has hypertension and his pressure may go down when weight is lost. Most authorities believe that the associated hypertension and cholesterol level are the most important reasons for maintaining a normal weight.

Nowadays the most practical and prudent diet takes weight and cholesterol into consideration. This means less animal fat, egg yolk and dairy products. Replace these items with vegetable oils and spreads, except those containing coconut and palm oils, the worst fats for the cholesterol watcher.

X-RAY AND ULCER

F.L. writes: My 16-year-old daughter has symptoms that indicate ulcer but X-ray didn't show it. Can ulcer be present and not show in a film?

REPLY

Yes, but it is unusual. Ulcers are not always found on one examination. A second test by a specialist in this field may disclose the lesion. If it doesn't, there is a good possiblity that ulcer is not present. The alternative is to treat the distress as tho an ulcer were present.

PRESSURE AND DIABETES

D.D. writes: Does high blood pressure usually accompany diabetes?

REPLY

The person with diabetes tends to develop hardening of the arteries at an earlier age than the nondiabetic. In the circumstances, high blood pressure is more likely to ensue.

PREVENTING GANGRENE

D.A. writes: Can gangrene be cured with medicine?

REPLY

No, but some drugs may prevent gangrene from extending by improving circulation or eliminating infection. Gangrenous tissue does not come back to life but may slough off and be replaced by new tissue.

STEAM AND COLDS

E.R.Y. writes: Is steam inhalation helpful for a cold?

REPLY

Yes. Moisture has a soothing effect upon irritated membranes of the nose, throat and bronchi.

Three Injured As Wheels Lock

Treated at Marin General Hospital were the driver, Peter R. Logan, 26, of 110 Florence Avenue, Mill Valley, for cut forehead and right ear, Rockne P. Harmon, 26, of the same address, cut right knee, and Gerri D. Hogan, 21, of 75 Red Hill Circle, Tiburon, cut left hand.

California Highway Patrol said Logan was driving east on Sequoia Valley road at 6:55 p.m. when his wheels locked and the car skidded off the road about 1,000 feet east of Panoramic Highway.

Climbers Die

MEIRINGEN, Switzerland (UPI)—Five Swiss alpinists, including three members of one family, were killed when they were caught in a rockslide while climbing in the Bernese mountains Sunday.

When you plug your store into this, it means business

Readership of the I-J is what makes the big difference . . . brings you immediate sales

The I-J is the major news medium in Marin County . . . read in more than 2/3 of all Marin County homes.

This is what makes it the major ADVERTISING medium. Because people want the I-J enough to pay for it. The I-J has become part of living . . . the home newspaper with news that is essential to living here.

This is why YOUR advertising in the I-J reaps you solid rewards. Your message is in a medium which is not a throwaway, not a piece of unsolicited direct mail addressed to "occupant." Rather it is read because it is in the best-read medium in Marin County.

For example: 82% of all readers will turn to the page carrying your ad. And because newspaper readers don't want to miss anything, they read the I-J cover to cover.

The point is simple: people look forward to advertising in the I-J. They read it, discuss it, often clip the ads as a buying reminder. For the I-J is the marketplace, the big showroom daily for everything on sale in Marin. If you want more business, this is the place to get it.

Humphrey Asks U.S. Minimum

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey, DMinn., Sunday said American citizens should be guaranteed a minimum standard in education, health care, environment and jobs.

Humphrey, in Juneau for a fund-raising luncheon for Rep. Nick Begich, D-Alaska, said there has to be a floor on "fringe benefits" so "if someone moves from Pennsylvania to Alaska he is assured there is a minimum he is going to get as a citizen of the United States of America.

"I want to help provide these minimums."

The former vice president said, "There are only two mandates in the Constitution— to provide for the common defense and to promote the general welfare. The rest is optional."

Explosions Rock Scottish Castle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An explosion broke windows in the Stonestown branch of the Bank of America and a nearby building Sunday night, but no injuries were reported.

Police were investigating the blast which occurred shortly after 9 p.m. Officers did not say whether a bomb caused the explosion.

John Dahlberg, who lives near the bank, said he heard a series of about eight small explosions.

Scientific Export Sales In Decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) —U.S. exports of engineering and scientific equipment declined in value by 4.5 per cent during the first three months of this year, compared to the same period in 1970, the Commerce Department said today.

The value of the exports was placed at $43.6 million. Part of the decline, the department said, was due to smaller sales of such items as sonar equipment and electronic geophysical and mineral prospecting equipment.

More ICBM Warning Time Hinted

DENVER (UPI)—Work is nearing completion on a system that would give the United States twice as much warning against intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM), the Denver Post said Sunday.

The newspaper, in a copyrighted story, said the installation is located in a complex which houses the aerospace data facility at the Buckley Air National Guard base east of Denver.

"The new facility is believed to be a computerized data reception center that will link the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) combat information center at Colorado Springs with the ICBM missile warning satellite," the newspaper said.

The satellite, never confirmed officially by defense officials, keeps a 24-hour watch on routes that ICBM would travel if launched at the U.S. from the Soviet Union or Red China.

The Post said the change would give the nation a halfhour advance warning of incoming missiles. Currently, the U.S. would get only a 15minute warning of such a launching.

The newspaper said Defense Department officials refused to comment on the change or even to confirm the existence of an operative ICBM-warning satellite. The Post said the satellite was positioned in a synchronous orbit 22,300 miles above the equator in the Western Pacific.

The Post said the first attempt to place a warning satellite in position failed Nov. 6, 1970, because an upper stage of a Titan 3C booster malfunctioned.

The newspaper said that last May 5 a Titan 3C launch from Cape Kennedy carried a classified payload into orbit that could have been the second warning satellite.

Last week the 14th Aerospace Force of the Air Force Aerospace Defense Command (ADC) in Colorado Springs announced the activation of a 450-man 2nd communications squadron to be based at Buckley to "maintain high frequency terminal and computer systems."

The announcement was later revised to say only 300 men would be activated.

The ADC refused to release any additional information on the assignment, referring all other questions on the matter to the Pentagon.

The Denver newspaper said the satellite has sensors which detect heat generated at launch by ICBM boosters. This information is sent to a new secret facility at Nurringar, Australia.

The Post said data would be sent from Australia, via a new digital communications relay satellite, to the facility at Buckley and in a matter of seconds to the NORAD center in Colorado Springs.

The almost instantaneous dialogue between computers at Nurringar with those at Buckley is expected to at least double the warning time, the Post said.

The newspaper said two massive bubble-shaped antennas already have been built under tight security at Buckley and a third is under construction.

Tools Taken

Tools and equipment valued at $2,000 were stolen in a burglary of Dominique Motors on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Forest Knolls, between last Sunday and Tuesday, Marin sheriff's deputies reported Friday.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Networks Promise Nice Things Due

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—If you have survived August television, thanks to CBS-TV's "The Six Wives of Henry VIII," take heart. The networks have been pouring out their usual wonderful announcements with their usual therapeutic hints that things are going to improve in just a minute. Consider the possibilities.

"A visit with the First Lady," a two-hour portrait of Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, will be presented by ABC-TV Sept. 12. On Wednesday, meanwhile, the same network will offer another 60-minute documentary, "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," concerning unemployment problems facing Vietnam War veterans returning to America. And Tuesday night, CBS-TV has an hour entitled "Reston on China," in which New York Times columnist James Reston, via satellite from Tokyo, discusses his recent six-week visit to Mainland China. Eric Sevareid will be the interviewer.

On Friday, football fans will see, on CBS-TV, an exhibition rematch of last season's Superbowl foes, the Baltimore Colts and the Dallas Cowboys. Thursday night, ABC-TV offers an hour prime time preview of a heralded new Saturday morning children's series, "Curiosity Shop," which bows in Sept. 11 and is one of commercial television's obvious responses to the success of "Sesame Street."

ABC-TV, by the way, also announces that next season it plans to present a weekly hour anthology of original films just for children, "Saturday Morning at the Movies."

ABC-TV, in fact, is just bursting with wonderful announcements. On Oct. 12, for instance, Dick Cavett will begin two weeks of strictly one-guest shows, with his visitors including Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly, Orson Welles, Peter Ustinov, Charlton Heston, Jack Lemmon, Woody Allen and Anthony Quinn. Cavett, as it happens, is going on vacation for two weeks starting this week, and Welles, who has appeared with him twice in solo-visitor shows, will be his guest host all next week.

Another Cavett guest host, Steve Allen, is scheduled this Wednesday to present a broadcast that should stir feelings of nostalgia in video viewers with good memories—for his planned guest lineup includes some of the great character comedians on his much-admired old series: Louis Nye, Tom Poston, Bill Dana and Dayton Allen.

Over at CBS-TV, television's hottest new series, "All in the Family," about a blatant bigot named Archie Bunker, has been switched from its scheduled late Monday night slot to an early evening time period on Saturdays for the new season. It displaces a milk-and-crackers series, Fred MacMurray's "My Three Sons," which moves to late Monday nights.

The series that used to be video's hottest, NBC-TV's "Laugh-In," begins with a Sept. 13 debut that includes Raquel Welch and Martha Mitchell, as well as the return of head writer and producer Paul Keyes, a friend of President Nixon, after an 18-month absence. When he left, it was reported Keyes was critical of some suggestiveness and political angling on the series.

Keyes put together last season's costly, high-rated John Wayne special which saluted America in musical-comedy fashion. For this season's "Laugh-In," he has added two little children to the cast of regulars—a seven-year-old boy and a five-year-old girl. The Sept. 20 "Laugh-In," by the way, includes such sports figures as Vida Blue, Roman Gabriel and Andy Granatelli.

Grandma, meanwhile, will be happy to know that when Lawrence Welk's ABC-TV cancellation takes effect after this Saturday's show, he will nevertheless be carred independently by more than 200 stations around the country in future weeks—with some outlets presenting him on Fridays, some on Saturdays and some on Sundays. And the beat goes on.

ESP Exercise Proves Fatal To Youth, 18

OREGON CITY, Ore. (UPI) —An apparent exercise in extrasensory perception took the life of an 18-year-old Boring, Ore., youth whose body was found in a garbage can.

Clackamas County Sheriff's Lt. Vernon White said Leroy Olinger's body, with his hands tied behind his back, was found by a neighbor after the boy's vacationing parents asked him to check the house. They had been unable to reach the boy by telephone and became worried Friday.

White said Sunday a book dealing with extrasensory perception was found open in the house. An underlined paragraph said a person must experience pain before being able to receive messages.

The lieutenant said there were no signs of foul play and Olinger had placed his belt buckle so that he could close it, but not open it, himself. The belt was used to bind his hands. White also said the body was in such a positioc that any attempt to get free would only result in further entrapment.

ANTIQUE CLASSIC CAR WINNER

This 1940 LaSalle received admiring looks from some of the 2,700 persons attending the Sixth Annual Strawberry Town and Country Village auto show. The four-door sedan won first place in the classic division for Donald P. Johnson of Sunnyvale. There were 131 entries in 17 categories of cars. The show netted $2,100 for the Kidney Foundation of Northern California, according to James H. Webb, manager of the shopping center, which sponsored the show with the Porsche Club of America and the Golden Gate Region Antique Automobile Club of America.

Little League Session Slated

The Novato City Council and Parks and Recreation commission will hold a joint meeting on a land offer by the Novato Little League at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Novato Community House.

The Little League has offered to give the city 20 acres in the Deer Island area, where it plans to develop up to five baseball diamonds.

Train Outlet To End Contamination

NEW YORK (UPI)—A new outlet for railroad cars that assures contamination-free shipments in plastics service has been developed by ACF Industries, Inc. The adjustable pneumatic outlet is designed to provide easier, faster cleaning without disassembly or removal of the control tube, according to John S. Carlson, ACF vice president and general manager of the company's Shippers Car Line division.

ACF cars for plastics service, which carry more than 80 per cent of the nation's plastics powders and pellets that travel in bulk, now number approximately 7,000.

Most Miss America Entrants Want Money For Scholarships

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—The Miss America pageant used to mean the glamor and glitter of a "show biz" extravaganza, and, just possibly, a trip to Hollywood and a crack at stardom.

But times change, and apparently so do the girls. This year, for example, most of the Miss America contenders say they entered the contest to get money for college.

"I'm going to school out of state and I need the money," said Miss Wyoming, Marsha Crandall, a junior at Utah State. And Miss Nevada, Joan Burachio, a graduate of Barnard College of Columbia University, said "The preliminary contests have paid for about a quarter of my college education." Miss Burachio plans graduate study in psychology.

Each contestant is assured of at least another $500 in scholarships here. They range up to $10,000. And Miss American can pick up another $55,000 for personal appearances during her year's reign.

The only black contestant, Patricia Patterson, Miss Indiana, is an exception. She decided she should try to be "Miss America" when she was "turned on" by black Mayor Richard Hatcher's success in Gary, Ind. Like Hatcher, she says she has "a chance to point out what's right with the United States."

While the scholarships took first place, the girls had a great variety of secondary reasons for entering their first pageant.

Washington's Susan Buckner hopes it will lead to a professional dance career. Illinois' Anita Pankratz, studying piano at Roosevelt University, Chicago, sees it as "a chance to perform" and Massachusetts' Deborah O'Brien hopes to further a singing career.

Virginia's Linda Moyer said she became a contestant this year in that state to make up for a previous "poor showing" in the Miss North Carolina pageant.

Mississippi's Jennifer Blair said: "I talked to the Lord about it and feel like it's part of His plan for me."

"I was coaxed into the local pageant by my teachers," said Vermont's Susan Glover.

Idaho's Karen Herd "thought it would make an interesting summer."

Janice Bain said she wasn't thinking of the national title at the time.

"I just wanted to be Miss Texas," she said and she is.

Whatever their reasons, the 50 beauties are far different from the winner of the first pageant in 1921.

Margaret Gorman was 16, measured 30-25-32, represented the District of Columbia, weighted 108 and was 5'1". Today's girls are more shapely, taller, older and well-drilled in the fine art of pageant competition.

This year's contestants all have larger bust measurements. The smallest is 34. Their ages range from 18 to 24. The shortest is Maryland's Michele Ehrgott at 5'2" with several standing tall at 5'9".

Only the 50 states send girls. The District of Columbia no longer has an entry.

9-Year-Old Wins Dipsea; Record Set

YOUNGEST CHAMP — When 9-year-old Mike Boitano of San Francisco broke the tape yesterday he became the youngest winner in the history of the Dipsea Race from Mill Valley to Stinson Beach. Leading the record field of more than 1,200 entrants, Boitano shared the spotlight in the 6.8-mile handicap race with Ron Elijah of Novato who set a record of 46 minutes, 8 seconds while finishing fourth.

Ron Elijah Of Novato Sets Mark

An 18-year-old Novato speedster and a spunky, bespectacled 9-year-old San Francisco lad rewrote the record books for the Dipsea Race yesterday in the 61st edition of the 6.8-mile run from Mill Valley to Stinson Beach.

In a record field of more than 1,200 joggers, walkers, nature lovers and — yes — even some serious distance runners, Ron Elijah, former Novato High School cross country champion, shattered to smithereens the year-old course record while elementary school student Mike Boitano became the youngest winner of the historic Marin County classic that is run on a handicap basis ranging from scratch to 15 minutes.

Elijah, a sophomore at Humboldt State College in Arcata where he is studying for a possible physical education teaching career while pursuing his cross-country athletic ambitions, recorded a stratch clocking of 46 minutes, 8 seconds over the mountainous course that is rated one of America's toughest cross-country trails. (He was fourth across the finish).

That easily broke the record of 46:42 set last year by another Novatan, Don Makela. Makela finished approximately 16th yesterday, although the sponsoring Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce was unable to provide official results beyond the first 10. A computer is busy unscrambling the mess created by the enormous entry list.

While Elijah started from scratch and had to fight his way through a human traffic jam over the shoulders of Mt. Tamalpais, little Boitano, representing the South End Rowing Club of S.F. took advantage of his 15-minute handicap to place first. He actually covered the course in 58:53, and broke the finishing tape in a corrected time of 43:53. Mike's mother, father and sister also ran yesterday on the theory that the family that runs together has fun together.

Sceond across the finish line was 61-year-old Norman Bright of Seattle who was first to finish last year when Makela broke his (Bright's) Dipsea record of 47:22 that had stood since 1937. Bright, also enjoying the maximum 15-minute head start over the scratch runners, ran it in 60:08 yesterday, corrected to 45:08.

When the sanctioning Amateur Athletic Union for the first time officially recognizing female entrants in this event, first distaffer to cross the finish line was an attractive lady identified by the Jaycees as F.K. Conley. She finished fifth behind Boitano, Bright, O.F. Gorman and Elijah, in that order.

Another first yesterday was the entry of a blind man, 34-year-old Harry Cordellos of San Francisco. Guided by a friend, Cordellos finished approximately 400th in the field, according to a Jaycees committeeman.

The team championship was

A'S ROLL ON

Athletics Sweep; Blue, 'Cat' Win

OAKLAND (UPI)—Winning 20 games can mean different things to different pitchers.

Take Vida Blue and Jim Hunter of the A's for instance.

Blue stopped the Washington Senators 4-3 for his 23rd victory in the first game of a doubleheader Sunday and said he was just a little tired of baseball and would like to spend the rest of the season on an island.

Jim Hunter shut out the Senators on seven hits for his 17th victory in the nightcap, winning 9-0, and said he couldn't wait for his next start because he's anxious to win 20 games this year.

"All I want now is to get away on an island with a mermaid and forget the rest of the season," said Blue, who has five more starts and can win 28 if he is successful in all of them. "I'm tired of the whole season and I'm tired of being a superstar. I just want to be an average pitcher on a winning team."

Obviously, the 22-year-old Blue has reached the end of his patience with newsmen asking questions every time he pitches. While he's still polite, he acts bored by it all and says he would hide if he thought he could get away with it.

"The press is exaggerating too much," Blue said. "Read that certain players are superstars this and super that. The writers always want to compare one player with another. That's all a bunch of horse feathers."

Blue pitched a six-hitter against the lowly Senators while snapping a personal two-game losing streak. He struck out 10 to boost his major league leading total to 274 and in accomplishing his latest victory he used 142 pitches.

The A's helped him with two home runs in the first inning with Mike Epstein and Sal Bando driving in a tally each. Reggie Jackson contributed his 25th homer in the third and Dave Duncan drove in the winning run in the seventh with a single.

Two of the six hits off Blue were homers. Del Unser hit a bases-empty blast for Washington's first run in the fifth and Tim Cullen hit one with a man on in the ninth for the final two.

"No, I wasn't getting tired in the end," said Blue. "Give the man (Cullen) credit. He hit a good pitch and he hit it good."

Meanwhile, Hunter said there

49er Rookie QB Might Make It

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—San Francisco coach Dick Nolan followed his game plan of giving his rookies one last chance before he makes six player cuts, and one, Joe Reed of Mississippi State, probably won himself a job in the 49ers 33-17 victory Saturday night over Denver.

Reed, a third-string quarterback who hadn't seen a single minute of game action this season fired a 48-yard touchdown pass to Bill Tucker in the fourth quarter to sew up the game at Spokane, Wash.

Until the final period, the 49ers had relied on an old pro, kicker Bruce Gossett, to stay ahead of the Broncos. Gossett booted four consecutive fiele goals, one in the second period, of 43, 27, 31 and 30 yards.

Nolan had said before the game he would give his rookies one last look before reducing the 49ers roster to 49 by Tuesjay.

For the Broncos, it was a particularly frustrating loss since coach Lou Saban went with his veterans most of the way in order to break into the pre-season game win column after three straight defeats.

The 49ers, who had their troubles cracking the Bronco defense, got on the board early with their defense. On the first series of plays, linebacker Frank Nunley picked off a Don Horn pass and ran it back 30 yards for a touchdown.

Then Bruce Taylor, the 49ers punt return specialist, came back with a 60-yard scoring return, breaking three tackles and weaving across the field twice along the way.

Denver scored once in the first period on a four-yard pass from Horn to tight end Jim Whalen, then added another score in the second period on a one-yard plunge by Dickie Post.

The Broncos' Jim Turner kicked a 46-yard field goal with 13 seconds left in the half to pull Denver to a 17-17 tie.

Floyd Little was a bright spot for the Broncos, gaining more yardage in the first half than the entire 49er team with 114 yards in 14 carries.

Reed came in for starter Steve Spurrier, who bruised his ribs. John Brodie only played two series of downs.

San Francisco, now 3-0-1 in exhibition season play, returned to San Francisco to prepare for Saturday's game against Oakland.

S.F. Rest With 8½-Game Lead Over Falling Dodgers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants get a day off today after returning home from a road trip with a comfortable 8 1-2 first place lead in the National League West division.

The Giants defeated Philadelphia 8-3, Sunday behind the seven-hit pitching of Juan Marichal and hitting of Bobby Bonds, who drove in three runs with his 26th homer of the season.

Four Philadelphia pitchers helped considerably by issuing 11 walks, including four in the first inning by starter and loser Ken Reynolds (-4-6).

Marichal, who picked up his 14th victory against nine defeats, had a shutout until pinch-hitter Joe Lis homered in the sixth.

Chris Speier singled and scored on a double by Tito Fuentes in the second and the Giants knocked out Reynolds in the third when Dave Kingman walked, Alan Gallagher doubled in one run and Speier singled to make it 4-0.

Ken Henderson walked, stole second and scored on a single by Willie Mays in the fourth. Bonds then put the game out of reach in the sixth when he homered following walks to Fuentes and Mays.

The victory wound up San Francisco's competition against the N.L. East this season. The Giants, who only have 28 games left against Western division clubs, took 42 victories in 72 games against East teams.

San Francisco opens a two-game set Tuesday night against Atlanta at Candlestick Park.

WEAVER FINALLY DOES IT

First Win As Pro Golfer

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI)—"I felt like Sam Snead standing up there," said Dewitt Weaver after winning the U.S. Professional Match Play Championshp by six strokes over Phil Rodgers. The victory Sunday was Weaver's first in seven years as a pro and only the second in his entire golfing career. The 31-year-old Atlanta resident had won an amateur event in Giansville, Tex., in 1961.

"This is something I've dreamed of all my life," Weaver said, clutching his trophy and pocketing the $35,000 first place check at the Country Club of North Carolina.

Ken Still finished third by defeating Bruce Crampton 74-76 in the consolation match. Weaver shot a one-under-par 71 over the pine-covered 6,973 yard course, posting three birdies and two bogeys while playing with a cold in the 80-degree weather.

He bogeyed the third hole but bounced back for a birdie on the par-five, 475-yard fifth hole, and that seemed to be the turning point in the match.

"From then on, every shot seemed to go just like I wanted it," he said.

Weaver made another bird on the eighth hole and made the turn one under at 35. Rodgers had carded five bogeys without a bird before heading into the back nine. The 33-year-old San Diego native settled down to par golf for he rest of the round, but the damage had been done and he was forced to settle for runner-up's wages of $17,500.

Since turning professional in 1964, Weaver never had come closer to victory than a third in this year's Hawaiian Open. The victory boosted his standing on the 1971 money list from 47th to 18th with a total of $74,914 for the year.

"Today I think I played probably the most inspired round I've ever played," he said. "It was fantastic."

Weaver barely made the championship round, edging Bruce Crampton 77-78 in the semi-finals and Lou Graham 7172 in the quarterfinals. He earlier beat Julius Boros 71-74, Doug Sanders 72-76 and George Archer 72-74.

Still's third place finish was the best of the year for the 1970 Kaiser Open champion, who tied for sixth in the Masters. Still collected $10,000 while Crampton, who ousted Arnold Palmer in the quarterfinals, earned $7,500.

The tournament was a combination of match and medal play, scored by the round instead of the individual hole.

LAMONICA A SCORER

Raiders Lose 2 Linemen

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI)—Daryle Lamonica didn't seem impressive in the statistics after his first action of the year, but the veteran Oakland Raiders quarterback proved he is ready to play and can put points on the board.

Lamonica, who missed the Raiders' first three exhibition games because of a knee injury, tossed a 58-yard touchdown pass and set up a field goal Saturday night in Green Bay as Oakland scored all its points in the second quarter and held on for a 17-13 victory over the Packers.

Oakland scored early in the second quarter when rookie linebacker Greg Slough of USC recovered a Packer fumble in their end zone.

Ken Stabler, who started the game for Oakland. had led a drive late in the first period, but it stalled one minute into the second quarter on the Green Bay one. On the first play, Green Bay sent rookie John Brockington into the line, but he fumbled and Slough pounced on it.

Lamonica came on after the touchdown and was stopped in his first series, but on his second try he tossed a 20-yard pass to Drew Buie, who bounced off two tackles and raced the rest of the way for the score.

Lamonica then moved the Raiders 55 yards late in the half to set up a 32-yard field goal by George Blanda to end the Oakland scoring.

Stabler came back in the second half and played a ball control game, but it was the Raider defense that did the job.

The Packers got two third quarter field goals from David Conway, 39 and 38 yards, and Scott Hunter, a former Alabama star like Stabler, threw a 41-yard touchdown pass to Dave Davis with only seven seconds left to play.

But a key interception by the Raiders' Tom Maxwell in the third period and a fumble recovery by Willie Brown in the fourth quarter proved crucial.

The Raider defense held the Packers to only 58 yards on the ground.

Lamonica only completed four of 11 passes, but they went for 99 yards. Stabler, throwing short, more accurate tosses in the second half, completed eight of 12 for 47 yards.

The win proved costly for the Raiders, though, with injuries to offensive lineman Bob Brown and Ron Mix. Brown twisted his right knee, which has been operated on before and may not be ready for Saturday's game against the San Francisco 49ers. Mix pulled a hamstring muscle and will probably be out two weeks.

The victory gave Oakland a 31 pre-season mark while the Packers fell to 1-3. The Raiders returned to their training camp here to prepare for the contest against the 49ers.

STAIRWAY TO THE STARS

One of the first hurdles along the Dipsea Race is the three-flight, 671-step stairway leading up one of Mt. Tamalpais' rugged shoulders in Mill Valley. Runners (above) are pretty well spent at the top. The most successful entrants in yesterday's 61st running of the 6.8-mile footrace to Stinson Beach were 18-year-old Ron Elijah of Novato, who set a course record for the handicap event, and 9-year-old Mike Boitano of San Francisco who was first across the finish with a 15-minute handicap. is nothing he would like more than winning 20 games.

"That's every pitcher's goal," he said. "Naturally, winning a pennant is bigger, but winning 20 is right behind it."

Hunter had six more starting assignments and he said he figured his chances are good to split the six games.

"Everyone is always saying I'm a .500 pitcher," Hunter quipped. "So, if they are right then I'll win my 20."

Hunter pitched a seven hitter but he didn't allow a runner past second. He got the job done on 102 pitches while striking out six batters.

Angel Mangual helped Hunter by driving in three runs with two singles and a triple. Hunter, who has lost 11 decisions, helped himself at bat by getting three hits and scoring twice. He has hit safely in all of his last six starts and now has 33 hits on the year for a .360 average.

Sunday's sweep improved the A's latest winning streak to four games and reduced their division title-clinching magic number to 15 games. With 29 games left to play the A's can win the American League West on any combination of victories and Kansas City Royals losses adding up to 15.

Winning the title is a foregone conclusion so the A's thoughts these days are on the A.L. playoffs against Baltimore.

The two complete games Sunday gave the Oakland pitching staff eight route-going performances in their last 11 games and manager Dick Williams said he may have to use three relievers in one game just to give them some work.

Williams also said he will recall pitcher Ron Klimkowski and infielder Duane Anderson from Des Moines when the American Association season ends next week.

"They'll be the only players we call up," said Williams. "Right now I have all the players I need. In fact, I'm having a problem getting all of them into action. When Anderson gets here I'll think about giving Bando and (Dick) Green a few days off. They could use it."

The A's are idle today, then begin a short road trip in Anaheim against the Angels on Tuesday night.

MacKay Gets Scare Before Net Victory

Former Davis Club star Barry MacKay of Ross had to call on all his experience to defeat unseeded Gary Rose yesterday in the fourth Round of the Los Gatos tennis tournament. The tourney's top-seeded player, now a stockbroker, had to go to the tie-breaking set twice to eliminate Rose by a 7-6, 7-6 margin.

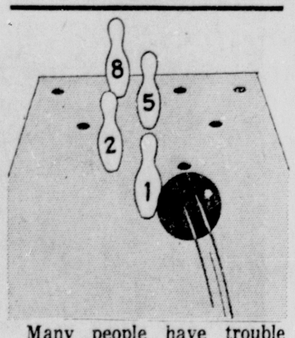

Mill Valley Cyclist Wins Second Place

Mill Valley's Emile Waldteufel took second behind David Brink of Berkeley in the 74-mile Stockton to Berkeley leg Sunday of the tour of California Bicycle Race.

The cyclists left for San Francisco today for their fourth race, a 685-mile, eight-day amateur team competition.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER

Many people have trouble converting the 1-2-5-8 into a spare. If this is your problem, try a pocket hit. In this set-up the 5 pin usually presents the biggest problem. A fairly good "pocket hit" is needed to bring it down along with the others.

Revson Laps Field To Win Can-Am Race

By United Press International.

All Peter Revson needed was a little time.

Revson was forced to start last in a field of 22 cars competing in Sunday's Can-Am Series race at Elkhart Lake, Wis., because he failed to take part in qualifying events. But he managed to lap every car in the field and breezed home to victory and took home a prize of $15,450.

Revson, a New Yorker, averaged 109.012 miles per hour as he posted his third victory in six Can-Am series starts this season. The triumph also increased his lead over McLaren teammate Dennis Hulme to 22 points in the series.

"There was no real problem," said Revson. "It just takes time to pass those cars." Jo Siffert finished second in a Porsche and Vic Elford, driving a McLaren, was third.

Veteran Bobby Unser took the lead on the 58th lap and drove his 1971 Plymouth to victory in the accident-marred Indiana State Fair Century 100. Roger McCluskey was second and A. J. Foyt took third.

Gary Bettenhausen pushed his Gerhardt-Offenhausen to 177.447 m.p.h. to head seven qualifiers Sunday for next weekend's California 500. Mark Donohue earned the pole position Saturday with a clocking of 185.004.

Garlits Is Winner

MARION, Ohio (UPI) —Don Garlits of Seffner, Fla., won the AA-Fuel Dragster competition of the American Hot Rod Association Grand Nationals by blasting his car down the Marion County Raceway Sunday at 223.32 miles per hour.

Phils' Farm Hand Tosses No-Hitter

READING, PA — Reading Phils' pitcher Mike Wallace joined a select group Saturday night when he pitched a no-hit game to give his team a 2-0 victory over the Manchester Yankees in an eastern league baseball game.

The young left-hander faced 21 batters, threw only 79 pitches and struck out five on his way to the no-hit victory.

Yankee hitters could not get on base until the fifth inning when Wallace walked Larry Pyle. Pyle walked again in the seventh and last inning of the second game of a double-header to account for Wallace's two walks.

Wallace picked up his ninth triumph against 11 losses.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA — Taiwan's Chin-Mu Hsu struck out 23 batters while giving up one hit, and his Chinese teammates scored nine runs in the ninth inning Sunday for a 12-3 victory over Gary, Ind., which gave them the 25th little league world series championship, its second such title.

Hsu's only allowed hit was a three-run homer in the first inning by losing pitcher Lloyd McClendon, who set a new world series home run record with five.

Chin also aided his team with the bat in the fourth inning, hitting a game-tying double and then scoring later on a passed ball after advancing to third on an error.

Tennis

NEWPORT, R.I. — Kerry Melville of Australia won her first major professional grass-court tennis championship Sunday, defeating Francoise Durr of Paris on the $20,000 Newport Virginia Slims Tournament.

The 24-year-old Australian from Melbourne won in dramatic fashion, 6-3, 6-7, and 7-6 to pocket $4,400 and bring her season's earnings to $22,042 while Miss Durr's second place finish earned her $2,800 to bring her winnings to $38,400.

Golf

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. — If somebody offered Jim Jewell even par without playing today's final two rounds of the $63,000 Liggett & Meyers, Concord Open, he would take the offer and run.

Jewell, of South Bend, Ind. shares the lead with R.H. Sikes of Fayetteville, Ark., going into the 36-hole final today with a two under par 142 after two rounds.

"I'd be just as happy to see the tournament end right now. I think an even par 288 will be good enough to win," Jewell said Sunday after posting a par 72 on the 7,205-yard "monster" course at the Concord Hotel.

A's Accepting Ticket Requests

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Oakland A's announced Sunday they are accepting mail orders only for tickets to the American League playoffs.

The A's, runaway leaders in the American League West, said tickets will sell for $7 for the first deck, $5 for the second, $3 for the third and $2 for bleacher seats.

Orders for tickets should be sent to the A's in care of the Oakland Coliseum.

AAU SWIMMING

DeMont, Miss Ham Score For Marin

I-J Special Report

HOUSTON — While Alhambra's Cathy Calhoun set a new 1,500-meter freestyle world mark at 17:19.2, the Marin Aquatic Club was achieving records of its own at the National AAU swimming championships Sunday.

Rick DeMont, a 15-year-old Terra Linda High School junior, splashed to a 16:44.1 for 14th in the men's 1,500-meter freestyle. DeMont's effort netted three team points and topped his personal standard by 10 seconds.

His three digit contribution combined with an equal number turned in by Denise Ham, a 17-year-old San Rafael High senior, gave Marin Aquatic Club six points, its best ever showing in such national competition.

Miss Ham garnered the tallies by churning the waters Friday at a 2:28.6 clip in the 200-meter fly, good for 14th. She also turned in a 2:34.1 in the 200 individual medley Sunday, one second off her best. In the same race, teammate Jo Hislop, a 16-year-old San Rafael High junior, recorded a 2:36.1, three seconds below her top achievement. She also swam a 1:02.6 in the 100-meter freestyle, four-tenths seconds short of her best go.

Later, Miss Hislop joined Miss Ham, Anne Engel, a 17-year-old Terra Linda High senior, and Maura Campion, 13, to take 23rd in the 400 free relay. They were clocked at 4:15.4, two seconds behind their best pace but good for 23rd in Sunday's concluding day festivities.

They were all on the sidelines as little Cathy Calhoun thought of taking first place in the 1,500-meter freestyle — and a trip behind the Iron Curtain. She wasn't thinking of breaking barriers.

But the world record fell anyway and the Alhambra, Calif., eighth-grader earned her European tour. The 121-pound brunette became the youngest of 30 National AAU swimmers and divers selected for competition in East Germany and Russia after winning the race last Saturday in 17:19.20.

"I am really surprised about the record," she said after beating Debbie Meyers' old mark by .7 of a second. "I was only trying to finish first and win the trip to Russia."

The team was selected on a point system in the four-day AAU championships and left Sunday for Europe. The tourism ends and the hard competition starts Friday in a two-day meet in Leipzig, East Germany. Then the young Americans go to Minsk, Russia, to meet the Soviets Sept. 9-11.

The team is loaded with youth —16 teen-agers —and the oldest member is Micki King, or "Mother Max," a 27-year-old Captain in the Air Force. The swimmers hold 19 recognized or pending world records and five were set in the AAU meet, led by Mark Spitz.

Spitz, a 21-year-old University of Indiana dental student and a native of Carmichael, Calif., won four national titles at the meet and set two of the world records —a :55.01 and a 2:03.89 in the 100 and 200-meter butterfly.

"I break records in the preliminaries and just try to win in the finals," Spitz said. The 6-foot-1, 170-pound swimmer also holds the world record in the other two events he won —the 100 freestyle in :52.88 and the 200 freestyle in 1:54.74.

Other new world record holders on the tour are Ellie Daniel, 21, of Elkins Park, Pa. She set the mark of 2:18.40 in the 200 butterfly.

Tom McBreen, 18, of San Mateo, Calif., a sophomore at the University of Southern California, won the 400 freestyle in a record 4:02.08.

There are only six divers on the U.S. team, including Miss King. She finished second in both the three-meter and platform diving championships to 21-year-old Cynthia Potter, a senior at the University of Indiana. Miss Potter, of Houston, also won first in the onemeter to sweep the competition.

Peter Daland of the Los Angeles Athletic Club is the head swimming coach and Hobie Billingsley of Indiana University coaches the divers.

Aaron Closing On Ruth Record

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Breaking Babe Ruth's alltime home run record may be easy for Hank Aaron.

If he really wants a challenge, he should stick around long enough to try and break Ty Cobb's hit record.

Ruth's record of 714 homers is one of baseball's most historic marks and supposedly one of the most difficult to break. But Aaron, who hit 38 homers at age 36 last season, cracked No. 39 Sunday to boost his career total to 631 as the Atlanta Braves topped the Chicago Cubs 5-4. Collecting 84 more in the next three seasons or so shouldn't even be particularly difficult for Aaron, who is three years younger than Willie Mays (645).

But Aaron is also accumulating distinguished marks in almost every other category. Aaron's statistics match any of those racked up by the old-time players who never had to worry about coast-to-coast travel and night ball.

His two hits against Chicago enabled him to pass Nap Lajoie for sixth place on the all-time list with 3,243. Stan Musial is second with 3,630 although Aaron laughs, "I'll never catch Cobb." Cobb holds the mark of 4,192.

Aaron's two RBIs enabled him to set a National League record with 100 or more RBIs for 11 seasons. Musial and Mays did it 10 times each. His RBI career total of 1,942 is fourth on the all-time list behind Ruth (2,217), Lou Gehrig (1,990) and Musial (1,951). In runs scored, he's sixth on the all-time list with 1,886. He's two behind Gehrig and could challenge Cobb's record of 2,245.

Aaron goes right down the line with impressive statistics in almost every category. But he admits the home run record is the only one he thinks about.

"I'm not particularly conscious of these other records," Aaron says. "I don't keep up with the figures but people keep bringing them up. The record I want most, of course, is the home run mark."

In other games Sunday, San Francisco downed Philadelphia 8-3, St. Louis nipped Cincinnati 4-3 in 11 innings, Pittsburgh defeated Houston 5-2, New York shaded Los Angeles 4-3 and Montreal beat San Diego 6-2 but lost the second game 13-3.

The Chicago loss to Atlanta dropped the Cubs seven games behind the Pirates, who downed Houston as Jackie Hernandez drove in a pair of runs with a sacrifice fly and a groundout. Bob Johnson went 7 2-3 innings to get the win and Dave Giusti finished up for the save.

But St. Louis overcame a 3-0 first inning deficit to edge Cincinnati in 11 innings and remain five games behind the Pirates in the NL East. Lou Brock's solo homer with two out in the ninth tied the game and sent it into extra innings and Ted Sizemore worked Clay Carroll for a walk with the bases loaded in the 11th to force in the deciding run.

New York completed a three-game sweep over Los Angeles when Tommie Agee drove in the deciding run off Bill Singer with a pinch single with two out in the ninth inning. The Mets drew 44,255 and moved over the two million mark in attendance for the third straight year.

Leron Lee drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Ivan Murrell and Ollie Brown homered as San Diego downed Montreal in the second game of a doubleheader. In the first game, Ernie McAnally pitched an eight-hitter and Rusty Staub drove in two runs with a single and a homer to give Montreal the triumph.

Orioles' Pat Dobson Wins 17th Game

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

There are five teams in the American League East that wouldn't mind seeing President Nixon's freeze on prices and wages extended to another area of daily life —the pitching riches of the Baltimore Orioles.

The budding dynasty on the shores of the Chesapeake produced three 20-game winners last season —Mike Cuellar, Dave McNally and Jim Palmer. And when the Birds acquired Pat Dobson last December from San Diego, speculation ran high that they had acquired a fourth hurler with the necessary equipment to step into the charmed 20-win circle.

Dobson hasn't disappointed. Not only has he kept pace with the birds' elite moundsmen, but he leads the staff in victories now with 17, following his 3-2 conquest of the Milwaukee Brewers in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader.

The Brewers came back behind ex-oriole Dave May's triple and home run to take the nightcap, 4-1.

In other AL contests, Oakland swept a pair from Washington, 4-3 and 9-0, Chicago trimmed Detroit, 6-2, New York bombed Kansas City, 10-3, Minnesota nipped Cleveland, 6-5 and California edged Boston, 2-1.

Dobson had never been a winning pitcher nor had he won more than 14 games in any season since breaking into the major leagues with Detroit in 1967. The 29-year-old right-hander had nondescript records of 1-2, 5-8 and 5-10 in three seasons as a Tiger relief pitcher.

But Harry Dalton, Baltimore's director of player personnel, was ready to make a deal when Dobson was placed on the trading block by the Padres following a 14-15 season in which he struck out 185 in 251 innings for a last-place club.

Don Buford's one-out, bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth scored the run that lifted Dobson's mark to a nifty 17-6. It was the 16th route-going performance of the season for the righthander.

Knuckleballer Wilbur Wood of Chicago continued to provide one of the season's big surprises when he outdueled 21game winner Mickey Lolich and log his 18th win.

Rich Reese belted his third home run in two days and veteran Jim Perry won his 15th game with ninth-inning relief help from Al Haydel as the Twins handed Cleveland its 80th loss of the season. Haydel came on after Perry surrendered a two-out, two-run home run to Vada Pinson and he whiffed Roy Foster to end the game. Minnesota chased left-hander Sam McDowell with a four run rally in the second. McDowell, who walked four in 1 1-3 innings, is now 11-12.

Jim Spencer's two-out single scoring Mickey Rivers in the third inning proved to be the winning run for California as starter Rudy May one-hit Boston for seven innings.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

Ray Leach, Spengler In Field

Ray Leach of Novato and former Drake High School star Paul Spengler, now of San Francisco, yesterday qualified for the 66th annual Northern California Amateur Golf Championship at Spyglass Hill Country Club, Pebble Beach.

Leach, the 1968 Northern California amateur champion now a senior at Brigham Young University where he won All-America links recognition last season, fired a four-over-par 76 to join other championship flight qualifers who were to begin match play today.

Spengler qualified with a 78.

In today's opening round Leach was to meet Mike Spellman who qualified with an 80 while Spengler was matched against Dave Shipley who had an 81 yesterday.

Medalist was Stanford psychology major Sandy McCall with a two-over-par 74.

NFL ROUNDUP

Losers Come Away Smiling

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The New England Patriots and the Buffalo Bills lost the only two National Football League pre-season games played Sunday, but they had reason to come away smiling.

The Patriots, who dropped a 31-21 decision to the Los Angeles Rams, were extremely pleased with the performance of Jim Plunkett, their No. 1 draft choice from Stanford. Plunkett replaced starting quarterback Mike Taliaferro late in the first half and was especially impressive in the fourth quarter as he drove the Patriots 55 yards in 10 plays for a touchdown and rolled out 10 yards for another.

A 93-yard touchdown return with the opening kickoff by Travis Williams and TD passes by Roman Gabriel and Jerry Rhome helped the Rams build a 24-7 margin after three quarters. Plunkett made it close in the last quarter.

"As far as I'm concerned, Plunkett is fantastic," said Rams' Coach Tommy Prothro. "With his ability to run as well as pass, he'll drive pro defenses crazy."

Deacon Jones, the Rams' star defensive end, also was full of priaise for Plunkett, the first player taken in January's college draft. "I think he'll be a star for sure, make that superstar," said Jones. "He's a man you don't argue with. I gave him some good licks today and he came right back. He's really got poise and he doesn't panic. He's got the size and the arm."

Buffalo's good news came in the performance of wide receiver J.D. Hill. The Bills lost to Atlanta 35-24 but Hill, the rookie speedster from Arizona State who was Buffalo's No. 1 draft choice, completed pass plays of 65 and 60 yards for touchdowns.

The game was well in Atlanta's favor as the Falcons, taking advantage of two TD passes by Bob Berry and scoring runs by Jim Butler and Paul Gipson, cruised to a 28-10 lead after three quarters. But James Harris hit Hill with the pair of long bombs in the last quarter after Harmon Wages had given the Falcons a 35-10 lead.

In Saturday's action, Miami downed Detroit 28-24, Cincinnati nipped St. Louis 22-21, Minnesota stopped Pittsburgh 26-21, Oakland edged Green Bay 17-13, Chicago shaded Cleveland 20-19, Baltimore beat Washington 20-14, Philadelphia defeated the New York Giants 26-14, San Diego topped New Orleans 22-7 and San Francisco clubbed Denver 33-17. Kansas City plays host to the New York Jets tonight in a nationally televised game.

Jim Kiick ran for three touchdowns and Bob Griese completed a TD pass to Paul Warfield with only 81 seconds left to boost the Dolphins over Detroit. Bill Munson had two scoring passes for the Lions.

Virgil Carter's 11-yard TD pass to Eric Crabtree with 1:48 left to play lifted Cincinnati past the Cardinals. The score came after rookie Norm Thompson, who had given St. Louis the lead with a 78-yard punt return, fumbled an attempted fair catch.

Fred Cox kicked four field goals and Norm Snead came off the bench to complete 7-of-9 passes and rally the Vikings past Pittsburgh. Snead threw a seven-yard TD pass to Al Denson in the last quarter to secure the victory.

Jim Grabowski, cast off by Green Bay, churned 47 yards for a touchdown to highlight Chicago's triumph over winless Cleveland in the first pro game ever played in Notre Dame Stadium.

Tom Matte ran for one TD and Earl Morrall passed 36 yards to Tom Mitchell for another as the Colts beat Washington. Dave Kopay caught two TD passes for the Redskins.

Lee Bougess scored on runs of one and 52-yards as the Eagles beat the winless Giants and Dennis Partee's five field goals and a 220-yard passing performance by John Hall helped San Diego rip New Orleans.

Dollar Devaluation From Nixon Move

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. What do you think would be the best course of action in the event of a devaluation of the dollar? Would a salaried person be better off owning a home, common stock or government bonds in such an event? — H.H.

A. The prospect of devaluation became a virtual reality with the President's announcement that the Treasury would no longer exchange gold for American dollars held by foreign governments. By cutting the somewhat artificial tie to gold, the dollar has been allowed to "float" on the international monetary market. Because the dollar has long been thought to be overvalued in relation to foreign currencies, this move by the President has in effect devalued our currency. The extent of the devaluation will take several weeks to establish, but is not likely to exceed 10 per cent. The simultaneous imposition of a 10 per cent tax on imports will reinforce the effect of the devaluation on the balance of payments deficit.

For the average American the initial effect of these two moves will be to increase the cost of foreign goods and upgrade the appeal of domestic products. The long-range outcome cannot be isolated since the new monetary policies were adopted in conjunction with several other far-reaching proposals. While the 90-day wage/price freeze should effectively reroute the inflation spiral, if Congress enacts the President's economy-spurring proposals some of this braking action will be dissipated. Regardless of the effectiveness of these "emergency" measures, some inflation, whether at an acceptable or unacceptable rate, is an historic fact.

The average salaried worker is, therefore, better off if he holds investments which will increase their value at a rate as fast or faster than inflation. Real estate, stocks, diamonds, etc. are examples of assets which are capable of appreciation. Government bonds on the other hand are fixed as to income and maturity or face value, therefore growth is limited by that amount.

Weakening Of Prices In Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market drifted slightly lower today amid profit taking and some concern that the administration may be considering the idea of adding some form of profit control to its new economic reforms when Phase One ends, Nov. 12.

Three of President Nixon's cabinet members have now suggested the possibility of something more than the voluntary hold on profits, dividends and interest rates which the President asked for when he imposed the current wage-price-rent freeze.

Prices also weakened in moderate turnover on the American Stock Exchange.

Among the most active Amex issues were TWA warrants down slightly on a volume of 20,000, Leasco warrants fractionally lower on 19,000, and Inexco Oil Co. unchanged on 11,000 shares.

On the NYSEN weakest spots included Wrigley down 2, Bausch & Lomb 1½ ex-dividend, Union Corp., DuPont, and Superior Oil 1 apiece, Burroughs 2⅞, and Xerox 2.

Steels surrendered fractions. Rails, airlines and aircrafts were mixed. Motors showed a steady tone.

Bank Reviews Market Effect Of Dollar Move

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — The floating dollar started trading this week in European money markets and turned in a mixed performance, Crocker Bank said Friday in its weekly money market reveiw.

The administration's objective in floating the dollar, the bank said, is to depreciate it in terms of major currencies to make American goods cheaper and foreign goods more costly to U.S. consumers.

Four developments during the week accounted for a bond market that gained momentum after a hesitant start and is closing strong at week's end:

— Strong sales of $1 billion in new Federal National Mortgage Association securities.

— The fact that next week's auction of $1.25 billion 62-month notes is not expected to be a hurdle.

— A reduction in the prime rate from 6 per cent to 5¾ per cent in a small St. Louis bank.

— Reductions in installment and mortgage loan rates by a major New York City bank.

Also during the week, the stock market continued to do well with some profit taking.

Price Lowering

NEW YORK (BW) — J. C. Penney Co. Inc., operating under what it described as its own "anti-inflation policy," has announced that it is lowering prices on about 350 toy and giftware items in its 1971 Christmas catalog.

Pacific Exchange Reports Income

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Pacific Coast Stock Exchange has reported first half net income of $951,000 on revenue of $5,428,000 as against a deficit of $209,000 on revenue of $4,067,000 in the first six months of 1970.

The trading volume on the exchange in the first six months of 1971 totaled 120,500,000 shares of $3,851,000,000 as compared with 78,721,000 shares of $2,298,500,000 in the corresponding period of 1970.

Stock Offer Delay

PACIFIC GROVE, Calif. (BW) — California Health Care Inc. has postponed indefinitely its earlier announced plan for a public stock offering of approximately 400,000 shares for the company and certain selling stockholders.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Charles Kunst Is Opening Own Painting, Decorating Business

Opening his own painting and decorating business is Charles (Bud) Kunst, formerly a principal in Kunst Bros., Inc. of San Rafael.

Headquartering at his San Anselmo home at 27 Bella Vista Avenue, he will continue doing the same contracting work (commercial and residential painting jobs) in which he has been engaged for a number of years.

His brother John will continue doing business under the corporation name at 76 Belvedere Street, San Rafael. Robert Kunst, a third brother, left the firm a few years ago to open a painting business and store under his own name at Northgate Industrial Park.

THE KENDALL CORP., Tiburon contracting firm, has moved its offices from 36 to 104 Tiburon Boulevard.

COMMERCE CLEARING HOUSE, INC., which is moving its western regional headquarters from San Francisco to Marin County as soon as its Northgate buitding on Quail Hill is completed, has put out a new loose leaf publication, Economic Controls Ninety Days: Aug. 15, 1971 - Nov. 12, 1971, covering the wage-price freeze and import surcharge.

It encompasses pertinent federal laws, executive orders, administrative rules and enforcement aspects of both the freeze and import surcharge. Developements on the federal tax aspects of the 90-day program will be reported in the company's CCH Federal Tax Reporters. Gold controls and the 10-per cent import levy are also covered in its Balance of Payments Reports.

CLARK W. CRAMER, assistant chief loan examiner for Wells Fargo Bank, has been promoted to assistant vice president. He joined the bank in 1962 in the credit analysis department, was reassigned to the loan supervision department in 1963, made credit officer in 1965 and has been in the loan review and examination department since 1967.

Cramer

WELLS FARGO BANK has also promoted Richard D. Kough of Mill Valley to operations officer at the Third and Brannan office in San Francisco. Formerly assistant operations officer, he joined the bank in 1967 and has served in several San Francisco offices. He has been at the Third and Brannan office since last year.

MISS MARCIA DUNN of Larkspur has been elected treasurer of the Bay Area Personnel Women for the 1971-1972 term. She is with the Bechtel Corp.

TRIPS: Paul B. Lucas of San Rafael attended last week's meeting in Quebec City, Canada, of the President's Council of California-Western States Life Insurance Co. He is with the Redwood Empire Agency . . . Bee Cawley and Aileen Cain of San Rafael were cited for outstanding achievement and record sales performances with Mary Kay Cosmetics, Inc. at a Dallas, Texas, national awards banquet . . . William F. Ryan of Sausalito, San Francisco-Northern California general agent for National Life Insurance Co. of Vermont, participated in the company's general agents management seminar at Montpelier, Vt., last week.

REAL ESTATE: Fox and Carskadon, Inc. has qualified saleswoman Jane C. Curtis as a member of its Million Dollar Club. She joined the San Rfael office in 1965 . . . The Marin County Board of Realtors will hold its first breakfast meeting of the fall on Sept. 14 at the Corte Madera Lions Club.

"Remember when 'Impending Economic Doom' was just a phony election year claim?"

Ford Produces Gas Turbine Engines

TOLEDO, Ohio (BW) — Ford Motor Co. has begun producing gas turbine engines at its new Ohio turbine plant. The start up capped nearly 20 years of development and gave Ford "clean leadership" in the automotive type turbine field.

Wilson W. Sick, general operations manager of Ford's industrial engine and turbine operations, said the first engines off the line marked "a milestone for the gas turbine industry."
